Da Vinci's Lost Code

Books

On Discovery Channel, August 13 at

Da Vinci's Lost Code examines the previously unidentified Leonardo Da Vinci's painting--The infants Christ and St John Embracing. Bought for $ 2000 some 30 years ago, it has been in private hands for centuries. The two world's leading experts have identified it as being Leonardo's design and painted in his studio. Viewers witness detailed scientific tests to discover the extent of his involvement.

Under the watchful eye of his mentor

Captain Mike Kennedy (Travolta), probationary firefighter Jack Morrison (Phoenix) matures into a seasoned veteran at a Baltimore fire station. Jack has reached a crossroads, however, as the sacrifices he has made have put him in harm's way innumerable times and significantly impacted his relationship with his wife and kids. Responding to the worst blaze in his career, he becomes trapped inside a 20-storey building. And as he reflects on his life, Assistant Chief Kennedy frantically coordinates the effort to save him.

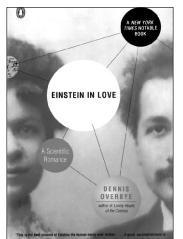

Discovery Spotlight World's Deepest Goldmine On Discovery Channel, August 11 at 9:30 pm

World's Deepest Goldmine is about Anglo Gold, the world's largest gold producer. Discovery Spotlight takes viewers into the ultra-deep mine, with subterranea railway junctions. Electricity substations, and vast drums of winding gear which create logistical nightmares that Ango Gold's engineers seem to relish. The programme not only goes inside the world's deepest mine, but also into an industry infamous for pushing the bounds of human endeavour and meets the miners whose daily work takes them to one of the most dangerous environments on the earthall to satisfy the worldwide obsession with gold

The Nature of Music Beauty Sound and Healing Maureen McCarthy Draper Price: Tk 1150

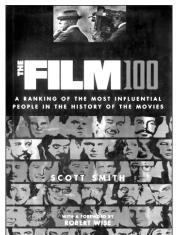

Are we so different, when a few minutes of Bach, Mozart, or Beethoven can bring us back into balance and reestablish our sense of the essential goodness of life? We may not understand what comes over us, why our body relaxes or why our heart melts at the sound of a certain melody or chord change. But when music puts us in harmony with our deepest nature we feel more authentic, more fluid and responsive. This field guide shows us how we can harness that power to help us cope with grief, give dimension to the mysteries of beauty and faith, aid us in recovery from illness and so on.

Einstein in Love, Dennis Overbye Price: Tk 1350

Einstein in Love, by acclaimed science writer Dennis Overbye, is a fascinating portrait of Einstein during his little-explored early years. It was a period when the young scientist was in love -- with physics and with his brilliant, tormented first wife, Mileva -- but distracted himself from his failing marriage with a series of affairs. As Einstein developed his world-shaking Theory of Relativity, he and Mileva loved, fought, and spent their pillow talks discussing quantum Physics. Overbye reveals Einstein to be very much a young man of his time -- draft dodger, selfstyled bohemian, poet, violinist, and a cocky, charismatic genius who left personal and professional chaos in his wake.

The Nobel Prizes, Burton Feldman

Price: Tk 2495

The prizes present themselves as if handed down from eternity. In the sciences, a number of quarrels, scandals, and even law-suits have erupted over claims to priority or credit for collaborations honoured by Nobels. And while widely admired, the science prizes have also been charged with swaying research goals and funding, however inadvertently, and more insidiously with corrupting scientific ambitions by the lure of Nobel fame. Such controversies, together with public dissent from several prizes, have been part of the Nobel history since its beginning. All prizes stir argument; the Nobel's fame simply magnifies this hugely

Determining landlessness

Price: Tk. 400 Studies on the 'landless' and of 'landlessness' in Bangladesh have been carried out mostly by the economists, sociologist and the anthropologists but seldom by a geographer. This book is a geographical analysis of landlessness -- a micro level in-depth study where dynamics of rural landlessness has been investigated at the household level under varied ecological conditions. Synthesizing empirical findings and secondary information the study attempts a causal explanation of connections and interrelations
