'Africans must

Angola's coach called for African nations to cooperate to improve their football after a winless opening week for the continent at the lost their first games with only

Tunisia registering a draw against but we're impoving," said Angola the African football officials most work together to improve African what we've done so far. However we need to give a little bit more to improve our football.

coach Luis Oliveira Goncalves.

Four of the five African teams

"We are very conscious of that "We have a lot of difficulties but "We should feel happy about

Angola, Ivory Coast, Ghana and Togo are all making their World Cup debuts, while Tunisia are playing their fourth tournament but have they only had one point between them, the difference was not huge between African teams and the rest won any matches so far and only

Tunisia drew, the matches are very between the winner and the loser."

African governments after more pressing needs like health and we have other priorities like health, education and development which are consuming our budget," he aware of the quality of football in Africa and we hope we will be

American left-back Jonathan

Spector has joined English

Premiership club West Ham from Manchester United in a 500,000-

Spector, 20, spent all of last been in the running for a place in the United States' World Cup squad

but made only eight first team admitted he had been keen to land club's website: "Jonathan is a

He had joined United in 2003

West Ham boss Alan Pardew before dislocating his shoulder.

pound (925,000 dollars) transfer.

better in the near future."

Hammers

AFP, London

appearances.

Spector joins

"But African officials are well

"Unfortunately in our continent tough and balanced, "he said.

"Despite the fact that we haven't

There's no big difference

Goncalves said that although not won a game since 1978.

be united'

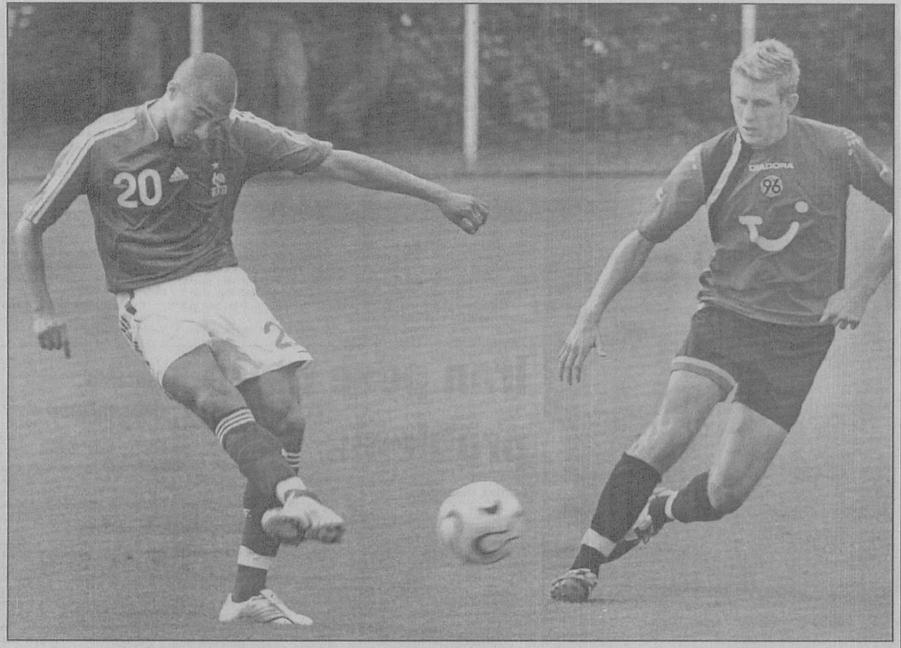

AFP, Hanover

World Cup

football.

of the world.

losing 2-0 to Italy.

Goal drought puzzles France

Henry was a shadow of the player he is for Arsenal in Tuesday's dull 0-0 Group G draw with Switzerland while Trezeguet, who keeps treating the Juventus fans with plenty of goals, did not even

"I have no regrets," said Henry.

"I kept trying to put myself in a position to score and there was no one-to-one situations. You have Despite his credentials.

Trezeguet has been used mostly as a substitute over the years, starting only two internationals alongside

Henry since Raymond Domenech took over as coach after France's quarter-final exit from Euro 2004.

Just two days before France played Switzerland, Trezeguet had said he found it difficult to understand why he was not an automatic

Thierry Henry, Zinedine Zidane or myself, you should not ask yourself follow is Brazil. Look at them, they play with Ronaldinho, Ronaldo, Adriano and Kaka all together in questions," Trezeguet said.

When you have players like

"In my opinion the example to regrets when you miss those."

France's out-of-favour striker David Trezeguet (L) shoots the ball during a training session of the national team against a local German side in Arzen on Wednesday.

come on.

Parreira wary of Aussies even invited him to Brazil at the end ers in the Brazilian team but there are

AFP, konigstein

Australia could prove to be the wild card team in world champions Brazil's World Cup Group F warned the five-time title winners coach Carlos Alberto Parreira on Thursday.

Parreira also expressed his huge admiration for the Socceroos coach Guus Hiddink, who has twice taken teams to the World Cup semi-finals with the Netherlands in 1998 and South Korea in 2002.

Both Brazil and Australia, who meet in Munich on Sunday, opened their campaigns with wins, Brazil scraping home 1-0 over Croatia while Australia scored three goals in eight minutes to come from behind and beat Asian champions Japan 3-1.

"Australia are a redoubtable side," said Parreira, who was in charge when Brazil won the 1994 World Cup. "They knocked out Uruguay in the play-offs, played well in their friendlies and won well against "They are physically strong and superb technique. It is not going to be easy even if they are that strong. "When I spoke to the squad, I told them that Australia could be the wild cardteam. "They have got Guus Hiddink, who is one of the best coaches in the world as he proved with the Netherlands, South Korea and now

"I really respect his work and I of last year. Against Australia we must play our natural game, and must avoid taking them on physically. "We have to keep the ball on the ground and pass the ball around so we exhaust them. We will be pressurised but it is imperative we keep the ball moving around. We want to second match." Parreira said that there was no question of Ronaldo not playing despite a below-par performance against Croatia, in which he was substituted, and a visit to hospital after he complained of dizzy spells. The health worry brought back memories of the fit he suffered on the day of the 1998 final which resulted in a 3-0 defeat by France.

"The team against Australia will be the same that played against Croatia," said 63-year-old Parreira, who has also coached Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia at World Cup finals.

"Ronaldo trained normally with the rest of the team on Thursday afternoon, You talk of a problem (with his health) but there is none, the team doctor just told us that.

*Ronaldo is very calm and relaxed. He has come through his have three or four players who have medical problem. All we wish is for a highly-motivated Ronaldo for the Australia clash."

Parreira, who vowed after the 1994 World Cup triumph never to return to the hotseat because of the personal criticism he had received. said that while Ronaldo was one of the most important players on the

"There are no untouchable play-important players," said the coach.

"And Ronaldo is one of those -- for what he has done in the past. He must continue to play. There is a hierarchy in the team. All teams have Look at Ballack with Germany. He did not play in the first match qualify for the second round in the (because of a calf muscle injury) but he played in the second one. It is logical. He has a stellar past with > Germany." Parreira said that he did not regard Brazil as the super hot favour-

"That (the favourite's tag) came from outside and not within the camp, he explained. "I have always said there are eight favoruites and Brazil are one of them. "Of course we did not see the best Brazil can play in the win over Croatia but it still meant we won a record eighth successive World Cup finals match, a record that had stood for 80

"It is important to start by winning. It means we will be more relaxed and the performance will be as well (against Australia) and technically we will be better.

"Favourites or not favourites...in 1994 we weren't, nor in 1970 or in 1998 and 2002. The great virtue of Brazilian football is to grow in adver-

"The real challenges start in the second round. In the second round if you lose, you are on your way home,' added Parreira, who nominated Ecuador, the Czech Republic and Germany as the best teams he had seen during the first batch of first

Glamour and s

AFP, Berlin

Sponsorship

Health experts criticised organisers of the World Cup on Friday for choosing a fast food giant, a brewer and soft drinks maker as official sponsors of soccer's showcase event.

They said it is difficult to reconcile

FIFA's choice of McDonald's Corp

(MCD.N: Quote, Profile, Research),

Coca-Cola (KO.N: Quote, Profile, Research) and Budweiser beer, which is made by Anheuser-Busch (BUD.N: Quote, Profile, Research), as official partners for the World Cup which aims to promote sports and current official partners of Budweiser beer, McDonald's and Coca-Cola illustrates the tensions that exist between international sport and health promotion," said

Jeff Collin of the University of available to comment but FIFA dismissed the idea that the sponsors were offering products detrimental to the general well-being of the Communications told journalists in Berlin on Friday: "It is a free society and everyone is entitled to their own ever are actively involved in promoting good health. We believe these companies are up to the standard, are conscious of the issues we have in our society and there is no reason and are valuable members of the Collin and Ross MacKenzie of the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine in London's noted in a commentary in The Lancet medical journal that FIFA received an award in 2002 from the World Health Organisation (WHO) for its smoking in stadiums has been dropped for the 2006 World Cup in Germany and that branded lighters and ashtrays are among the official

But they added that a ban on

"They have a good conscience that they should not be sponsors.

"The sponsors mentioned how-

Markus Siegler, FIFA's Director of population.

No one from the companies was

"The presence among FIFA's choices

criticised

REUTERS, London

Ronaldinho, Ronaldo and Rooney are facing unexpected competition at the World Cup from a global army of scantily-clad Ophelies, Olgas and Neverheard of them? You won't find them on the pitches, but they're making vital contributions in the cut-throat circulation battle waged by the world's non-sports magazines to grab and hold football fansas regular readers.

Flamboyant Hugh Hefner's multimillion-selling Playboy has left nothing to the imagination in their sales push by gathering 14 models from around the world, putting them into skimpy tops and placing them on the front of its

France's Ophelie Marie, Olga Urashova of the Netherlands and Oana Bercaru from Romania are three members of the team as are Estela Pereira of space is dominated by the World Cup. world champions Brazil with Asia

Trinidad and Tobago's World Cup heroes may have lost to England but that did little to dampen celebrations at home over the side's

The "Soca Warriors", as they are known by their fans, kept England at bay until the 83rd minute before going down 2-0 to goals from Peter

In the capital Port-of-Spain.

football fans gathered at popular bars as the match finished, much as they have done throughout their performances in Germany.

Crouch and Steven Gerrard.

team's campaign.

AFP, Port of Spain

A quick glance around the news stands inside Berlin's cavernous Hauptbahnhof central railway station sees the German edition also featuring the girls, except this time, they are even morelightly-clothed. "Playboy created an international editorial team to come up with ideas that would be globally relevant for our international editions," spokeswoman Lauren Melone told AFP.

"In 2002, Playboy Brazil featured a world team with Brazilian models. It was a success both locally and interna-

"Due to the popularity of this pictorial and football globally, the international team thought a pictorial of this nature, including models from around the world shot at the Playboy Mansion in Los Angeles, would make for an exciting and sexy feature for many of our international editions."

But like the 32 teams at the World Cup, the magazine, which claims a worldwide readership of 15 million, facesstiffcompetition.

of the team's performance. "I'm going to wear red tomorrow. We Lisa Ready after the match.

more flags

The mood around the capital played and how England was suffi-still have to show support," said red since Wednesday and as a show of support most of the nation's cars have been decorated with flags since the World Cup started, with some cars now sporting three and which left most people at home, with friends or at bars and other venues to watch the match.

impromptu carnival.

Thursday was a public holiday,

The streets, which were deserted during the match, came alive. St James, an area popular for its many bars was the scene for an focused on how well the "Warriors"

Talk at bars after the match

Trinidadians had been wearing

At the Hauptbahnhof store, shelf Germany," said one Swedish fan.

A sober biography of German likeitifItookithomewithme."

was upbeat, with most fans proud ciently worried to bring on star magazine SFT with 13 pages given over to the new Chelsea star promoting televisions, laptops and all things coach Jurgen Klinsmann lies side-by-Ballackeven dominates technology sidewithskipperMichaelBallack's.

It's a heavy workload, but at least he keeps his clothes on unlike Ukraine's Andriy Shevchenko who is semi-naked with wife Kristen over five pages inside GO, the cover of which is handed over to German goalkeeeper Jens Lehmann dressed in a white suit. Kristen tells GQ: "Sometimes; Sheva' is not assertive" which will worry fans of Chelsea for whom he has just signed. If these publications are too racy, readers can try Spiegel magazine which has a Planet Football special edition while National Geographic's front page headline screams 'Why the world loves football'

Butit's Playboy that the fans seem to preferin Berlin. "I bought the magazine so I can look at the pictures as we go around

But I don't think my wife would Rooney's entrance was seen as a victory by some. "Hey, we've made it to Germany, we've done good already. What more do you want?"

Not everybody was upbeat.

"The last thing I saw was the sad look on Shaka's face," said an ice then rushed to the corner to catch

England can't dampen soca spirit striker Wayne Rooney

one fan asked.

cream vendor.

Rooney relief for English media

REUTERS, hamelin

France could tell you that relying on two of the finest marksmen around is no guarantee you will

Thierry Henry and David

Trezeguet have been nightmares for defenders in England and Italy respectively for years but are not quite as prolific when on interna-

Both have had their moments,

Henry scoring 33 goals from 79 appearances and Trezeguet netting ust one less in 63 caps, but now that their scoring instinct is needed

Both 28, the former world and European champions are at the Only if they live up to the occasion can France, who have not scored a World Cup goal since lifting the trophy eight years ago.

dream of going a long way in the peak of their powers at club level.

most, it seems to have gone miss-score on the World Cup scene.

AFP, London

England's newspapers shrugged off concerns about the national side's lacklustreWorld Cup form on Friday as they celebrated qualification for the 2nd round and Wayne Rooney's return to action. Rooney played only a marginal role in England's late, late 2-0 win over minnows Trinidad and Tobago in Nuremberg on Thursday, but the Manchester United forward still dominated the newspaper head-

"We're thROO," was the headline of choice for sub-editors on the Daily Mirror and Daily Star tabloids, while their rival, The Sun, went for "Nice to See Roo," and headlined its back page coverage with "Smackeroo" above a picture of Rooney embracing fellow

The relief at seeing Rooney back in an England shirt after his rapid recovery from a broken bone in his right foot was summed up The Times, which said the side's "hesitant and uncertain World Cup campaign acquired hope and purpose within a single minute," when the 20-year-old came on as a substitute.

On the inside pages, relief over the result and Rooney's return was offset by large amounts of pessimistic comment about England's chances of going all the way in Germany, an objective the media here had declared within the grasp of Sven-Goran Eriksson's squad before the tournament.

"England are progressing on. through this World Cup with maximum points and minimum panache," noted the Daily Witless England dig their way to late victory," was the headline in the Guardian, with their football the display against T and T will have Eriksson's squad "out of the reckoning so far as most observers are concerned."

the same team and see nothing to pair Djibril Cisse with Henry up front for France's opener until Cisse broke his leg in a warm-up

Henry as a lone striker but could revert to a system with two forwards when France play South Korea in their next match on Sunday in Leipzig. Togo complete

Henry is not Trezeguet but Louis

Saha, who pushed Dutch scoring machine Ruud van Nistelrooy on to the Old Trafford substitutes' bench to put Henry in a position to score.

be the ideal person to do that but he for France 53 times but, in an amazing statistic, not once did Zidane present Henry with the decisive

Otherwise, maybe Henry should

He might start on Sunday.

The key to success for France is Zidane, one would think, would

The two have played together

The favourite to team up with Domenech had been expected

The coach then decided to field wrong with that."

last season.

That view was backed up by The Sun, which commented: "England have to get their act together or they will be going home well before

The Daily Mirror noted that Thursday's match, in which the Caribbean state got within seven minutes of securing a famous point, could "so easily have ended in utter humiliation.'

But the paper underlined that, "World Cups are normally won by teams that build up a momentum after struggling to impress early

With that hope in mind, most of the newspapers expect Rooney to start England's final group game, against Sweden, and there was widespread speculation that Michael Owen could be dropped to

Top spot a must: Ballack

INTERNET, undated

tobacco-free policy

Germany captain Michael Ballack says the host nation wants to finish top of Group A.

Juergen Klinsmann's men are already through to the second round with Ecuador, who they face next Tuesday in a game which will decide first place in the group. After their 3-0 win over Costa Rica on Thursday, Ecuador need only a draw to clinch the premier But with England the team lurking in the knockout phase if they finish top of Group B, Ballack does not want to finish second. "It has always been our goal to win the group," said the Chelsea midfielder. "But Ecuador are in great shape and it showed when they beat Poland. Hopefully we can keep our concentration up.

AP, Washington

What's going on at the World teams, 10 are from EU nations.

"The president follows sports,"

Bush called the US team on Republic. Even though the United Paraguay. Persson planned to keep States got shut out in that game, American team?" Snow said in a response to a reporter who used the phrase. "They've got a big match against Italy coming up. Come on.

"It ain't over 'til it's over," he the crowds that were gathering at one of the popular bars. Trinidad's hopes of reaching

She had watched the match the last 16 knockout stages have not completely vanished however as a win over Paraguay in their last game coupled by a loss for Sweden against England could see them snatch an

World Cup a hit with world leaders

The White House and European leaders are preoccupied with a very grave matter these days.

Televisions at the White House have been tuned to the World Cup, while the British and Swedish prime ministers tried to catch glimpses of the games during a European Union summit Thursday in Brussels, Belgium. Of the 32 World Cup

White House press secretary Tony Snow said. "And obviously, soccer's more popular in other countries than it is in the United States. But it's got a pretty good constituency."

Monday to wish them luck before their first game against the Czech with Sweden's game against Championship final.

Snow rejected the notion they were out of contention before Saturday's match-up with Italy. "Here, wait a minute. Ill-fated British Prime Minister Tony Blair watched the last 10 minutes of England's first half against Trinidad and Tobago on Thursday in a private room before briefly joining the summit's opening session. His official spokesman said the prime minister left the session for the final 35 minutes of the game, which England won 2-0 to advance to the second round.

acknowledged it would be a struggle to concentrate on Thursday's working dinner, which clashed up with the action. Who said that I will attend the dinner?" Persson said coyly, before adding he would dine with the other leaders, but keep tabs on the game through mobile phone text messages. Sweden beat Paraguay 1-0. The EU's midyear summits traditionally clash with the World Cup or soccer's European Championship, prompting leaders to slip away from meetings in search of a television screen. Spanish and German leaders have previously skipped summit sessions to follow crucial games. A 2002 summit in Seville, Spain, was delayed for an hour to allow diplomats to watch Spain lose to South Korea in the World Cup.

In 1992, Denmark's then foreign minister, Uffe Elleman-Jensen, wore a hat and scarf in his Sweden's Goran Persson country's red-and-white colours to a summit in Lisbon, Portugal, to celebrate Denmark's 2-0 victory over Germany in the European Janas has no regrets season on loan at Charlton and had "What I could do, I did. Maybe make lots of changes when I saw some players were not as fit as I'd have liked," Janas told a press

AFP, Warsaw Spector for some time and told the Polish coach Pawel Janas said player we have been tracking for Thursday he had "no regrets" the past 18 months or so. about managing the Poland team 'Having developed as a young his way, despite their early exit player at Manchester United, he arrives with a fantastic pedigree, from the World Cup. "I regret nothand I was also very impressed by ing. I took my decisions and that's his character, which was a big it. What I could do, I did. Of course, factor in bringing him to the club." it was hard for me because I had to conference in Germany, which was broadcast live on Polish news television channel TVN24. Janas controversially left

Liverpool goalkeeper Jerzy Dudek and forward Tomasz Frankowski out of the side, which went on to have a miserable and very brief World Cup,

"Of course I made mistakes. Only people who do nothing make no mistakes," Janas, who has been lambasted in the press and by fans back in Poland, said.

someone could have done better but, sorry, I did it my way." A slack Poland lost its opening match to Ecuador 2-0 last week, and then the side went down to Germany 1-0 in its second match Wednesday, despite putting up a good fight. "I like working with the team and I would like to continue working with it and qualify for the Europeans. But it is not my decision to make," Janas said before packing his bags to head back to Poland with the team.