Japan offers $ 5b to US-led forces

TOKYO, Jan 19: Japan will offer an additional five billion Dollars to U.S.-led forces fighting Iraq, the Yomiuri Shimbun, a leading Japanese newspaper reported Saturday, reports Reuter.

Japan pledged two billion Dollars to the multinational force last year and two billion Dollars to states bordering Iraq that have been hit by the economic sanctions.

The newspaper said Hashimoto was expected to announce the new aid figure at the two-day meeting of Finance Minsiters and Central Bank Governors, scheduled to begin on Sunday.

On Friday government Spokesman Misoji Sakamot said Tokyo had not yet decided how much to offer Gulf forces.

Japan is the only G-7 country without a military presence in the Gulf. AFP adds: Japan plans to offer at least two billion Dollars in additional aid to forces in the Gulf, government spokesman said Friday. We extended two billion dollars even before a war broke out so it is common sense to extend more this time, "Chief Cabinet Secretary Misoji Sakamoto, the government's official spokesman, told a news conference.

Ministry Foreign spokesman Taizo Watanabe told a separate news conference that the additional support would be "more than two billion dollars" and that a formal decision would come in "days or weeks but it'll not be months." He said the government would fix the amount after consulting with other countries.

The government has already pleded four billion Dollars to help resolve the crisis, comprising two billion Dollars to the Gulf forces and two billion Dollars to countries most affected by the crisis, Egypt, Jordan and Turkey. It has also allocated 22 million Dollars for refugees and said Monday it was ready ot provide another 38 million Dollars for the same purpose.

At the Rowett Reserach Centre outside Aberdeen in Scotland, they are investigating how camelids -Llamas, alpacas and guanacos - can adapt to living in a northern European climate. These animals are highly prized, not for their meat, but for their wool, which in some cases rivals that of cashmere wool in quality. But as you can see here, the camelids have a charm of their own which would make them popular with humans anyway, especially with children. It is hoped that in time they can be used in the tourist -AFP/UNB Photo industry in Scotland as trekking and specialist zoo animals.

The government is pressing the scheme's opponents to accept the plan. On Friday, a government announcement outlined the benefits of a range of gas projects in the district and said they were important "to fulfil the demands of the people of this region."

It said work on the Ashugani plant should be started "immediately," and he appealed to people "to extend their cooperation." Friday, Presidential Adviser

US costs $ 500m for air attack a day in Gulf

WASHINGTON, Jan 19: The intense air attacks on targets in Iraq and occupied Kuwait are costing the United States upwards of 500 million dollars a day, government and private analysts said on Friday. reports Reuter.

Not even the U.S. Defence Department can yet know the exact financial cost of the initial assault in which 2,107 aircraft sorties were flown against targets in Iraq and occupied Kuwait in the first 46 hours of the fighting.

The one reported air combat cost about one million Dollars. Dogfights are very expensive, the analysts said because the fighters carry two to six air-to-air missiles.

Although they are wary of estimating the daily cost of the Gulf war, analysts say an intense ground assault would raise the financial costs to around one billion Dollars a

Based on an estimate of 4,00,000 US troops deployed to the Gulf, a short war lasting less than a month and involving primarily air combat and limited ground attacks could cost about 17 billion dollars the CBO said.

In this case the United States would lose 3,000 troops, 100 tactical aircraft and 200 tanks.

In the worst case, a longer war with both air combat and repeated ground attacks over six months could cost up to 35 billion dollars and casualties could reach 45,000 troops.

Gold prices rise sharply in India

NEW DELHI, Jan 19: With India's stock markets shut down by the Gulf war, investors have rushed into gold and commodities, sending the price of the yellow metal skyrocketing to record heights. reports AFP.

Newspapers predicted Friday that with standard gold closing Thursday at 3,850, up by 100 Rupees, the 10 gram price could well shoot through the 4,000 Mark by evening.

Commodities showed similar spurts Thursday with vegetable oils, grains, pulses and sugar responding to what financial newspapers called "frantic buying" and "stockist tendencies."

Sugar prices rose by 60 Rupees a quintal to touch an all-time high of 910 Rupees on the Bombay market at the Thursday close. Grams and green peas rose between 25 and 75 Rupees a quintal, and groundnut, sesame, soybean and cottonseed oil all shot up by between 50 and 130 Rupees, market reports said.

Despite a more subdued mood in financial markets on Friday, private economists said they still believe that a swift victory in the Gulf war would help George Bush defeat his biggest domestic foe, the recession in the United States, reports AP. Analysts said that the drop in oil prices which has occurred sonce the war began, if it holds, should return spending power to consumers and businesses and give the Federal Reserve, the U.S. Central Bank, more leeway to reduce interest rates in an effort to fight the recession.

That optimistic view is also held by top officials in the Bush administration and by Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan.

Bush was told by his top economic advisers at a White
