China, India to resume 'Silk Route' border trade next month

AFP, Beijing

China and India have agreed to resume frontier trade next month through a Himalayan pass that was closed 44 years ago following a border war, state media said Monday.

Officials from both sides signed an agreement Sunday in Lhasa, the capiyal of the Chinese region of Tibet, to reopen the Nathu La Pass on July 6, the official Xinhua news agency said.

Nathu La, part of the famed Silk Road and located 4,400 meters (14,520-feet) above sea level, has been closed since a brief war broke out between China and India in 1962.

The two sides agreed in June 2003 to open the pass following a historic visit to Beijing by then-Indian prime minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee.

Indian government officials said last week they were sending a delegation to Lhasa in the expectation of signing the final agreement.

The reopening of the pass, which used to be an important land transport route between China and India, is expected to have a significant impact on trade between the two countries, Xinhua said.

It will also help Tibet's economic development, it said, and coincides with the July 1 start of the first train line into the region from eastern China.

"The reopening of border trade will help end economic isolation in this area," Xinhua quoted Tibet government vice chairman Hao Peng as saying.

"It will also ... pave the way for a major trade route that connects China and South Asia."

India and China -- the world's most populous countries -- have pushed for greater trade to tap a total consumer market of 2.3 billion people.

Bilateral trade reached 18.73 billion dollars in 2005, up 37.5 percent, according to Chinese statistics cited by Xinhua.

Trade between the two countries currently relies mostly on sea transport and is largely seen as very modest, if growing, compared to flows with their other trade partners.
