Barind orange shows hope

SHYKH SERAJ

It was mid-October this year and a bright sunny morning. I was travelling through the Barind area on Rajshahi-Chapainawabganj highway along the Mahananda river to reach the orchard of one of the most progressive farmers of the Barind region. Fields after fields of green grains. It was as if someone had placed a green carpet on the ground. Aman is cultivated in the fields at this time of Sharat (autumn). Again, some fields are full of early Rabi crops. Twelve years back, Barind was not as green like today. Barind means barren land, barren hard soil, and barren fields. But history says that the name 'Barendra' comes from 'Indra's land of blessings.' Long ago this region over the years, the soil of Barind lost its organic attributes. Another reason There was no other crop except the

But as the water level went down, shortage of crop diversity was evident. Although the Barind has changed due to efforts from government and nongovernment organizations, there are still many areas where agriculture is still troubled due to lack of enough

I arrived at Matiur Rahman's fruit orchard in Jamtara village in Chapainawabganj. I came here a few years back. He's more known for his malta, but he also does guava, orange and many other diversified fruits. I went there this time especially to see Matiur's success on his 16 bigha orange orchard. He has cultivated three varieties of oranges. Once we knew that oranges are cultivated in was fertile, rich in fruits and crops. But hilly lands. But with the invention of new varieties, there is no longer a seasonal constraint. You probably for the soil to become dry was the would recall Rafiqul's orange orchard Farakka barrage. The people of this located in Jhenaidah's Maheshpur. region could produce only one crop. Let me again remind you that, Matiur was a truck driver of the Roads and Aman rice. Mango did not become a Highways Department. He could cash crop back then as it is now. As a have easily carried on with his job, result, hunger and scarcity engulfed but he fell in love with nature and Matiur while walking in his orchard. "I started off with a leased land of seven bighas when you first came to my orchard. I gradually increased the farming area to 61 bighas," said Matiur. "My orchard now has increased to 70 bighas and I hope to do even better in the future; You know what, today I have my own 15 bighas of land," gladly said the successful agroentrepreneur. Each of the orange trees in Matiur's orchard is full of oranges. According to statistics, in the 2017-2018 fiscal year, Bangladesh imported 1,17,170 tonnes of orange and malta. Per tonne, the price was Tk 93,000 (USD 1098). And the total amount method. that was spent was Tk 1,088 crore (USD 1285 million). The total import of orange and malta during the previous fiscal year (2018-2019) was 1,02,100 tonnes. In other words, there is a demand for oranges worth around Tk 1,500 crore (USD 1800 million) in our country. Matiur attempts to cultivate 100 percent organic fruits and crops. In the orchard, therefore, various arrangements of integrated pest management, for example, colour charts, sex pheromone traps are already installed. Matiur still faces some problem with pest management and also looks forward to the bagging forward to earning this year?" I asked "No less than Tk 4 lakh this year, but next year the profit would be even more," he gladly replied. I also saw some female Santal labourers who looked quite happy working at Matiur's orchard. It was great talking to them. They are well Matiur hasn't only worked on orange farming, he is industriously working on orange saplings and thus he could make improved varieties. He also has his nursery for selling saplings and seeds of various fruits and is earning very well from his nursery project. Matiur is pretty successful in his family life as well. He has the most cooperating wife, a son and a daughter. His son Nahid obtained his degree in Computer Engineering and now has a store of agricultural tools in Chapainawabganj. His daughter, Mitu recently completed her studies in Statistics from Jagannath University. Her dreams revolve around the farming sector and she wishes to become a successful agricultural entrepreneur, just like her father.

Agriculture has changed Matiur's life. It's not just that he has enriched but he has helped others becoming enriched too. Many have found employment at his orchard and nursery. He has inspired many farmers and those who want to become real entrepreneurs. He has received many honours from government and nongovernment organizations for his contribution to the development of farming in the country and for his brilliant agricultural initiatives.

Diversified fruit cultivation is changing in the hands of enterprising farmers of Bangladesh. The farming scenario of Barind is also changing with the help of farmers, young and big entrepreneurs, keeping the objective of commercial farming in "How much are you looking mind. Loving the soil and fruits, they are setting example of diversified success in agriculture. After guava, mango, dragon fruit and malta, orange production has started in Matiur's orchard and it is gradually spreading across the Barind region. The massive production of oranges in the soil of the Barind shows the immense potential of the fruit. I satisfied with their employment. strongly believe that we can come out of the import-dependence of fruits through the assistance of enterprising farmers like Matiur and also sure that Bangladesh will go a long way towards sustainable development.

Special classes likely from next month

Bangladesh in the winter.

"If the situation improves in the next few weeks, we will try to reopen classes for candidates on a limited scale," she said. About two million students are scheduled to sit for next year's Secondary School Certificate and equivalent exams in February and another 1.3 million students are expected to sit for the Higher Secondary Certificate and equivalent exams slated for April 2021. While elaborating on the plan, Dipu Moni said they are planning to bring class-10 students, who are set to sit for the SSC exams, and class-12 students, who will appear for HSC exams, back to schools and colleges. They will be divided into several groups and will receive lessons spread over several classrooms. When asked about the possible deferment of the 2021 SSC exams, Dipu said she was hoping that it would not be needed, but everything depended on the Covid-19 situation. She said all SSC and HSC candidates would have to go through a qualifying test at schools to appear in public risk.'

On March 17, the government closed the schools to contain the spread of Covid-19. Educational activities of about four crore students are being hampered due to the crisis.

This year's HSC, Primary Education

Completion and its equivalent exams and Junior School Certificate and its equivalent exams were cancelled. In place of HSC exams, candidates would be evaluated based on their results in Junior School Certificate (JSC), Secondary School Certificate (SSC) and their equivalent tests. More than one crore students of classes six to nine will be promoted to the next classes this year without any annual examinations, the government announced. Instead, school authorities will give assignments to students so that they can achieve the minimum learning About the textbook distribution ceremony, she said, "The festival is important but it will not be wise to hold such festivals that could create a health

She added that all books would be ready by January 1 and the government is looking at alternative ways to get books to the students.

National Curriculum and Textbook Board (NCTB) Chairman Prof Narayan Chandra Saha told this newspaper that they will distribute 34.36 crore textbooks among 4.16 crore students.

Of them, about 24 crore books will be distributed among secondary students and the rest among primary students

Dipu Moni urged educational institution authorities to refrain from taking unnecessary fees from guardians during the closure of the institutions. She also said the government will issue a directive regarding tuition fee realisation.

She said while many universities may be saying that they would take admission tests but all have to keep the safety of students in mind.

"What situation will arise if all universities take admission tests like they did before; [instead] combined admission tests should be considered to ensure safety of all students."

Trump, Biden zero in on Florida

"But what I can promise you is this: We'll start on Day 1 by doing the right thing. We'll let science guide our decisions."

Tomorrow, Biden is to get some star power when he is joined on the stump in Michigan by Barack Obama, whom he served as vice president. It will be their first joint in-person appearance of the 2020 race, though Obama has been delivering strategically timed broadsides at Trump throughout.

Trump, by contrast, is finishing his campaign in an extreme test of endurance, with a final attempt to catch up both in swing states and also states that he won in 2016 but now has to defend.

After rallying supporters in three states Tuesday, Trump, 74, overnighted in a fourth -- Nevada -- and then flew to Arizona for two more rallies.

On an airport tarmac in Bullhead

Covid-19 crisis, and many supporters did not bother with masks as they cheered his defiant insistence on a landslide victory November 3.

"It's going to be a great, great red wave," he boomed, referring to the Republican color. "We love you! We love you!" the enthusiastic crowd chanted back.

At another rally, in Goodyear, Arizona, Trump predicted he'd repeat his 2016 upset, saying: "We're going to have an even bigger surprise in six days."

The pandemic has upended all aspects of American life and overshadowed the election, with polls showing it may well be the president's undoing as cases hit record levels in the US.

More than 76.5 million people have cast early in-person and mail ballots nationally, according to data compiled by the US Elections Project at the City, Arizona, Trump all but ignored the University of Florida. That is a recordsetting pace and more than 53% of the total 2016 turnout. Some 57.4 percent of Americans > response, while 39.8 percent approve, according to a poll average compiled by tracker FiveThirtyEight.com. Biden has seized on that to build an impressive advantage in polls heading into the final week and is looking to disapprove of Trump's coronavirus expand his state-by-state path to victory. On Tuesday, Biden visited Georgia, traditionally Kepublican territory, and he has said he will travel to Florida, Wisconsin and Michigan in the race's closing days.

All are states that Trump won in 2016 but that are up for grabs this year. On Wednesday, Trump kept up his scorn for Biden's focus on health safety, saying that the Democrat would destroy the country through more lockdowns.
