DU Mourning Day today

UNB, Dhaka

Dhaka University Mourning Day will be observed today on the campus, remembering the tragic death of those students, employees and guests killed in a building collapse at Jagannath Hall on the night of October 15 in 1985.

The day's programme will begin at 6am hoisting black flags atop of all the student dormitories and the main building of the university. The university flag will also be hoisted at half-mast.

DU teachers, students, officials and employees will bring out a mourning procession wearing black badges from the foot of Aparajeyo Bangla at 6:30am. The procession will end at the Jagannath Hall through placing wreaths at the monument set up in memory of the dead.

Members of Hindu, Buddhist and Christian communities will offer prayers seeking divine blessings for the departed souls at the Jagannath Hall temple.

Other programmes on the occasion include blood donation programme, special munajat at the central mosques of the university and a reminiscent meeting.
