Rotary is not just a rich men's club or a status symbol for the society's handful of fortunate well-off. That is what Martha Wilson, media specialist of Rotary International - a worldwide social service club - contended.

Martha, who was in the city in connection with a RI regional conference, was rather shocked when a reporter suggested a widely-held perception that Rotary is a club of the rich. She took some time to reply.

"Well, many may feel like that but, as you see, Rotarians have done many good things for the people... they are really providing service to the humanity."

She went on "There are a lot of rich people in the world. But how many of them respond to the service of humanity." A former journalist, Martha was talking to UNB on Rotary's development activities.

It was her first visit to Dhaka, but she said she was highly moved by the Rotarians' activities here. "Rotarians here are doing a tremendous job, considering their small number."

Starting in 1938, there are now 78 Rotary clubs in Bangladesh with 2110 members who are united under Rotary's motto: "Service Above Self." Besides, there are the Rotaract and Interact clubs, which work as auxiliary to the Rotarians.

Millions of dollars have so far been spent by Bangladesh Rotarians on various development programmes aimed at improving the lives of common man.

"None of the money disappeared... can you believe that? I am really impressed and excited: Bangladesh's success is really incredible," said Martha.

"This really proved what the private sector can do if they act with a strong commitment," said Martha, a law graduate from Minnesota, USA. Before joining RI as a media specialist, she worked as a producer with CRS and ABC television networks.

Rotary's immunisation programme, called "Polio-Plus", has already vaccinated more than two crore children with the help of about US dollar seven lakh provided by RI.

She said Rotary's "three-H projects" - health, hunger and humanity - have also achieved considerable success in Bangladesh.

In the health sector, more than one million people have been examined at eye camps and nearly one million have been treated for eye diseases, including surgery on 2 lakh patients whose visions were restored, fully or partially, she reported.

"All this clearly reflects that Rotarians mean business... It's not a mere lip service, they are working for a better tomorrow," she added.
