Dhaka Day by Day

The Magic of the Bell!

The psychologist amongst you, will always loftily inform you, that all individuals, are attracted to different things, for different reasons. For the average human being, it is a reasonable enough explanation. He is quite content with it. But the one thing which perhaps puzzles the even more ordinary sort, like ourselves, is the little gadget in Dhaka, which attracts perhaps all Dhakaites more than anything else. And that is the little bell, tucked away so neatly, under a discreet table top or arm rest. How we love that bell; nothing gives us more pleasure, than to ring that bell at regular intervals, to summon the lesser mortals, morning evening and night. Where would be without it? We wonder. We have it installed all over the house at the most strategic spots. We have it at our bedside, to summon that morning cup of tea, at a 'touch.' Literally.

The average Dhakaite would be totally lost the 'morning after the night before' if he did not have the bell, to summon the faithful. Names at that hour, are a headache. The bell in the office (those little govt. places, with the whirring fan) is the total epitomisation of the gadget.

The faithful little peon, outside the front door, is up and down like a 'jack in the box' at the behest of that bell. He has to fetch the tea, earry the files, open the door, pull back the chair, carry the muffler, all at the touch of the bell. That bell must be the envy of many a film director, who probably shouts himself hoarse, giving out endless directions. If only his pupils could master the art of the 'bell' life would be a breeze for him. No more yelling and screaming for him. One ring for dialogues to begin, two for the make-up man, three for the action, the list is endless. But alas, life is a wee bit more complicated than what that bell makes it out to be, we discover. Yet at the same time, we cannot help but wonder, when we can hear ourselves think, above the cacophony of the bell, as to whatever happened to the names of all those individuals, being summoned by the bell. Or perhaps life is complicated enough, without having to memorize the names of all those guys, parading in and out of the offices. A new face at the door of the boss, is a common phenomenon; and the boss is only human. Life is so much simpler with that gadget at our fingertips. We cannot honestly say that it is always justifiably utilised, though, when we observe that poor man it is summoning, doing the marathon about fifty seven times a day. But then, we cannot have our cake and eat it, I presume and should thank heavens for little blessings. They admittedly come in various shapes, guises and designs, but we should be thanking our stars we do not have to holler at the top of our lungs, already weakened by the pollution in the city, whenever we desire the
