

A Pictorial History of Bangladesh 1982—1990

The wild bunch: Police chase demonstrators down Motijheel, shooting into the crowd 1987.

Ready to kill: Policeman takes aim, another reloads, 1987.

The arrest, Nov 11 1988: The then Police Commissioner of Dhaka, Nasrullah Khan, requesting a defiant Khaleda Zia to come with him.

Where did they go?: Guns at the ready, policemen take position near the Dhaka University campus, waiting for student demonstrators to re-emerge, 1985.

All photographs
by
A.K.M.
Mohsin
Chief Photographer of The Daily Star

The moment of history: Noor Hossain (bare chested) raising a fist in defiance at the front of a procession led by AL president Sheikh Hasina (sitting on the front seat of car behind) on Nov 10, 1987. Minutes later, Hossain, with Down with Autocracy emblazoned on his chest, passed into martyrdom.

The arrest Nov 11, 1988: Sheikh Hasina being led away to captivity by police officers.

A dream fulfilled: Justice Shahabuddin Ahmed (centre) talking to Khaleda Zia (left) and Sheikh Hasina after taking over as the acting president Dec 6, 1990.

Defying the odds: Dhaka University girls lead the first demonstration to break emergency regulations in the city on Nov 28, 1990.