Chinese PM sees no 'selfish interests' in African deals

AFP, Brazzaville

China on Monday signed seven cooperation accords with the Republic of Congo as Chinese Prime Minister Wen Jiabao insisted Beijing had no "selfish interests" in pursing deals in Africa.

Wen was in the Congo on the third stop of a seven-nation swing around Africa, where China has been pushing for investment deals, especially in gaining access to the continent's wealth of raw materials.

But in Brazzaville, Wen insisted China's goal was "autonomous development" for Africa.

"In cooperating with Africa, China is not seeking selfish interests," he said.

He added that China was operating under two principles: "reciprocal advantages and non-interference in Africa's internal affairs."

The Chinese leader was accorded an airport welcome by Congo's president, Denis Sassou Nguesso. The two countries signed accords that establish the basis for economic, commercial and technical cooperation, according to Congo's foreign ministry.

China also offered to donate medicines for fighting malaria to the west coast African nation.

Brazzaville in turn agreed to buy two Chinese-made aircraft.

On Tuesday, Wen is due to meet the country's 500-strong Chinese community and visit one of two hospitals built by Beijing and staffed by Chinese medical workers.

He will also meet Congolese high school students studying Chinese, before leaving for Angola Tuesday.

Trade between the two countries was worth 2.05 billion dollars (1.63 billion euros) in 2005, according to official figures, with China importing oil and wood and exporting finished goods and construction equipment.

In the past five years Chinese firms have won several contracts, among them the building of the foreign ministry, the headquarters of state radio and television and the biggest hydroelectric dam in the country, north of Brazzaville.

Wen's trip, the third by a high-profile Chinese leader to Africa over the past six months, is aimed at shoring up energy and mineral supplies for the Asian giant's booming economy.

It is also seen as aimed at securing markets for its consumer and industrial goods.

Thai Airways expects big turnaround in second quarter

AFP, Bangkok

Flag carrier Thai Airways International expects a big turnaround in the quarter ending June 30 compared to its 117-million-dollar loss in the same period last year, executives said Tuesday.

Despite high oil prices and stronger Thai baht, the airline's vice president for commercial Vasing Kittikul said aggressive promotion packages would help the carrier improve its financial performance over 2005.

In the wake of the Indian Ocean tsunami, Thai posted its worst-ever loss of almost five billion baht in three months to June 2005. The period is normally low season for the tourism industry.

"We will break even this quarter and have a better performance for the whole year than in 2005," Vasing told reporters.

"This year we have ongoing celebrations for the king's 60th year on the throne. Promotion campaigns are being launched in 25 countries that have royal families who visited Thailand for the event, mainly Japan," he said.
