Global trade talks show signs of faltering

AFP, Geneva

Trade ministers stepped up a campaign to overcome deadlock on agriculture at a meeting of developing countries Monday, amid signs that attempts to revive global free trade talks by the end of this month were faltering.

"The work in front of us is the size of a mountain. Everybody is willing to make an effort but this is an uphill battle," Argentina's ambassador at the WTO in Geneva, Alfredo Chiaradia, told AFP.

US Trade Representative Robert Zoellick and EU Trade Commissioner Pascal Lamy were due to take part in the meeting of G90 developing nations in Mau-ritius, along with WTO Director General Supachai Panitchpakdi.

The 147 WTO members have set themselves an end July deadline to agree on the broad outline of the way ahead for the current round of trade liberalisation talks.

The meeting on the Indian Ocean Island came hours after a weekend gathering of five trading powers ended in Paris without a breakthrough on the issue of agriculture, a major obstacle in the talks at the WTO.

Negotiations on the current trade round launched by ministers in Doha, Qatar in 2001 were meant to last three years, with a final accord on reducing trade barriers in key sectors at the end of 2004.

Supachai Panitchpakdi said on Monday that the main participants might lose interest if they could not see results by the beginning of next year.

He told the French La Tribune newspaper that a meeting of the WTO general council to be held in Geneva July 27 and 28 was "a historic opportunity and it would be deplorable if this is missed".

"The main participants in the round risk losing all motivation if they do not have a guarantee that it will end, as planned at the beginning of 2005.," Supachai added.

While Supachai noted "clear signs of political will", pointing to pledges by the US and EU in recent months to eliminate their subsidies for farm exports, trade rounds are notoriously laborious.

The previous Uruguay Round, which set up the WTO in 1995, was concluded years behind schedule, and the agricultural issue is a leftover from disagreement during those negotiations.

The informal meeting that ended in Paris Sunday brought together chief negotiators from Australia, Brazil, the European Union, India and the United States in an attempt to forge a common position on farm subsidies and tariffs.

S'pore economy grows 11.7pc in 2nd quarter

AFP, Singapore

Singapore's economy grew at a sharp 11.7 percent year-on-year in the second quarter, according to preliminary estimates released by the government on Monday.

The expansion came on the back of negative growth in the corresponding quarter last year due to the Severe Acute Resipiratory Syndrome (SARS) outbreak, as well as a continuing pick up in the global economy, the Trade and Industry Ministry said.

On an annualised quarterly basis, Singapore's gross domestic product grew by 9.1 percent in the second quarter.

The manufacturing sector, a lynchpin of the local economy, grew 18 percent year-on-year in the second quarter, with the vital electronics sector remaining a strong source of growth, the ministry said.

The service-producing industries were estimated to have grown by 11 percent, largely due to the rebound from SARS, which brought the city-state's travel and tourism industry to a virtual standstill in April and May last year.

Local Interbank FX Trading

Local interbank market was active on Monday. US dollar got slightly stronger against the Bangladesh taka.

Local Money Market

Money market was active. Call money rate was steady and ranged unchanged between 2.50 and 3.00 percent.

International Market

The yen hit a two-week high against the dollar and a one-week peak versus the euro on Monday as investors expected economic reforms to survive a poor election showing by Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP). Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi gave weight to those expectations, vowing in the afternoon to press on with reforms after the LDP won 49 of 121 seats at stake on Sunday's upper house poll. The dollar fell at around 107.60 yen. The yen was also up against euro. Euro hovered over $1.24 against the US dollar on Monday.
