Kashmiri rebels kill 1500 Indian Tamils held on two hostages

SRINAGAR, India Sept: Two Indian military engineers held hostage by Kashmiri Muslim rebels for six weeks were killed on Thursday when they tried to escape a rebel spokesman said, reports Reuter.

The spokesman for the Jammu-Kashmir Liberation Front (JKLF) said the men were shot when they tried to flee while being shifted from one rebel hideout in Srinagar to another.

The engineers attached to the Indian army were abducted on August 4 while travelling to Srinagar from a neighbouring

The JKLF, one of many groups fighting for secession of Muslim-majority Kashmir from India, had tried to negotiate their release in exchange for several jatled rebels.

The JKLF spokesman, who contacted reporters by telephone, said the government showed no interest in a swap.

charge of sedition

The LTTE was outlawed in India earlier this year after it was accused of being behind the assassination of former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi. He was blown up by a woman suicide bomber while on the campaign trail in Tamil Nadu in May 1991.

India's Tamils live mostly in Tamil Nadu, separated from Sri Lanka by a narrow strip of sea. The LTTE had used the state as a sanctuary from its nine-year war for an independent homeland in the north and east of Srt Lanka.

India originally supported the LTTE but became embroiled in a war with it after trying to disarm the rebels under a 1987 peace accord with resolution saying that "the right of self-determination has to be constitutionally pro-

Several people at the meeting carried posters of LTTE leader Velupillai Prabhakaran and shouted slogans in his support.

The police move came after severe pressure on the Tamil Nadu government to take action against those attending the conference.

Era Anabarasu, a parliamentarian from the ruling Congress Party, had urged the arrests of the conference leaders and of former Prime Minister V P Singh, who was invited to attend the meeting. It was not immediately known if Singh attended.

Calling for secession is a crime under Indian law.

Tamil Nadu is ruled by a Tamil Party allied to the Congress Party but their relationship has been uneasy for some months.

Indefinite curfew in northern Lanka

COLOMBO, Sept 18 Security forces today clamped an indefinite curiew in large parts of northern Sri Lanka which are under the control of separatist Tamil Tiger guerillas, officials here said. reports AFP.

The curfew went into effect at dawn Friday across the Jaffna peninsula which is virtually dominated by the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eclam (LTTE), a military spokesman here said.

He did not say why the curfew was imposed but on previous occasions curfews have preceded limited military operations against the guerillas who are fighting to establish an independent homeland in the island's northeast.

There have been no major military operations against the LTTE in the past three weeks since the August 21 capture of a key guertlla beach landing point in the Jaffna peninsula.

Because of the LTTE control curfews are almost impossible to enforce except from the air. Any movement spotted is considered a legitimate tar-

Students demand release of Suu Kyi in Bangkok

BANGKOK, Sept. 18: Students demanding the release of Nobel Peace Prize winner Aung San Suu Kyi protested outside the Myanmar Embassy in Bangkok on Friday, the fourth anniversary of the military junta's seizure of power, reports AP.

But the Myanmar capital of Yangon was reported quiet on the anniversary of the brutal suppression of a nationwide pro-democracy uprising in Yangon's government-controlled media extolled the achievements of the ruling State Law and Order Restoration Council, or SLORC, in areas of transportation, education, health and other sectors.

There was no public ceremony to mark the anniversary and no soldiers were seen on the streets of the capital. In Bangkok, about 20

Myanmar students shouted anti-SLORC slogans and sang pro-democracy songs outside the embassy. Thai police prevented them from spraying paint on its walls.

A two-page communique from the students demanded the total dissolution of SLORC and the freeing of Suu Kyi and all political prisoners in Myanmar.

Suu Kyi, a leader of the 1988 movement, has been under house arrest in Yangon for more than three years. She was awarded the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize for her struggle for freedom in Myanmar.

Her National League for Democracy won a stunning electoral victory in 1990, but the military refused to give up power and instead moved to crush all political opposition.

the snake fell from above and wrapped itself around him, Mkhize's employer, Suresh Maharaj, told local newspapers.

Man and snake fell to the ground in a tangle. Mkhize sank his teeth into the writhing serpent's throat, then twisted the thick body. The snake's strength finally gave out, and Mkhize smashed its broad head with a rock.

Maharaj said pythons had killed several calves and at least three people in the area of eastern Natal province. The snakes are not poisonous but crush prey to death.

She was victimised by 'harasser' and 'system'

WASHINGTON: The Department of Veterans Affairs has been slow to move in some cases of sexual harassment, a group of female employees say. And the VA's inspector general finds some basis for their concerns, reports AP.

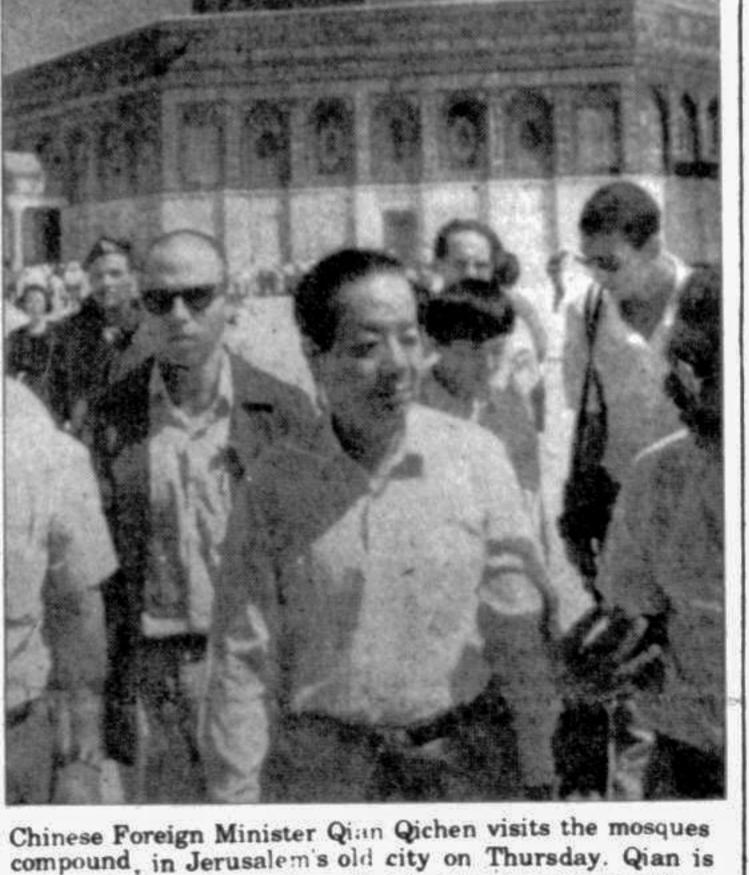

The women testified before a House panel Thursday that they were sexually harassed at work, sometimes physically. and later faced reprisals for complaining about it.

"You are victimised first by your harasser and next by the system," said Mary O'Connor, who said she was a victim of physical sexual harassment by a doctor at the VA Medical Center at Northampton, Mass. She said that when she complained, "management attempted to minimize the abuse, to cover up the actual assault and to inform me that, should I file a formal complaint, the entire hospital would be aware of the offense - and that complainants are in for extreme discomfort."

A survey of randomly selected employees found one in four would be reluctant to file a complaint for fear of reprisal.

Other women who testified said they had received unwanted job transfers, reduced responsibilities, punitive scheduling and were subjected to embarrassment before their colleagues after complaining of sex harassment.

6 Palestinians hurt as Israelis open fire

JERUSALEM, Sept 17: Israeli troops shot and wounded six Palestinians in the occupied Gaza Strip today when they opened fire to disperse demonstrators marking the 10th anniversary of a massacre of Palestinians in Lebanon, an army source said, reports AFP.

Strikes gripped the West Bank and Gaza Strip for the second consecutive day to mark the anniversary of the slaughter in the Sabra and Shatila refugee camps, which took place during Israel's 1982 invasion of Lebanon.

An Israeli investigation found that Lebanese Christian militiamen slaughtered 800 people as Israeli troops ringed the camps on the outskirts of Beirut. But the Palestine Liberation Organisation has put the number of dead at 1,500.

ANC demands removal of Ciskei ruler

South Africa. Sept 18: African National Congress leaders called at a funeral vigil Friday for the removal of the military ruler whose troops gunned down 28 protesters, reports

Chris Hani, a senior ANC leader, said people were no longer prepared to endure the rule of Brig Gen Oupa Gqozo in the Ciskei black homeland.

"There's a mood of militancy here," said Hani, who is also general secretary of the South African Communist Party.

Thousands of people gathered Friday for the burial of 15 of the protesters killed when Ciskei troops opened fire Sept. 7 on an ANC march calling for Ggozo's removal.

The killings plunged South Africa deeper into political crisis. The ANC and other black opposition groups claim President F W de Klerk's government was responsible for the deaths because the white government created Armored police vehicles and policemen and soldiers, some carrying automatic rifles and others in riot gear, patrolled outside the stadium. Calm was reported in the nearby Ciskei capital of Bisho.

De Klerk told a meeting Friday of his ruling National Party in Johannesburg that progress was being made on getting the ANC to return to talks on a new constitution. He said negotiations were the only solution.
