DeIPHE ANNOUNCEMENT

The UK Government's Department for International Development (DFID) is investing in new Development Partnerships in Higher Education (DeIPHE), which will run until March 2013.

The programme will provide funding for partnerships between Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) working on collaborative activity linked to development goals. All partnerships must demonstrate a commitment to the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs).

Institutions which partner up will work on initiatives for skills development, knowledge sharing, problem solving research and other activities and addressing core areas such as health, education, gender equality. DeIPHE will also encourage projects aiming to promote science and technology in Africa and Asia.

Applications are invited from Higher Education Institutions in Bangladesh. Application forms, Guidance notes, Selection criteria, Funding guidelines and detailed information are available at: <http://www.britishcouncil.org/learning-delphe.html>

Please note that Private Universities are eligible, but the lead partner must be a Public University from one of the 25 DFID bilateral focus countries.
