which were done in blue. There were more decorative lines at the bottom. Another one had the top like an opening flower bearing splashes of blue, black and the basic beige colour. A little basket, done in orange, cobalt blue and pale blue crescent motifs with simple motifs at the sides was also eye catching.

In another vase one found an opening like some flowering bud, while the body had swirls of gray and brown against the beige background. Another vase had a zigzag forms in brown and blue-gray against the pale beige background. The stripes were in brown and blue-green. Yet another vase we saw a straight side matched with a semi oval end. In between were forms gray, brown and beige and navy blue. Another such creation with strokes in creation. It had been done in brown and blue green. On it were painted boats, sky with clouds, trees and grass. Another had stripes in variations of blue, brown and gray on beige. Yet another abstract human form was brought in the next creation. This had been decorated with stripes of blue, brown and splashes of grass and circular lines. A mask with horrifying depiction of eyes, nose and teeth, with two horns at two ends was also found at the exhibit. This was in gray and brown The figure of a cat, complete with eyes, ears and whiskers, was included in another composition. Abdus Sattar, the Director of the Institute of Fine Arts says, "Sohel Rana has joined several important work-contained rectangular shapes and squares in blue and brown. A show piece contained folk motifs that included kites, boats, butterflies, flowers, male and female human forms. This was done in blue and brown against beige. One found a pineapple shape with its leaves that formed another curio. It could also be taken for a flower. The large fleshy thorny leaves and a part of the prickled body of the shops organized by Shilpakala Academy, Biswa Shahitya Kendra, National Book Centre and Dhaka University Film Society. These earned him varied experience which helped increase his creative endeavour. His way of adding glazes on vases are notably attractive. It shows clearly that he has managed to come out of the conventional pottery practice."

performs Look Back In Anger CULTURE DESK → PACE and Acting Research Centre (SARC), a renowned main stream theatre organisation based in Bangladesh, founded in 1991, is involved in contemporary theatre practices, research and performances, studies according to oriental and occidental cultural anthropology. They performed Look back In Anger by John Osborne at Goethe Institut Dhaka on April 23. Through this production SARC tries to establish the universality of drama, which can cross the boundary of time, distance and language.

In Britain, the most historical event was the production of Look Back In Anger in 1956. The play indicates the basis for the label 'Angry young men', a group of youth who voiced the resentment of the youth against atom bomb war.

Look Back In Anger is the story of Jimmy Porter, his wife Alison, his friend Cliff Lewis and Alison's friend Helena Charles. Although the play concerns four persons, Jimmy Porter is the most dominating character in the play who makes all the most important speeches with an intellectual content. He is a complex personality, while others are comparatively simple. Jimmy is the angry young man who is deeply dissatisfied with life. Jimmy is unable to reconcile with his environment and with the people around him.

The action of the play takes place in a flat of Midland. The occupants of this flat are Jimmy Porter, his wife Alison Porter and Jimmy's friend Cliff Lewis. Jimmy and his friend are men from working class, while Alison comes from an upper middle class family, which leads to the social disparity between the husband and the wife

Everyone inthis story tries to achieve his own individual identity.

Forhad Hossain Shaown and Rawshan Shimu in a scene from Look Back In Anger.

So they continue fighting with the sional The drama has five characters of Orthodox rules, but no one can cross the boundary. The most important thing in the play is that it carries a global human relation, fragmentation caused by capitalism, and sociopolitical isolation. The internal crisis of the play expresses love, passion, illusion, in which no one is contented.

Space and Acting Research Centre

The play is translated and directed by Ashis Khondker. The translation is very good but the direction needs extra beat of rhythm. Nowadays when stage drama is struggling for its existence with satellite culture, the direction should be more profesaccording to the fashion of that time.
