US, N Korea agree to keep diplomatic channels open

Pyongyang pushing ahead with 'deterrence'

The United States and North Korea have agreed to keep diplomatic channels open after talks on the nuclear crisis ended early with President George W. Bush accusing Pyongyang of reverting to "blackmail", China said Friday.

They have also agreed on the need to seek a peaceful solution to the festering

Despite the early conclusion of the talks, Chinese Foreign Minister Li Zhaoxing said the meeting "signifies a

The ministry said in a statement that all sides "agreed to maintain contacts through diplomatic channels regarding continuing the process of talks.

"We hope that all sides can continue to make efforts to peacefully resolve the Korean nuclear issue," Li was quoted by the official Xinhua news agency as

"On this the North Korean and US sides both expressed agreement and

United States during the talks that it has nuclear weapons and hinted it may sell or use them depending on US actions.

They said the head of the North Korean delegation Li Gun had also told US envoy James Kelly that Pyongyang had gone ahead with reprocessing 8,000 spent fuel rods at its Yongbyon plant, which could produce enough weapons grade plutonium for several more

Originally scheduled to run through Friday, the talks ended ahead of schedule after Kelly and the North Koreans had a brief, informal meeting with their Chinese host.

"The US and North Korean delegations had separate meetings with Chinese Foreign Minister Li Zhaoxing this morning. They also had a brief informal trilateral meeting," a US embassy spokesman here said.

Kelly left Beijing for Seoul Friday

The early conclusion of the discussions came after Bush said in Washington overnight that North Korea had reverted to "blackmail" in the two sides' first direct high-level encounter since the crisis erupted in October over the North's nuclear ambitions

US Secretary of State Colin Powell said the talks had featured "strong views" on all sides and that the United threats or "bellicose statements."

China's Li cautioned that the Korean nuclear issue was "very complicated and sensitive," but the key was to "not mind the other side's rhetoric," but "pay attention to its actions.'

Meanwhile, North Korea said Friday that it was pushing ahead building military "deterrence" a day after US sources said the Stalinist state had admitted it possessed nuclear weapons.

An editorial in Rodong Sinmun, the official newspaper of North Korea's ruling Workers Party, made no direct reference to the talks in Beijing at which US sources said the admission had been Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat called once again for the immediate release of an international "road map" due to lead to the creation of a Palestinian state, in remarks published in a Spanish newspaper on Friday.

Expressing impatience over repeated delays in the release of the document, Arafat told the daily ABC newspaper that "it is indispensable to publish and immediately put into practice the road map," particularly since a Palestinian cabinet had now

"First it was put off until after the elections in Palestine, which could not be held because of the occupation of our land, then it was delayed until after the Israeli elections, and then it was put aside until after an Israeli government had been set up. When that was formed, it was put off until the creation of a Palestinian government," Arafat said in the interview published in Spanish.

US to propose end of Iraq sanctions next week

AFP, Washington

The United States plans to propose next week a UN Security Council resolution lifting all international sanctions against Iraq and putting oil revenues under US control until an interim authority takes over in Baghdad, The Washington Post said Friday. Crafted Wednesday at a meeting of top White House advisers, the resolution relegates the United Nations to a consultative role through a special representative of UN Secretary General Kofi Anna, senior US officials told the

The resolution would firmly endorse control by the United States and its military allies over international involvement in Iraq until a permanent, representative government is in place, the daily

While still being drafted, the proposal contains specific instructions for the Iraqi oil industry, the profits of which would be moved from UN control to an Iraqi Central Bank and used on reconstruction activities designated either by the Pentagon or by the Iraqi Interim Authority once it is in place, officials involved with the discussions

Russia and France pledged Friday to boost military cooperation, developing an alliance born out of their joint opposition to the US-led war in Iraq.

"Defense relations between Russia and France are old and excellent -- but considering the global situation and the new risks in the world, they must be further reinforced," visiting French Defense Minister Michele Alliot-Marie said at the start of talks with her Russian counterpart Sergei Ivanov.

France and Russia spearheaded outspoken opposition to the US-led war and are leading efforts to ensure the United Nations plays a central role in Iraq's reconstruction.

"Military relations between Russia and France are a very important element for stability in Europe,

E Asia seeks joint effort against SARS

AFP, Kuala Lumpur

East Asian health officials and experts called Friday for a coordinated effort against SARS as they laid the groundwork for an emergency regional summit on the crisis.

Delegates discussed measures taken by individual countries to contain Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS) ahead of a health ministers' meeting here on Saturday and a summit in Bangkok on Tuesday.

"Several coordinated activities aimed at strengthening regional responses to combat SARS will facilitate current national control measures and lessen a country's burden to deal with the problems unilaterally,' said Mohamad Taha Arif, Malaysia's director-general of health.

The talks in the Malaysian capital are a prelude to Tuesday's unprecedented special summit in Bangkok of the 10-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and China, where the outbreak originated.
