USAID keen to work with private sector

A senior official of the US Agency for International Development praised Bangladesh's new industrial policy and said her agency was keen to work in partnership with the country's private sector for economic development, reports UNB.

The new industrial policy of Bangladesh is a commendable statement and such policy changes are encouraging, said Henrietta Holsman-Fore, Assistant Administrator, Bureau of Asia and Private Enterprise of USAID, the opening session of investors forum in Washington DC on Tuesday.

Industries Minister Shamsul Islam Khan delivered the key-note address at the forum, arranged by the Bangladesh-US Business Council, according to a message received in Dhaka Wednesday.

Khan, leading a high-level business delegation, told the forum the people of Bangladesh had given the present government a clear mandate for a free-market economy and rapid industrialisation.

He said the government would actively pursue to attract foreign direct investment in the country.

Highlighting the salient features of the new industrial policy, the minister said a favourable climate now existed in Bangladesh for American investment.

Executive Director of the Council M Osman Yusuf applauded the new industrial policy but asked for its quick implementation and making it transparent to foreign investors.

In the business session, Bangladeshi businessmen and American counterparts discussed prospects of joint venture in areas including offshore data-processing, dairy farming, electrical component manufacturing, aquaculture and telecommunication.

A Bangladesh company, East Coast Group, has signed a Memorandum of Understanding with an American company, Scan-Graphics, on a 10 million-dollar joint venture project for establishing a computer-based electronic imaging and document conversion facility in Bangladesh.

The forum was attended by a large number of investors from the USA and Bangladesh and by the representatives of USAID, IFC (International Finance Corporation), MIGA, UNDP, Exim Bank and US Commerce Department.

The investment mission will visit New Orleans on Friday and San Francisco on September 23.
