BRUSSELS, Feb 27: Belgium said Friday it is preparing to seize assets of Zairean President Mobutu Sese Seko in this country and called on other nations to follow suit, reports AP.

The move, which has been under discussion by Belgium, France and the United States, was the latest to increase pressure on Mobutu to yield power to his rival, Prime Minister Etienne Tshisekedi.

The Belgian announcement came despite an end to the siege by troops around Zaire's parliament, where they held hundreds of interim legislators for three days.

said, reports Reuter from Cairo.

The United States, France and Belgium have steadily stepped up diplomatic pressure on Mobutu to yield power to Tshisekedi ever since riots by troops left hundreds dead in Kinshasa last month.

The three nations were Mobutu allies during the Cold War when they viewed him as a bulwark against communism.

Claes said Washington would have little trouble in doing so, but Belgium would have to draft a law to seize assets from heads of state.

Mobutu's properties in Belgium include two castles one of them in a chic Brussels suburb. He also has properties in France, Switzerland and throughout Africa.

Mobutu's financial empire has been estimated in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Belgium to seize Russia dumps N-waste in sea of Japan

LONDON, Feb 27: The Russian navy secretly dumped nuclear waste, including used reactors from submarines, in the sea of Japan, Britain's Channel 4 Television new said on Friday, reports Reuter.

It said Russian President Boris Yeltsin received details of the dumping, which violated international maritime agreements, in a report this month, but it has not been openly pub-

"The Japanese government said it was told in December last year but there are doubts about how much information they were actually given. It is scared that the dumping may still be going on and President Yeltsin may be powerless to stop it," Channel 4 said.

The report listed 10 dumping sites in the sea of Japan, the sea of Okhotsk and at the tip of the Kamchatka peninsula in the Pacific region.

Disposing of nuclear reactors from submarines is a major problem but fears of contamination have stopped western nations from dumping, which is barred under the London Dumping Convention. Russia is a signatory to the agreement.

Channel 4 said Dr Alexei Yablokov, Environmental Adviser to Yeltsin who is investigating the issue, discovered that the Russian fleet had been dumping as recently as last year.

"Nobody in this government was informed about this. It was old practice," he told Channel 4, adding that his task was to expose the problem.

Western experts said there are fears of contamination that would rule out fishing in vast areas of the sea.

Yablokov said data had been falsified but now Russia wanted to follow all the international rules. He called for multi-national cooperation and said the Untied States and Russia should work together to solve the problem.

Yeltsin is expected to reply to the report within the next two weeks. "But until more storage facilities are built it seems the navy must and will continue to dump its nuclear waste at sea," Channel 4 said.

HK team to urge China to talk with Britain

HONG KONG, Feb 27: A group of conservative legislators will visit Beijing Monday and urge Chinese officials to resume negotiations with Britain over Hong Kong's future, the groups spokesman said Saturday, reports AP.

Allen Lee, convenor of the Cooperative Resources Centre, said the ball was now in China's court following Hong Kong's decision this week to delay publishing Gov Chris Pattens democratic reforms so Britain can continue contacts with China.

"I believe the Hong Kong government has shown its sincerity," Lee told governmentowned Radio Hong Kong. "Now it is (up to) the Chinese government to make a decision." Lee said his eight-member group would meet Premier Li Peng and ask him to give the green light to resuming the negotiations.

'Sex' properly TOKYO: Tokyo Customs officials said Friday they have fined a printing company 100,000 yen (855 dollar) for making a false report when it imported photographic plates for American rock star Madonna's book "Sex" last year, reports

Officials had questioned the company about how it brought the plates into Japan without having them checked by inspectors. The Customs Office has ruled that portions of the book are obscene and has seized copies brought in by travelers at airports.

Customs officials said Tokyo-based Toppan Printing Co. claimed the plates were for the written text of a book when it imported the plates in October. The printing company said in a statement that the failure to properly declare the plates as photographs was an unintended error. The Japanese version of "Sex" published by the Kyoto-based Dohosha Co., went on sale in December with several photographs retouched to obscure male genitalia.

The National Police Agency last week served a warning to Dohosha that some remaining photos in the Japanese edition of the book showing pubic hair were obscene. The police action was seen as lenient in a country with unwritten obscenity standards that generally ban photographs or paintings showing genitals or pubic hair.

It's not a religious right issue only

WASHINGTON: Religious right groups are sending a fresh wave of fund-raising letters, taking aim at President Clinton's attempts to lift the military's ban on homosexuals, reports API. "Are we about to become a hedonistic nation of unrestrained homosexuality, abortion, immorality and lawlessness" asks a letter from Jerry Falwell the one-time head of the Moral Majority.

The mailbox found-raising effort involves some of the reli gious right's best known activists, including Pat Robertson and Falwell, but also lesser-known organisations, such as the California-based Traditional Values Coalition and Florida-based Coral Ridge Ministries.

Other conservative groups also are flooding the mails to raise money to fight Clinton's policy, including a group led by former Regan White House aide Oliver North, the Marine Colonel at the centre of the Iran-Contra scandal.

"It's great to have an enemy" said conservative consultant Craig Shirley. Among his clients is the American Conservative Union, another group trying to turn Clinton's position on gays in the military into a fund-raising boon. "The returns have been just going through the roof,"

Shirley said. 'It's not just a religious right issue. It's more of a cultural issue, a moral issue and a liberal issue and therefore has broader appeal among conservatives than just religious conscrvatives.

JAKARTA, Feb 27: The Indonesian People's Consultative Assembly begins an 11-day-day session Monday and is expected to re-elect longruling President Suharto and choose a vice president who may become his successor, reports AP.

The 1,000-member assembly, dominated by President Suharto's ruling Golkar party, is almost certain to re-elect Suharto, the sole candidate, for a record sixth five-year term on March 10.

But the post of vice president, though largely ceremonial, has been a subject of intense speculation in recent weeks because whoever gets it is likely to be Suharto's successor.

And of the five factions in the House of Representative, only Golkar has yet to formally back former commander of the armed forces Gen. Try Sutrisno as its candidate.

Sutrisno, 57, is supported by the four other assembly blocs - the Armed Forces, the Muslim United Development Party, the Christian-nationalist Indonesian Democratic Party and the regional representa-
