Parties urged to cultivate democratic culture

Noted political scientist Prof. Emajuddin Ahmed Wednesday called upon the political parties to cultivate a democratic culture for making parliamentary democracy of the country a success, reports BSS.

Delivering a lecture on "democracy and political accountability" organised by the Jatiya Press Club on the occasion of its 37th founding anniversary, Prof. Emajuddin said practice of the democratic culture was essential in the personal life and party as well as national life.

The lecture, which was the first of the four-day series of lectures, was inaugurated by the Press Club President, Mozammel Haq. The function was held at the club auditorium.

Journalist Ziaul Huq presided over the lecture while Awami League leader Tofael Ahmed MP, Jamaat leader Sheikh Ansar Ali MP, NDP leader Salahuddin Qader Chowdhury MP, journalists Gias Kamal Chowdhury and Ataus Samad and civil servant Abu Hena took part in the discussion. Press Club General Secretary Shawkat Mahmud gave the speech of welcome.

Dr Emajuddin, a Professor of Political Science in the Dhaka University, stressed the need for the sense of greater responsibility on the part of the governments in Third World countries like Bangladesh for smooth running of the country.

He also said high calibre of intellect was essential to run a country in this age. Side by side, perfection in the application of collective wisdom was imperative for the opposition, he observed.

Prof. Emajuddin said, "creation of something of high standard is difficult but it is easy to undo it." In the parliamentary system the responsibility of the opposition in building up the nation was no less than that of the government, he said.

He said, the fate of the democracy in the country depends on the behaviour of both the government and opposition parties.
