Grameen Bank helps 38 lakh break out of poverty line

JASIM UDDIN KHAN

Around 66.01 lakh people, 96 percent of them are women, have so far received Grameen Bank microcredit. contributing to poverty reduction and women empowerment in Bangladesh.

According to the latest data available from Bangladesh Economic Review, around 58 percent or some 38 lakh of the total loan recipients have been able to break out of poverty line until February 2006.

The Grameen Bank, which started its journey in 1976 as a pilot project, aimed to bring financial services to the poor, particularly women and the poorest, to help them fight poverty, stay profitable and financially sound. Grameen Bank started with the belief that credit should be accepted as a human right, and built a system where one who does not possess anything gets the highest priority in getting a

Grameen Bank and its founder Professor Muhammad Yunus yesterday received the highest recognition when they won this year's the Nobel Peace

"Lasting peace cannot be achieved unless large population groups find ways in which to break out of poverty. Microcredit is one such means," the Nobel Committee said in its citation.

Grameen Bank works to raise the status of poor women in their families by giving them ownership of assets. It makes sure that the ownership of the houses built with Grameen Bank loans remain with the borrowers, the women.

The bank of the poor started its operations from a remote village of Zobra, 26 kilometres from Chittagong city. The bank's operation now spreads over 71 thousand villages across the country with 2,226 branches, according to the bank's website.

The bank has so far distributed Tk 29,000 crore loan with a 98.45 percent recovery rate, setting an example of unique success in banking without collateral requirement.

Professor Yunus, while teaching economics at Chittagong University, conceived the idea of introducina microcredit.

Grameen Bank has changed the conventional banking practice by removing the need for collateral and created a banking system based on mutual trust, accountability, participation and creativity. At Grameen Bank, credit is a cost effective weapon to fight poverty and it serves as a catalyst in the over all development of socio-economic conditions of the poor who have been kept outside the banking facilities on the grounds that they are poor and hence not bankable that if financial resources can be made available to the poor people on terms and conditions that are reasonable, the poor can create the biggest development

Repayment of Grameen loans is also made very easy by splitting the loan amount in tiny weekly instalments.

Grameen Bank methodology is almost the reverse of the conventional banking methodology. Conventional banking is based on the principle that the more you have, the more you can get. In other words, if you have little or nothing, you get nothing. As a result, more than half the population of the world is deprived of the financial services of the conventional banks. Conventional banking is based on collateral. Grameen system is collateral-

Grameen Bank branches are located in rural areas, unlike the branches of conventional banks, which try to locate themselves as close as possible to the business districts and urban centres.

First principle of Grameen banking is that clients should not go to the bank, it is the bank which should go to the people instead. Doing business this way means a lot of work for the bank, but it is a lot convenient for the borrowers Grameen system pays a lot of attention to monitoring the education of the children, housing, sanitation and access to clean drinking water. Grameen system helps the borrowers to build their own pension funds, and other types of savings. In Grameen Bank even a beggar gets special attention. A beggar comes under a campaign from Grameen Bank, which is designed to persuade a beggar to join Grameen programme.

Grameen system encourages the borrowers to adopt some goals in social, educational and health areas. These are knows as "Sixteen Decisions" -, which include no dowry, education for children, sanitary latrine, planting trees, eating vegetables to combat night-blindness among children, and arranging clean largest gold, copper reserves in Pakistan

World's fifth

XINHUA, Islamabad

The world's fifth largest reserves of gold and copper were discovered in Chaghi area in Pakistan's southwest Balochistan province, local newspaper The News reported

Director General of Provincial Department of Mineralogy Maqbool Ahmed said that two multinationals, Canadian and Chilean-firms, which were issued licences 10 years earlier for exploration of gold in the Bekodik area, have completed the exploration work and have chalked out a project for the extraction of gold and copper.

In the preliminary stage, the two companies will invest a billion US dollars in the project, Ahmed said.

According to Ahmed, 200,000 tons of copper and 400,000 ounce of gold will be produced annually through the said project.

The Balochistan government will get a share of 25 percent. With the start of the project, employment will be provided to 3,000 youth of the province.

According to Ahmed, there are gold reserve in Zhob and Lasbela districts of the province and nine multinationals have been issued licences for their exploration.

However, the opposition parties in the province expressing their reservations charged that federal government wishes to loot the resources of the province

Russia may end WTO talks with US in 2 weeks

The dollar strengthened broadly on Friday after upward revisions to US job growth data helped ease worries about a slowing US economy and pushed US bond yields higher. The dollar was up more than 1.0 percent against the yen and poised for its biggest daily rise in around 21 months. The week began as the yen fell to an eight-month low against the dollar on Monday after North Korea said it had successfully conducted an underground nuclear test. The euro climbed as and headed towards last week's one-month high against the yen but still some way off August's record high. The euro held steady on the day against the dollar, after hitting a 2-1/2 month low on Friday after the US non-farm payrolls.

In the middle of the week, the yen hit an 8-month low against the dollar on Tuesday as jitters lingered over North Korea's nuclear test, while the greenback was seen building support with focus on the US rate outlook The yen was already under pressure due to its ultra-low interest rates. The dollar was up 0.2 percent at against the yen while the euro was remained, in sight of the record high struck in August. The dollar hit a 5-1/2 month peak versus the Swiss franc and neared a 2006 high against the yen on Wednesday, as markets awaited minutes from the US Federal Reserve's September meeting for clues on the interest rate outlook. The dollar had risen close to a 10-month high, before coming back down. The dollar had risen to its highest level since April. The euro was steady against the yen, off its record high set in August.

At the end of the week, the dollar fell from this week's 2-1/2 month high against an index of currencies on Thursday, erasing gains made after minutes from the Federal Reserve's last policy meeting dented expectations for an interest rate cut. Wednesday's release of the minutes to the Fed's September meeting were hawkish, with policymakers remaining "quite concerned" about inflation risks and renewed their commitment to control inflation pressures. The euro was up a quarter percent on the day against the dollar, having fallen to a 2-1/2 month low on Wednesday. The dollar was down 0.2 percent at against the yen, having hit a 10-month high of on Wednesday. The euro was steady against the yen, nearly one yen off the record high set in August. The Australian dollar was the biggest gainer, rising 0.8 percent following domestic jobs data that easily beat forecasts and boosted expectations the Australian central bank could raise interest rates again later this year.

Pakistan posts $3.16b trade deficit in Q1

XINHUA, Islamabad

Pakistan posted 3.16 billion US dollars trade deficit in the first quarter (July-September) of the current fiscal year, up 31.7 percent from last year's deficit of 2.4 billion dollars for the same period, local newspaper

Daily Times reported Friday. The government has set an export target of 18.6 billion dollars and an import target of 28 billion dollars to limit the trade deficit to 9.4 billion dollars in 2006-07.

According to data released by the Federal Bureau of Statistics (FBS), the country's exports stood at 4.27 billion dollars between July and September this year, up by 2.88 percent from last year's exports of 4.15 billion dollars. The current year's imports for the period amounted to 7.43 billion dollars, which is 13.38 percent more than last year's imports of 6.55 billion dollars.

Exports for September 2006 totaled 1.42 billion dollars, down 4.53 percent from last year's exports 1.48 billion dollars for the same

Imports for September 2006 stood at 2.32 billion dollars as compared to last year's imports of 2.44 billion dollars, an increase of 5.22 percent.

Unemployment in Australia at 30-year low

AFP, Sydney

Australia's jobless rate slipped back to a 30-year low of 4.8 per cent in September, official data showed Thursday.

The tight jobs market confirmed Australian Reserve Bank governor Glenn Stevens' warning late Wednesday that the economy faced continuing inflationary pressures, heightening expectations of an interest rate hike next month. The Australian Bureau of Statistics said that on a seasonally adjusted basis the number of people employed rose 31,400 to 10.29 million in September compared with consensus forecasts of a 33,000

Unemployment had decreased slightly since August but remained at a rounded estimate of 4.8 percent, the bureau said.
