AMPHAN-HIT SUNDARBANS Damage 3 times worse than Bulbul's

DIPANKAR ROY, Khulna

The lush green banks of the Shibsra river winding through the Sundarbans, once outlined by the beautiful keora and golpata trees, have turned all grey and pale yellow.

The devastation of the world's largest mangrove forest by the super cyclone Amphan became increasingly visible as the boat carrying this correspondent sailed a few kilometres down the Shibsra in the Khulna Range of West Sundarbans on May 29.

It looked like a graveyard of trees, many uprooted, broken, and leafless, blown and smashed into the forest floor. Even the gewa trees, that grow away from the shore, are standing like skeletons.

According to the Forest Department, Amphan's damage to the Sundarbans on May 20 is three times bigger than that of cyclone Bulbul's on November 10 last year.

During Amphan, around 12,358 forest trees have been broken and uprooted. The damage to the forest department's infrastructure is assessed at Tk 2.15 crore.

In comparison, cyclone Bulbul damaged 4,589 trees in the Sundarbans and infrastructure worth Tk 62.85 lakh.

After the cyclone, the Forest Department formed four committees based on the four ranges of the Sundarbans to assess the damage.

A compilation of the reports submitted by the committees to the Conservator of Forests in the Khulna region, showed around 12,332 trees have been broken and uprooted by Amphan in Khulna and Sakhira ranges of

Asymptomatic transmission 'very rare'

Says WHO; experts raise questions

REUTERS, London

Disease experts yesterday questioned a statement by the World Health Organization that transmission of Covid-19 by people with no symptoms is "very rare", saying this guidance could pose problems for governments as they seek to lift lockdowns.

Maria van Kerkhove, an epidemiologist and the WHO's technical lead on the coronavirus pandemic, said on Monday that many countries undertaking contact tracing had identified asymptomatic cases, but were not finding they caused further spread of the virus. "It is very rare," she said.

"I was quite surprised by the WHO statement," said Liam Smeeth, a professor of clinical epidemiology at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, who added that he had not seen the data Kerkhove's statement was based on.

Less experienced drivers to drive heavies

TUHIN SHUBHRA ADHIKARY

The government yesterday extended the relaxation of the requirement to obtain driving licences to operate heavy vehicles by one more year to June 2021, following the demand of transport leaders.

Road Transport and Bridges Ministry issued a circular in this regard yesterday. Bangladesh Road Transport Authority had sent the proposal to the ministry on June 4 for approval, officials said.

Under the original rules, a driver had to have three years' experience with a light-vehicle licence to apply for a licence to drive medium-sized vehicles, and only after three more years of holding the latter licence could the driver apply for a heavy-vehicle licence, which includes for buses and trucks.

The minimum requirement of six years to graduate from light to heavy vehicles has in less than two years shrunk to three years, with the intermediary step of driving the medium-sized vehicle removed in February this year, to remain in effect till June. It is this relaxation that has been extended till June 2021.

"On Thursday, we sent the proposal to extend the deadline," Lokman Hossain Mollah, director (engineering) of BRTA said.

Replying to a question, he said, "Yes, transport owners and workers have demanded an extension."

Moscow emerges from lockdown

WHO warns of 'worsening' global crisis

AFP, Moscow

Moscow emerged from a strict coronavirus lockdown yesterday despite Russia seeing thousands of new cases every day, as the World Health Organization warned the pandemic was "worsening" worldwide.

Muscovites flocked to streets and parks after authorities in the Russian capital lifted restrictions in place since March 30, even as the country registered 8,595 new cases and its total death toll surpassed 6,000.

Walking in central Moscow under sunny skies, 33-year-old marketing manager Olga Ivanova said that after weeks stuck at home it felt good to have her city back.

"It's nice out and there are a lot of people on the streets. It's a beautiful day, in every sense of the word," she said.

With more than 485,000 cases as of yesterday, Russia has the third-highest number of confirmed infections after the United States and Brazil.

Officials say the high number is the result of a huge testing campaign, with more than 13 million tests carried out so far, and point to Russia's relatively low mortality rate as evidence it is safe to ease lockdowns.

Critics have accused authorities of under-reporting deaths and say officials are rushing to lift restrictions for political
