Taliban detain British woman journalist

AFP, London

Afghanistan's ruling Taliban militia arrested a British woman journalist yesterday, the Sunday Express newspaper in London said, after an earlier report out of Islamabad.

A spokeswoman for the weekly paper said Yvonne Ridley, one of its reporters, was detained near the eastern city of Jalalabad.

However, the paper's editor Martin Townsend later said they were working only on reports that she had been arrested.

"We are seeking an urgent clarification of the exact position and are cooperating fully with the Foreign Office in securing the quick and safe release of our journalist," he said in a statement.

Ridley had been in the Middle East since the September 11 attacks on New York and Washington.

She had been writing stories for both the Sunday Express and Daily Express newspapers from the Pakistani cities of Peshawar and Islamabad.

First reports of her arrest came from the Pakistan-based Afghan Islamic Press (AIP).

Bomb blast at McDonald's in Istanbul

AFP, Istanbul

One person was injured when a suspected bomb blast ripped through a McDonald's restaurant in the European quarter of Istanbul yesterday, the Anatolia news agency reported.

The blast occurred at around 5:00 pm (2000 BST) in the toilet of the restaurant in the residential Levent district, the report said.

The injured person, who sustained minor injuries to the leg, received treatment at a nearby clinic. It was not immediately clear if the person injured was a man or a woman.

The blast blew out the windows and caused significant material damage to the restaurant, Anatolia added.

Police have not yet made a statement on the blast.

4 Palestinians die, over 70 hurt in Gaza Strip

AFP, Bethlehem

Bloodshed swept the West Bank and Gaza Strip yesterday as four Palestinians died and more than 70 were injured on the first anniversary of the Palestinian uprising or intifada.

Clashes hit a frenzied pitch in the flashpoint southern West Bank city of Hebron where two Palestinians were killed. Ten-year-old Hammad Abu Zwayeh was gunned down, along with two others injured, as Palestinian youth heaved stones at Israel soldiers.

Earlier in the day, a live bullet killed 25-year-old Imam Mohammad Rashad al-Sharif after Israeli forces and Palestinian gunmen traded fire in Hebron, Palestinian security sources said.

Fourteen others were injured during the clashes, which followed a hail of Palestinian gunfire on two Israeli vehicles near Hebron. One driver crashed his bullet-riddled car, injuring two, Israeli officials said.

An Israeli soldier was also slightly wounded in the exchanges of fire.

Demonstrations turned deadly in Al-Khadr when Israeli forces gunned down a Palestinian youth, 18-year-old Mahmud Sukar, who was throwing stones at Israeli positions in this suburb of the West Bank town of Bethlehem, hospital officials said.

Four others were injured in the shooting at Al-Khadr, while another three were shot and injured in the area of the Jewish shrine of Rachel's Tomb at the northern entry to Bethlehem.

In Ramallah, 17-year-old Mohsan Arar died overnight from injuries sustained in clashes last Friday in the West Bank town, when Israeli soldiers shot him in the head and chest.

In nearby Nablus, three Israelis were slightly hurt by stone throwing.

The latest deaths brought to 831 the number of people killed in the year of escalating unrest, including 639 Palestinians and 169 Israelis.

Clashes broke out after Arar's funeral, which was attended by around 6,000 people who observed three minutes silence during the procession to commemorate the intifada. Sirens wailed across the town to signal the moment.

Nine Palestinian stonethrowers were hit by rubber bullets in El-Bireh, an eastern Ramallah suburb.

In the Gaza Strip, 45 were wounded by Israeli fire. A Palestinian man was shot in the head by Israeli forces in a refugee camp outside Rafah on the Egyptian border.

At the Al-Tufah checkpoint near Khan Yunis in the southern Gaza Strip, six teenagers, aged about 15 or 16 years, were wounded by Isreli bullets when troops came under a hail of stones as a crowd swarmed around their positions.

Sirens blared in the Gaza Strip and television stopped for the three minutes of silence to pay tribute to the intifada, but street life did not come to a complete halt.

In Jerusalem, Israeli police tussled with Palestinians flocking to pray at the Old City's al-Aqsa mosque compound, Islam's third holiest site and the birthplace of the current intifada.

Japan promises refugee aid in US war against terrorism

AFP, Tokyo

Japanese Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi told European leaders Friday his nation would provide aid to Afghan refugees as part of its support of the United States' war against terrorism, officials said.

He made the remarks when he separately called British Prime Minister Tony Blair, French President Jacques Chirac and Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi, the officials said.

Koizumi, briefing the European leaders on his meeting with US President George W. Bush on Tuesday in Washington, also agreed to stay in close contact with them over possible US retaliation for the September 11 terror attacks on US landmarks, the officials said.

The Japanese constitution bans the use of military force in settling international disputes.

17 killed in Kashmir violence

AFP, Srinagar

Thirteen Islamic militants and four Indian army soldiers were killed yesterday in Indian-administered Kashmir, a police spokesman said.

Indian army soldiers shot dead five separatist Muslim militants in the frontier area of Mendhar in southern Poonch district during an early morning encounter.

Police said three soldiers were also killed in the fighting, which took place along the Line of Control (LoC) -- the de facto border which divides Kashmir between India and Pakistan.

"The encounter erupted minutes after a group of militants intruded into our side," a police spokesman said.

Three more militants were shot dead by the army in the same district Friday after they crossed the LoC into Indian Kashmir, police said.

Security forces shot dead another Islamic militant during a search operation near the town of Surankote, 430 kilometres south of Srinagar, Kashmir's summer capital.

Police said the slain militant was a "commander" of the pro-Pakistan militant outfit Lashkar-e-Taiba.

Annan tipped for Nobel Peace Prize

AFP, Oslo

The Norwegian Nobel Committee said Friday it had selected the 2001 Peace Prize laureate, with UN Secretary General Kofi Annan rumoured to top the list of 132 nominees.

"The committee made a decision and this decision will be announced on October 12", Geir Lundestad, the director of the Nobel Institute, said, keeping the name of the winner a tightly-guarded secret.

As usual, speculation was rife in Norway and abroad over who will be awarded the prestigious prize.

"My personal feeling is that it will definitely be Kofi Annan," Stein Toennesson, the head of the Oslo Peace Research Institute (PRIO), told AFP.

He said Annan could receive the prize either alone or together with the UN organisation, "mostly for his personal qualities but also because of the current international crisis and because the Nobel Prizes are celebrating their centenary this year."

Toennesson described Annan as "a discreet person with charisma but who is also convincing and who has spent his entire career at the United Nations."

"One of the weakness of the Annan nomination is the UN's failure to intervene in Rwanda during the 1994 genocide. But he has done a lot to rectify that and he has learned his lesson, as was demonstrated with his swift management of the crisis in East Timor," Toennesson said.

In addition to Annan, other favourites for this year's prize are the Red Cross, whose founder Jean Henri Dunant was awarded the first Nobel Peace Prize in 1901, and the UN war crimes tribunal.

Yet others that have been nominated include former US President Jimmy Carter, Japanese historian Saburo Ienaga and the sport of football and its international federation (FIFA).

In total, 29 organizations and 103 individuals have been nominated for this year's prize.

A number of UN organisations have been honoured with the prize over the years.
