The seamy side of life

Gupu Trivedi's exhibition at "Chitrak"

FAYZA HAQ

GUPU Trivedi picks up scenes from the house of the sex worker or from that of the transvestite or reveals the break up of an old romance...

contain the impact of the Bengal School, specially Jamini Roy, and even earlier depictions of the creators of "Pot", where a lot of black had been traditionally used...

In one of his paintings he has brought in three figures related to the old literature script, which had been in his collection, and which he pasted on to his work...

"Puthee" which go with the sunburst of a flower, one containing the centre of olive green and white and the other had petals in dark red outlined with black...

In "Three women" we saw the influence of Quamrul Hassan, where the figures of the women were done in a very simple way such as swirls of yellow red and black...

Nature

ment and disharmony which was also reflected in the dark moon at the back. She was depicted as trying to find some peace in the bird seen in the tree...

protruding bosoms appeared like some protruding watermelons, having the same size as her face. She had masses of jewellery to deck her and behind her was a red curtain through which one could see the moon...

"Love" brought in the transvestite with the shaved chin and upper lip with garish make up camouflaging a dark blue skin. The man behind the "hijra" carried a black stemmed yellow rose to heighten the effect of false affection...

and black. In "Woman-2" we saw a Cubist cum folk portrayal of a woman with large breasts, and an angle of a nose. Her face was blue while her feet were spread in an unnatural way...

pain, seen caught up in the four chambers of a heart and spoke of love that had terminated or had been misunderstood. The man had been depicted in red and ochre, outlined with black...

In "Bird" (mixed media) we saw a huge mauve and yellow parrot outlined in black as in folk paintings and was also influenced by the work of Henri Matisse...

Drama

A drama that speaks about a woman in distress

Nattyajon launches 'Bhuboner Ghatey' on stage

RUMMAN UDDIN AHAMED

PROMINENT theater group Nattyajon launched their sixth production 'Bhuboner Ghatey' on stage on February 2, 2003...

The drama is a story of a miserable woman who fled out from her village home as she was severely tortured by her husband. She had a daughter who was still suffering from insecurity so the woman comes to Dhaka in search of a new life...

lishes a shop. Gradually, her fate turns to prosperity but it doesn't last long. Her husband comes from the village and wants a portion of her profit...

New actors and actresses performed in the play. The acting pattern was not so dexterous. The direction was not flawless. It was loose in its form...

A scene from the play Bhuboner Ghatey
