Banks worldwide face financial turmoil despite abundant global liquidity

AFP, Paris

The international banking sector is grappling with a grave financial crisis at a time when, paradoxically, there is an abundance of ready cash available, notably from emerging market countries.

Big banks since August have slashed the amount of credit they are prepared to offer each other, anxious to avoid lending money to any institution that could be liable to huge losses because of exposure to the crisis in the US housing market.

The subprime, or high-risk, sector of the US market has been hit with a wave of foreclosures by homeowners unable to meet higher mortgage payments.

That in turn has undermined the value of billions of dollars' worth of securities backed by subprime mortgages and issued by major banks and finance institutions.

But according to Jean-Francois Robin of the French bank Natixis, "it's not that there is a lack of liquidity (in the global financial system), it's that it is not circulating."

If the inter-bank market has seized up, there are in fact funds available.

"The world's money supply is growing at a red-hot pace -- 10 to 15 percent a year," said Jean-Herve Lorenzi of the French research group Cercle des Economistes.

Foreign exchange reserves held by emerging market powerhouses such as China and other big commodity exporters -- Russia and members of the Opec oil cartel, for example -- are steadily expanding.

In such countries, along with Japan and Norway, sovereign wealth funds have been created to find fruitful investment outlets for the reserves that have built up over the years.

The funds, which are said to total more than 2.8 trillion dollars, have lately come to the rescue of some of the biggest names in global finance.

The US investment bank Merrill Lynch is to be re-capitalised thanks to a 5.0-billion-dollar injection by the Singapore state investment fund Temasek.

Morgan Stanley has been reinvigorated by the participation of the China Investment Corporation, also in the amount of 5.0 billion dollars, while another US behemoth, Citigroup, has received a 7.5-billion-dollar lifeline from the Abu Dhabi sovereign fund.

Swiss banking giant UBS, which has been especially hard hit by the subprime meltdown, raised 11 billion dollars from another Singapore fund.

But sovereign funds are not the only entities sitting on piles of cash.

US billionaire investor Warren Buffett announced Tuesday he was buying a 60 percent stake in Marmon Holdings Incorporated, an industrial group owned by one of America's richest families, for 4.5 billion dollars.

Buffett's investment firm, Berkshire Hathaway Incorporated, will acquire the remaining 40 percent of Marmon over five to six years at a price to be based on the group's future performance, the two sides said.

Marmon, which has been owned by Chicago's Pritzker family since 1953, is a manufacturing and services group with more than 125 units and whose products range from railroad tank cars to electrical wires and cables.

In addition, said Robin of Natixis, "there's lots more liquidity" held by insurers and pension funds, which manage savings worth hundreds of billions of dollars.

"They have taken their capital out of risky assets," such as stocks and bonds linked to real estate, he said.

2 China auto makers tie-up

AP, Beijing

Two of China's biggest automakers announced a deal Wednesday to combine their production assets in hopes of creating a company able to compete in global markets.

The tie-up between Shanghai Automotive Industry Corp. and Nanjing Automobile (Group) Corp. both state-owned companies adds to a flurry of recent alliances in China's fast-growing vehicle market, the world's second-largest.

SAIC is the local partner of General Motors Corp. and Volkswagen AG and has launched its own Roewe brand. Nanjing Auto is known for reviving the MG sports car, bought from defunct British automaker MG Rover Group.

The two hope to create a "world-class auto company of an unprecedented scale in China," they said in a joint statement.

The communist Beijing government has been encouraging such tie-ups in the fragmented auto industry, hoping Chinese producers will pool resources to compete with bigger, richer foreign rivals. China's domestic market is dominated by GM, Volkswagen and other foreign producers. The country has about 150 automakers, most of them small and financially weak.

SAIC will dominate the new venture, while Nanjing Auto's parent, Yuejin Motor Group, will retain a minority stake.

SAIC will pay Yuejin 2.1 billion yuan ($285 million) for Nanjing Auto's auto and core components businesses and combine them with its automaking subsidiary, SAIC Motor Corp., the companies said.
