Santana passes away

AFP, Brasilia

Former Brazil national coach Tele Santana died on Friday at the age of 74.

Santana coached Brazil at the 1982 and 1986 World Cup finals and also led Sao Paulo to the Copa Libertadores in 1992 and 1993.

He had spent 28 days in hospital in Belo Horizonte, in the south-east of the country, after being admitted complaining of an intestinal infection

Santana's Brazilian teams at the 1982 World Cup in Spain and at the 1986 edition in Mexico were regarded as favourites for the title boasting the mercurial talents of Zico and Socrates.

In particular, the 1982 side, which also included Junior. Cerezo and Falcao, was considered one of the finest Brazilian teams ever to take part in a World Cup

But they were beaten 3-2 by eventual champions Italy in their final pool game which denied them a place in the semifinals with Paolo Rossi grabbing all three goals.

As a player. Tele Santana spent most of his career at Fluminense. He had been in precarious health since 1996 when he suffered a stroke and in 2003, he had part of his left leg amputated.

Santana, born on June 26, 1931 in Itabirito, began his career as a goalkeeper before becoming a left-winger.

His career as a club manager started in 1967, coaching Fluminense before progressing to Atletico Mineiro, Gremio, Palmeiras, Al Ahly in Saudi Arabia, Flamengo and Sao Paulo. In 1992 and 1993, he also led Sao Paulo to the Intercontinental Cup.

Benitez in Mourinho dig

Rafa Benitez claims Jose Mourinho would not have been a success at Chelsea without Roman Abramovich's financial backing.

Mourinho is on the brink of winning back-to-back titles at Stamford Bridge and has also lifted the Carling Cup during his Blues reign.

The Portuguese tactician has been given licence to spend Chelsea owner Roman Abramovich's money, splashing out big fees on the likes of Michael Essien and Shaun Wright-Phillips. But Mourinho's Liverpool counterpart Benitez believes Chelsea's emergence as the team to beat is not due to the manager, but Abramovich. While Mourinho's managerial style has drawn plaudits from several guarters, Benitez insists the key factor in The Blues' rise to the top is money.

"It's very simple, they have spent more money than anyone else on players," said Benitez. "Abramovich has done a fantastic job with his team. "After 50 years, they are winning two leagues and that's really good. "Jose Mourinho has done a good job, but for me the owner is the key. All of them are important, but you can't do anything without Abramovich and he started the revolution."

he was quoted as saying by a website. The 24-year-old said he had to keep performing if he wanted to enjoy the top ranking for a longer period. "It's a good feeling and I hope to keep performing in the near future. If you want to stay in the team you need to keep performing," he said.

Dhoni has proved himself as a key member of the Indian cricket team. In 42 one-dayers, he has scored 1372 runs at an average of 52.76 and an amazing strike-rate of 103.

He said it was unfair to compare him with his Australian counterpart Adam Gilchrist.

"Gilchrist has proved himself consistently over a long period of time. I have played only 16 months of international cricket. Hence, I think that the comparison cannot be justified. I just hope that people can recognise me as Dhoni only," he added said.
