Some beds lie empty in Rajshahi city while some districts in the division got none for Covid-19 patients

ANWAR ALI, Rajshahi

When Hafizur Rahman was admitted to the General Hospital in Pabna with coronavirus-like symptoms on Friday afternoon in rapidly deteriorating condition, access to an oxygen cylinder was his only hope as there was no ICU support in the district.

The 47-year-old needed an ICU as he had visible symptoms of acute respiratory distress and high fever, said Dr Abul Hossain, assistant director of the hospital.

Doctors soon advised he be taken to Rajshahi city.

"He had been gasping for air. We put him on oxygen, but his condition was still deteriorating. He urgently needed a ventilator in an ICU, but we had none," said Dr Hossain.

An ICU equipped with ventilators is available nowhere in Pabna district, he added.

Hafizur, a 47-year secretary of Ataikula Union Parishad, had no other option but to embark on an uncertain journey of more than 100km to Rajshahi Medical College Hospital (RMCH).

When he reached RMCH at 10:00pm on Friday, he was put on oxygen once again. An hour later, when his condition wasn't improving, the doctors decided to take him to the ICU.

He died on the stretcher while being taken to the ICU, said doctors and his relatives.

S Korea battles second wave

Americas report record daily case increase

AGENCIES

South Korea said for the first time it is in the midst of a "second wave" of coronavirus infections as World Health Organization (WHO) reported a record increase in global cases, with the total rising by 183,020 in a 24-hour period.

The biggest increase, of more than 116,000, was from North and South America, WHO said in a daily report. Total global cases have passed 8.9 million with more than 468,000 deaths, it added.

The Korea Centres for Disease Control and Prevention (KCDC) had previously said South Korea's first wave had never really ended.

But KCDC director Jeong Eun-kyeong yesterday said it had become clear that a holiday weekend in early May marked the beginning of a new wave of infections focused in the greater Seoul area, which had previously seen few cases.

Seoul Mayor Park Won-soon told a briefing that while daily numbers may be at manageable levels, if recent infection rates continued the city could soon see hundreds of cases a day.

As of midnight Sunday, South Korea reported 17 new coronavirus cases, the first time in nearly a month. The country has reported a total of 12,438 cases, with 280 deaths.

Cases around the world are rising especially in Latin America with Brazil now registering over 50,000 deaths. There are also fears of a second wave with Australians being warned against travelling to Melbourne.

Brazil falls into that bracket with President Jair Bolsonaro comparing the virus to a "little flu" and arguing
