Inflation may prompt food price controls: UN

AFP, London

Some countries may have to implement retail price controls on food in the near future because of rising prices for consumers, the UN's food chief said in an interview published Monday.

Speaking to the Financial Times, Jacques Diouf also said that he would not be surprised if the rising food prices sparked riots in parts of the world, adding that food price inflation had become an "even more serious problem" in recent weeks as the rises have started to hit consumers.

"Many (countries) will have to take hard decisions because of the impact of food prices," Diouf told the business daily.

"In some countries there will be price controls, some will scrap import tariffs on food to minimise the impact of rising costs and others will increase food subsidies."

Diouf added that if "prices continue to rise, I would not be surprised if we began to see food riots."

The UN special rapporteur on the Right to Food sought to drum up support Friday for his proposal for a five-year UN moratorium on converting arable land for food to the production of biofuels.

The International Monetary Fund last week warned that an increasing global reliance on grain as a source of fuel could drive up food prices in poor countries with "serious implications."

Oil surges above $93 in Asia

AFP, Singapore

Oil spiked past 93 US dollars in Asian trade Monday for the first time to set a new intra-day high as tensions in the Middle East continued to spook investors, dealers said.

Prices were also partly driven up by a new tropical storm, dubbed Noel, in the Caribbean which investors fear may make its way to the US gulf coast where many of the country's energy facilities are located, they said.

At 4:15 pm (0815 GMT) New York's main futures contract, light sweet crude for December delivery, had eased from its new trading high of 93.20 dollars to 92.79 dollars.

The contract had breached 92 dollars for the first time on Friday. It is currently up 93 cents from its all-time closing high of 91.86 dollars on that day.

Brent North Sea crude for December delivery also surged to a new trading high of 90 dollars in Asian trade, erasing its previous record of 89.30 dollars set on Friday.

It is now trading at 89.45 dollars, up 76 cents from Friday's close.

"What we see is a continuation of the trend that was in place Friday," said David Moore, a commodity strategist with the Commonwealth Bank of Australia in Sydney.

"Geopolitical tensions, issues regarding tensions between Turkey and Kurdish rebels... those sort of factors have added to oil prices," he said.

Strong rupee hasn't hurt India: Paulson

AP, Mumbai

US Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson praised India on Monday for allowing market forces to dictate the rupee's value and said the currency's rise has not dented the country's growth.

"I have watched India and watched how the rupee has appreciated," Paulson told top Indian and American businessmen at a gathering in Mumbai. "India has let market forces operate and ... that hasn't affected India's economic performance."

The rupee has climbed to a 9 1/2-year high against the dollar this month amid strong foreign investment inflows.

While a strong rupee helps make imports cheaper particularly oil critics say the rupee's rise hurts exporters, especially software companies because the majority of their revenue depends on outsourcing orders from the West.

The rupee has risen more than 12 percent against the dollar this year and was recently trading at 39.39 to the dollar. Despite the appreciation, the Indian economy continues to grow at about a 9 percent rate.

Citigroup gets green light to list on Tokyo bourse

AFP, Tokyo

US financial giant Citigroup said Monday that it would list its shares on the Tokyo Stock Exchange on November 5 after receiving approval from Asia's largest bourse.

The listing comes as the US giant moves to take full control of Nikko Cordial, Japan's third largest brokerage firm, whose shareholders will be able to sell the Citigroup shares they receive in the deal on the Tokyo bourse.

Citigroup is expanding its operations in Japan despite a poor track record in the world's second largest economy for rival Wall Street banks.

Local Market FX

Local inter-bank FX market was active on Monday as the international market opened after the weekend break. There was ample demand for USD and the BDT weakened slightly against the USD. The volume of cross currency transactions was more compared to that of Sunday.

Money Market

Money market was active on Monday. Call money was stable and most of the deals ranged between 6.50 and 6.60 per cent.

International Market

The dollar slid to a record low against a basket of major currencies on Monday. The dollar was weighed down by expectations of a Federal Reserve interest rate cut this week and perhaps another move by the end of the year. The Fed is widely forecast to cut rates by a quarter percentage point to 4.5 percent on Wednesday, while expectations are building for a follow-up cut in December to limit economic damage from the housing market's downturn.
