US PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION 2020 Joe Biden picks Kamala Harris as running mate

The senator is first black woman and Indian-origin American to be a vice-president candidate

AFP, Washington

US presidential hopeful Joe Biden named Senator Kamala Harris, a former rival in the White House race, as his running mate Tuesday, marking a historic first for American women of colour.

Biden's announcement capped a months-long search for a Democratic partner to challenge President Donald Trump in November.

Harris, who would become America's first female and first black vice president if elected, is a "fearless fighter for the little guy, and one of the country's finest public servants," Biden, 77, said in revealing his running mate.

"I'm proud now to have her as my partner in this campaign."

The decision, announced in typical 2020 style on social media, was a crucial moment for Biden as he aims to build a broad coalition of voters to oust Trump from the White House.

Harris, who at 55 is two decades Biden's junior, could appeal to younger voters and women, particularly those in the suburbs who have been fleeing Trump.

The former California attorney general is also the first

5 'members of Neo-JMB cell' arrested

They 'planned to carry out attacks in three districts before Eid

MOHAMMAD JAMIL KHAN

They planned to draw the attention of the Islamic State by carrying out several explosive attacks ahead of the Eid-ul-Adha.

The IS-inspired militant outfit Neo-JMB formed a 10-member cell three months ago and plotted four bomb attacks in three districts, including one at Hazrat Shahjalal shrine in Sylhet.

They even developed a manual for making an Improvised Explosive Device (IED).

This time only one member was supposed to take part in a single attack.

But all the plans were foiled due to increased vigilance of the Counter-Terrorism and Transnational Crime (CTTC) unit.

CTTC chief Monirul Islam yesterday came up with these remarks following the arrests of five members of the Neo JMB

Denied admission by clinic, she gave birth at roadside

Two probe bodies formed

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Bogura

A woman was forced to give birth on the roadside after being denied admission by the Gaibandha Mother and Children Welfare Center around 1:00am early yesterday.

The mother, Jemi Akter, wife of Hiru Mia of Saghata upazila, delivered a baby girl on a veranda of a roadside shop on DB road in Gaibandha town.

Speaking to local journalists, Jemi's family said, "We took her to the welfare centre last night after her labour pain began. But the Family Welfare Visitor Salina Akter did not admit her even after we requested repeatedly. Without carrying out any tests or anything, they asked us to get out of the hospital."

They further alleged that the hospital authorities verbally and physically abused them to make them leave.

"Later, when we were taking Jemi to the Sadar Hospital, her baby started coming, so we stopped on the road and took her to a roadside shop," they said.

Contacted, Md Saiful Islam, deputy director of Gaibandha's Family Planning Office, said, "Two separate three-membered bodies have been formed

BHUTTO'S DECISION A VIOLATION OF SIMLA

Pakistan President Bhutto's decision not to recognise Bangladesh at this stage is seen by India as a violation of an understanding at Simla. Indian officials also criticise Bhutto's attempt to secure a Chinese promise to veto Bangladesh's admission into the United Nations.

A report on Sunday Times says the Bangladesh prime minister is 'apparently undisturbed' by the threat of Chinese veto of Bangladesh's application for membership of the UN.

Over 54 lakh people have so far been affected by flood in 161 upazilas of 33 districts across the country, says the latest report of the National Disaster Response Coordination Centre.

VIOLENCE OVER FB POST 3 dead as cops, protesters clash in Bengaluru

110 held; politician's house, vehicles torched

REUTERS, Bengaluru

At least three people died in clashes with police in the Indian city of Bengaluru on Tuesday night after a Facebook post offensive to Muslims sparked protests in which a police station was attacked, and a politician's house and vehicles were torched.

Unable to quell protesters using batons and tear gas, besieged officers opened fire as they risked being overpowered during the violent unrest in a Muslim-dominated neighborhood, the southern city's police chief told Reuters yesterday.

"Despite elders of the community trying to pacify the crowd, the mob burnt vehicles on the road, they attacked the police station," Police Commissioner Kamal Pant said.

"The police had no escape and they had to resort to firing and three people died," Pant said, adding that 110 people had been arrested for alleged vandalism and attacking the police.

A police official said an emergency law prohibiting gatherings had been imposed in Bengaluru, a city of 12 million people best known as India's Silicon Valley.

Pant said the person responsible for the offensive post had been arrested. The anti-Islam post has since been deleted. Facebook did not immediately comment on the issue.
