Ex-Kafco boss in tight spot

Allegations over recruitment, CSR fund use surround him

MOHAMMAD SUMAN

The immediate past chairman of Karnaphuli Fertilizer Company (Kafco) created a post called consultant (HR) with the monthly salary of Tk 4.5 lakh just before leaving and appointed a retired joint secretary to it.

Md Abdul Halim, also a former secretary of the industries ministry, served as the chairman from August 2018 to May this year.

He created the post without any approval in a board meeting or by circular and hired retired joint secretary Kaisarul Islam for the position in February under a one-year contract, according to Kafco officials.

Both the ex-chairman and Kaisarul are from Bakerganj upazila of Barisal, they said.

There is also an allegation against Halim of misusing CSR funds for his upazila.

The Bangladesh government has 43 percent ownership of Kafco, a multinational fertiliser factory, and the rest 57 percent is owned by several countries, including Japan, Denmark, and the Netherlands.

As the government has the highest share, the industries ministry secretary serves the Kafco as its company chairman.

Talking to The Daily Star on August 29, Abdul Halim said the post was created as per the decision of multiple board meetings. "A proposal came from the board meeting to appoint Kaisarul Islam since he is qualified. I have approved it as per the decision of the board meeting."

Asked about the logic behind Tk 4.5 lakh in salary per month, he said, "Kafco's salary structure is different than

BORDER TENSIONS

Foreign ministers of India, China meet in Moscow

AGENCIES

Indian External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar yesterday held talks with his Chinese counterpart Wang Yi in an attempt to defuse tension after a spike in hostilities along the Line of Actual Control (LAC), the de facto border between the two nations.

The foreign ministers are in Moscow to attend a Shanghai Cooperation Organisation (SCO) meeting. They met at a Russia-India-China lunch earlier.

No details of the outcome of the talks came out till filing of the report.

The Jaishankar-Wang talks took place against the backdrop of a fresh stand-off at the southern bank of Pangong Tso on Monday, when Chinese soldiers armed with spears and rifles tried to approach Indian forward posts, allegedly to try and force a physical fight on the lines of the June 14 clash at Galwan Valley, in which 20 Indian soldiers died for the country. In the confrontation, shots were fired for the first time along the LAC in 45 years.

India said Chinese soldiers, forced to retreat, fired shots in the air. China claimed that Indian soldiers had fired warning shots after "crossing the LAC",

FREE EDUCATION UP TO CLASS VIII FOR GIRLS

Bangladesh Minister for Education and Culture Professor Yusuf Ali announces today that education for female students up to class VIII would be made free from the coming academic year. Highlighting the basic principle of future education policy, the minister says that the government is going to adopt a new education policy which would help inculcate patriotism and eliminate class or group interest, parochialism and exploitation of man by man.

The minister stresses that the framers of the education policy have been instructed to place special emphasis on technical and vocational education. This would maximise job opportunities for educated young men and would ensure proper and quick utilisation of the country's natural and economic resources.

Scientists develop 'light tweezers' that can move DNA

INDEPENDENT.CO.UK

Scientists have created what they claim is the first-ever "opto-thermo-electrohydrodynamic tweezers" - laser tweezers that can be used to move single proteins.

These tiny tweezers make it easier for researchers to better understand our DNA and other biological molecules, the researchers at Vanderbilt University in Tennessee said.

Laser tweezers are able to move tiny objects, but still have limitations.

Generally, optical tweezers can only focus their lasers to approximately half their wavelength.

BREXIT CHAOS EU ponders legal action against UK

REUTERS, London/Brussels

Britain and the European Union held emergency talks yesterday over Prime Minister Boris Johnson's plan to undercut parts of the Brexit divorce treaty, with Brussels exploring possible legal action against London.

As Britain pushes ahead with its plan to act outside international law by breaching the divorce treaty, EU negotiators are trying to gauge how to deal with London.

European Commission Vice President Maros Sefcovic expressed concern about the plan before a meeting with British counterpart Michael Gove in London, taking place alongside trade talks between chief negotiators Michel Barnier and David Frost.

EU diplomats and officials said the bloc could use the Withdrawal Agreement to take legal action against Britain, though there would be no resolution before the end-of-year deadline for Britain's full exit.

One EU source said Britain would not succeed if it aims to try to use the planned breach of the Withdrawal Agreement as a threat to extract concessions from the bloc in trade talks.

"If they try to do that, it will fail," the EU source said on condition of anonymity.

A note distributed by the EU executive to the 27 EU member states said the Withdrawal Agreement gives the bloc up to four years to launch a legal procedure against Britain, if it violates EU rules during a transition period this year.

The British government says its planned law, put forward on Wednesday, clarifies ambiguities in the Withdrawal Agreement, and its main priority is the 1998 Northern Irish peace deal that ended decades of violence. It said the bill would be debated on Monday.
