BARCELONA, Aug 4: The expulsion of Russian weightlifter Ibrahim Samadov from the Olympics and the withdrawal of his bronze medal are "final" Michele Verdier, the Inter national Olympic Committee's spokeswoman, said Tuesday, reports AFP.

Denying press reports that Samadov was to be paradoned for putting down his bronze medal and marching out of the medals ceremony, Verdier said: "He had until 5 pm Sunday to submit an appeal and we received nothing. The deci sions are final.

However, the International Weightlifting Federation said Tuesday that president Got tfried School's proposal to ban Samadov from lifting for life will not be formally considered until the IWF's next congress in November.

El Pais newspaper quoted Samadov on Tuesday as saying his trainer Atlan Magomadov told him the IOC was to return the medal.

"I won't feel comfortable until I have the medal round my neck," Samadov reportedly

At Friday's medals ceremony, in the light heavyweight (82.5 kg) event, Samadov took the medal with his left hand instead of allowing Greek IOC member Nikos Filaretos to put the medal round his neck, as Filaretos had already done for gold medalist Dimas Pyrros. also of Greece, and Poland's Krzysztof Siemion, the silver medalist.

Samadov then put down his medal on the podium, stepped off out and left the stage. The Russian said afterwards that he blacked out but School said he didn't believe it. All three medalists lifted the same total but Samadov lost out on greater body weight.

Pak morale gets a boost

CHELMSFORD, England Aug 4: Pakistan hammeree English county champions Essex by seven wickets on Monday and clinched a 50,000 pound sterling (96,000 US dollars) jackpot to boost their morale ahead of Thursday's final Test, reports Reuter.

Salim Malik and Wasim Akram played vital roles as Pakistan registered their eighth win over a county side to qualify for the prize awarded by a sponsor. Victory was even sweeter in that Essex are the team of England captain Graham Gooch.

Malik, leading Pakistan in the absence of Javed Miandad who was feeling unwell with stomach trouble, contributed to Pakistan's win with both the bat and the ball and was named man-of-the-match.

He brought himself on to bowl both before and after lunch to take two important wickets with his occasional leg-breaks and then scored exactly half a century as Pakistan sped past the victory target of 193 with seven wickets in hand.

After Essex had resumed a 58 for two, wrist-spinner Mushtaq Ahmed and Malik broke through their resistance with two wickets apiece before Akram blew away the tail to finish with four for 48.

FIFA's new rule

LONDON, Aug 4: Soccer' governing body FIFA have issued a ruling to prevent play ers trying to get round the new law on back passes, the English Football Association (FA) said on Monday, reports Reuter.

The new regulation, making it an offence for a goalkeeper to touch with his hands a ball that has been kicked back to him by one of his own team, came into force only 10 days ago but has already attracted widespread criticism.

Players in some countries have been getting down on their knees to push the ball back to their goalkeepers in eheeky attempts to bend the rules.

A spokesman said the FA had received a new ruling from FIFA outlawing the practice.

And if a player flicks the ball up with his foot onto his head to nod it back to his goalkeeper, that too will result in a booking for ungentlemanly conduct and an indirect free kick, the spokesman said.

"It is irrelevant whether the goalkeeper subsequently touches the ball with his hands or not. The offence is committed by the player in attempting to circumvent both the text and the spirit of the law," FIFA said in a letter to the FA. Other ploys will also land players in trouble, if 'in the opinion of the referee a player uses a deliberate trick in order to circumvent the (backpass) amendment," FIFA said. This applies to every country, not just England," the FA spokesman said. "Obviously it would have been easier had it been decided earlier. But at least it has happened before the start of the season." The English soccer season

'Diver Supreme' seeks time for herself

BARCELONA, Aug 4: China's Gao Min retired on Monday with her second Olympic medal as springboard diver supreme, but once it seemed she would not make the grade, reports Reuter.

Gao, burdened by the demands of staying top since 1986, had to be persuaded against quitting last year and encouraged to make this last Olympic challenge. She was beset by injuries but rose to the occasion and retained her title by a phenomenal margin of nearly 60 "Last year was very difficult year for me," the 21-year-old student from Sichuan said. "For the Olympic Games I have sacrificed a lot, especially physically."

Gao burst on to the international scene as an unknown in Madrid in 1986 and won the World Championship title.

She collected her first Olympic crown two years later and added two more golds on the one metre and three metre boards at the Perth World Championships in January

Yet China's chief national coach Xu Yiming said he had to be persuaded to give Gao a chance to train with him.

"In 1982 she had good prospects but I didn't select her. In 1983 when she was going downhill and going back to classes, her parents and superiors asked me to keep her for diving training and come to my training camp." Xu said.

"I said 'okay'. When she came she didn't come with any training equipment, but I discovered her tremendous potential.

"She has very strong willpower. Once she has made up her mind she will strive to reach her goal. She made tremendous progress. She was first in Madrid, a result her countrymen had not expected. She is a star in China."

Xu said divers began their careers in China at seven or eight, though Gao had been a gymnast and a swimmer before switching to diving.

Gao has not been beaten since a 1988 pre-Olympic competition but the years at the top have taken their toll. In Perth, she needed injections to ease shoulder pains from over training. In Barcelona, she was troubled by a two-years-old injury to her right shoulder and a later injury in the left shoulder. She needed further treatment for a waist and back problem which arose during competition.

"I told her she would have two difficult days, with the injury in her shoulders and the psychological pressure. The psychological pressure is more important, the physical injury is secondary," Xu said.

Gao was only third in Saturday's preliminary round but Xu told her to rest, eat well and take care of her shoulder and she could give her best performance

Xu felt Gao was paying too much heed to the points situation during the final. "I told her to ignore all of that and said You should pay attention to each of your movements and success will come from that." But why was she always so much better than her rivals? "I believe one thing," Gao said. 'You work for what you get. I exerted a lot of effort and I think it was justified." Now, exhausted by those monumental efforts of training up to eight hours a day, she wants time for herself at last

there is a lot more than national pride and Asian prestige riding on Wednesday's Olympic hockey semifinal against favourites Germany, reports AFP.

For former Olympian Islahuddin, Pakistan's longestserving manger, and Shahbaz both have burning personal ambition at stake.

And neither will be content with anything less than the Olympic title to show near the end of their tenures after years of chasing elusive honours.

Three times the Olympic champions in 1960, 1968 and 1984, the closest Pakistan have come to winning a major title in recent years was when they finished as World Cup runners-up in 1990.

Their countrymen think a gold medal is now overdue.

"National expectations are high "Islahuddin said. "As for personal ambition, who would not like to win the gold medal? It is important to everybody.

But to book a place in Saturday's final, they first have to pass Wednesday's test which pits Asian skill and flair against Wasim Feroz, who with skipper Shahbaz forms a deadly left-wing combination, scored twice and Tahir Zaman hit a hat-trick, including two penalty strokes.

Goalkeeper Shahid Ali Khan played a crucial role throughout the league games, and short corner striker Khalid Bashir has been brilliant. "Despite the brilliance

Pakistan bring to the field, the Germans are still favourites," British coach Norman Hughes said after his defending champions went out in a 0-6 defeat to Australia. "But when have the favourites ever won?" he asked. The Australians were tipped for the gold in 1984 and 1988, and both times they ended up with nothing. That is a record the high-scoring Aussies would like to put straight when they face the Dutch world champions in the other semi-final. Coach Frank Murray expects a tough match and that is what his Dutch counterpart York, Kenneth Wark and goalkeeper Damon Diletti holding their own, have given little away, and Dutch coach Jorritsma is not expecting them to be too generous in conceding penalties.

"We will not get that many short corners, four or five may be," he reckoned.

Rain delays Abahani's tie

The semifinal tie of the Moinuddowla Gold Cup cricket tournament between Abahani Krira Chakra and the Karnataka State team was not held yesterday in Hyderabad, said a source close to Abahani.

The match, which fell through because of unplayable ground conditions following overnight rain, will now be held today.

Abahani, last year's Navana league runners-up, entered the scmifinal by beating Maldives and MRF in this invitational knock-out tournament.

Players' pool likely today

Sports Reporter

Foreign players engaged by the different local clubs may not bother to shuttle between the capital and other parts of the country for 'easy cash' from next year.

The tail-piece of the meeting of the Bangladesh Cricket Control Board, held on Sunday, confirmed this speculation. Foreign players will have to take permission from their respective clubs as well as from the Bangladesh Cricket Control Board to play outside Dhaka.

Players, mainly from Shri Lanka, would regularly play part-time cricket outside Dhaka for ready money until Earlier the meeting decided on the guidelines for forming a players pool with the top local players. The pool is likely to be announced today.

The players' pool will fix a ceiling of three national players for every team.

For once the big clubs with all their financial clout will be restricted in their bid to skim the cream of the limited cricketing talent to enter the mad-rush for titles. The BCCB will have to evolve effective measures to stop any attempt at 'retirement by players from the national team to circumvent the purpose of the pool, thereby keeping ones options open for lucrative offers from he big clubs.
