Number of passengers on Middle-East, other Asian routes falls by 85-90pc, on European, US routes by 55-60pc

RASHIDUL HASAN
The aviation industry is suffering a massive blow in the aftermath of coronavirus outbreak as the number of outgoing and incoming air passengers from Dhaka has already taken a tumble, officials said. The number of those flying to different destinations in Asian countries, including many Middle Eastern ones, dropped by 85 to 90 percent last month compared to the usual time, said sources in the Association of Travel Agents of Bangladesh (ATAB), Tour Operators Association of Bangladesh (TOAB), Biman Bangladesh Airlines and Civil Aviation Authority of Bangladesh (CAAB). There has been a 90-95 percent decline in the number of flyers travelling to Singapore, Bangkok, Malaysia, and Vietnam, SN Manzur Murshed, immediate-past president of ATAB, told The Daily Star yesterday. WHO issues highest alert

S Korea reports biggest jump in cases; Bangladeshi students evacuated from Wuhan tested negative in India

AGENCIES
South Korea reported its biggest surge in new coronavirus cases yesterday as concerns grew of a possible epidemic in the United States and the World Health Organization raised its risk alert to its highest level. The virus has rapidly spread across the world in the past week, causing stock markets to sink to their lowest levels since the 2008 global financial crisis over fears that the disease could wreak havoc on the world economy. More than 2,900 people have died and over 85,000 have been infected worldwide since it was first detected in the central Chinese city of Wuhan late last year. The vast majority of infections have been in China but more daily cases are now logged outside the country.

ACADEMIC BOOKS ON SHELVES BCS guides on tables

Job seekers crowd DU libraries, which see 61pc decline in books issued in last 10 years

ASIFUR RAHMAN
It's an everyday scene on the Dhaka University campus. With the first light of day still more than an hour away, DU students, mainly those willing to sit for recruitment tests for BCS and other government jobs, start gathering in front of the Central Library gate from 5:00am. They use their bags, a book or two, or even a newspaper page to secure a spot in the seemingly never-ending queues there. The library actually opens at 8:00am. Over the years, the number of those going to the library has increased, but there has been a sharp decline in the number of books issued. The situation in nearby Science Library on the campus and other libraries elsewhere in the city is similar. Most of the library goers appear to be government jobseekers and they bring their own study materials, including guides and notebooks. According to DU statistics, the number of books issued by the two university libraries has declined by 61 percent in the last 10 years. Data shows that the two libraries issued 9,15,425 books to DU teachers and students in 2008-09 academic session. This comes to an average of around 2,500 books a day. In 2017-18, the total number stood at 3,52,310 -- an average of only 965 books a day. Students and teachers also downloaded 4,86,991 full-text e-journal articles from the DU libraries' website. The total number of printed and e-books that academic year is still less than the number of printed books issued in 2008-09. Although no formal research was found in the case of the libraries in
