Kabul demands Russian troops pullout from border

ISLAMABAD, July 16: Afghanistan accused Russian troops of an artillery attack on Thursday on a village across the border from Tajikistan in which eight people were killed and many injured, official Kabul radio reported, says Reuter.

It called for an immediate withdrawal of Russian forces from the border and rejected Russian charges that Afghan fighters were involved in increasingly bloody incursions into Tajikistan.

"The foreign ministry ... protests strongly against this action by the CIS forces and hopes that the republican actions," the radio, monitored in Islamabad, said.

Meanwhile, Reuter says: Israelis and Arabs have suggested that peace talks should aim for a Jordanian-Palestinian entity in the occupied territories instead of an interim period of Arab self-rule.

Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres was quoted by two Israeli newspapers on Thursday as suggesting the

"The question is, have we in 20 months proved to each other that the concept of an interim period is not workable, is not do-able and can complicate matters more ?," Erakat said.

"May be it is time to really see the possibilities of going directly towards the final status. A confederation is one of the serious options for the final status, we're pursuing it as Palestinians with the Jord-anians now."

Deputy Foreign Minister Yossi Beilin told the Jerusalem Post that Peres raised the proposal of a Jordanian-Palestinian entity with US envoy Dennis Ross, who was in the Middle East trying to break an impasse in the talks.

Beilin said Ross appeared intrigued by the idea. It was not clear whether Prime Minister Yitzak Rabin supported the proposal.

His spokesman said on Thursday Israel was negotiating an interim arrangement with the Palestinians and discussion of the permanent status would come at a later stage.

Sihanouk hospitalised: Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk was taken to Chinese hospital for a medical check-up immediately after arriving in Beijing on Thursday, a spokesman at his Beijing residence said, Reuter reports from Beijing.

"He is in the hospital now, but it is not serious," the spokesman said by telephone. "It is for a medical check-up." The official could give no details as to what type of treatment Sihanouk might be receiving.

He said staff at the prince's luxurious Beijing residence had been told last week to expect Sihanouk, but had not been told how long his hospital stay might last.

Lanka bans carrying of firearms: The Shri Lankan government has banned carrying of firearms by any person other than security forces and police personnel, Xinhua reports form Colombo.

Any person defying the banning order will be prosecuted under the firearms ordinance, Defense Ministry said in Colombo Thursday.

This follows a directive issued by President Dingiri Banda Wijetunga to police recently, the sources said.

11 die in Jakarta bus plunge: Eleven people were killed and 15 seriously injured when a bus plunged into a ravine in Batang, Central Java, press reports said in Jakarta yesterday, AFP reports from Jakarta.

The Kompas Daily quoted a police spokesman in Batang as saying the accident happened Wednesday when the driver tried to avoid a truck which appealed from the opposite side and plunged into the ravine.

The police said the bus, crying 52 people, was on the way to the nearby town of Patt from Jakarta.

12 more executed in China: Twelve members of gangs which kidnapped women and forced them into prostitution were executed in south China's Guangdong province this week, the legal daily reported Thursday, Reuter says from Beijing.

It said 18 other gang members were sentenced to prison terms of between five years and life or were condemned to death with the executions suspended

The kidnappers, who made more than one million yuan (dollar 175,000), were executed on Tuesday as authorities in the wealthy province declared war on organised crime.

Food and Agricultural Organisation(FAO) said on Thursday a "grave humanitarian tragedy" was unfolding in Iraq because of UN food sanctions imposed after the Gulf War and urged the sanctions be lifted or eased. reports Reuter.

In a special report on Iraq in its monthly world food outlook, the FAO warned of pre-famine conditions there and said food supplies were scare throughout the country.

"A vast majority of the popuply engaged in a struggle for survival," FAO said. "But with increasing numbers losing out in this struggle every day, a grave humanitarian tragedy is unfolding."

The agency said the food shortages were caused by sanctions imposed by the United Nations after Iraq invaded Kuwait in 1990.

It said the sanctions caused "persistent deprivation, severe lation." Children, the elderly, disabled and sick were the worst hit.

"The mission believes that it would be impossible to continue the sanctions in their present form without further aggravating the already grave food supply situation in Iraq,"

The report estimated that Iraq would need to import 5.4 billion tonnes of food by the end of next July at a cost of 2.5 billion dollar.

Italy rejects UN request to recall Loi from Somalia

ROME, Italy 16: Defence Minister Fabio Fabbri Thursday rejected outright a UN request to recall the head of the Italian military contingent in Somalia, General Bruno Loi, reports Reuter.

As the crisis in the ranks of the UN force deepened, it was meanwhile announced here that an Italian special envoy would hold talks on the issue with UN Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali at the weekend.

Defence Minister Fabbri told a joint session of Parliament's foreign affairs and defence commissions that Lot had followed orders from Rome and had "behaved in a very professional and prudent manner."

Lot's recall had been requested by UN Undersecretary for peacekeeping affairs Kofi Annan because of his alleged refusal to follow orders from the largely US command of the United Nations operation in Annan said Wednesday:"For the interest of the force and in the interest of the unity of command I would expect the commander (Bruno Loi) to return to Italy as soon as possi-

Fabbri said the accusation against Lot was "unfounded in fact and unacceptable in its form" and was being "rejected without hesitation."

Meanwhile, Italian Foreign Minister Beniamino Andreata said Thursday that a senior Foreign Ministry official, Bruno Bottai, would discuss the dispute, with UN Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali in New York at the weekend.

Rome has been critical of the UN raid Monday on the forces of Somali warlord Mohamed Farah Aided in which the international committee if the Red Cross said 54 peopled were killed and 174 wounded.

Andreatta told the Senate the Italian government" does not believe that the disagreement warrants the withdrawal of the Italian contingent."

Funeral unites Royal couple

KING'S LYNN: Prince Charles and his estranged wife Diana put aside, their differences on Thursday and were united at the funeral of the aristocrat who is rumoured to have acted as matchmaker in their ill-fated romance, reports Reuter on Friday.

The British royal couple, separated for the last seven months of their 12-year marriage, stood side by side and shared an umbrella when they attended the funeral of Diana's maternal grandmother Lady Fermoy in, the eastern town of King's Lynn.

Ruth, Lady Fermoy, who died last week aged 84, was a close friend and lady in waiting to the Prince's grandmother the Queen Mother and helped bring the young Lady Diana Spencer into the Royal Court where she met the heir to the British

The Queen Mother, 92, also attended the funeral. With thoughts inevitably going back to the early days of their romance, it was a poignant joint appearance for the couple whose union was hailed as a perfect blend of good breeding and High-society glamour but failed to supply personal happiness. . When Charles and Diana Married in July 1981 many com-

"Kim is crazy"

TOKYO: North Korean President Kim Il-Sung "Is crazy," Japanese Foreign Minister Kabun Muto was quoted in the press here on Friday as saying, reports AFP.

Muto, referring to the potential danger of Pyognyang pointing missiles towards Japan, was quoted by the Japan times saying: "Kim Il-sung is Crazy. There will be no comparison with Monday's huge earthquake if North Korea's recently developed missiles hit Japan."

His remarks came as talks between Washington and Pyongyang on international monitoring of suspected nuclear sites in North Korea appeared to be making progress.

Muto's outburst may be seen as an attempt to grab some votes at Sunday's general election in which his ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) is in danger of losing for the first time since its formation in 1955. His comments will only bolster the fear of many Japanese concerning their communist neighbour, thereby fostering the wish for political stability in Japan.

An appeal to thieves

LONDON: An armed gang stole six million pounds (dollar 9 million) of gems from London's "King of Diamonds" on Thursday and he appealed to them not to recut a unique heart-shaped diamond which they snatched, reports Reuter on Friday. Police said the robbers brandished handguns at staff and ransacked the safe at Laurence Graff's jewellery manufacturers in Hatton Garden, London's diamond district, in one of Britain's biggest jewellery thefts.

The flawless heart-shaped diamond, of 25.78 carats, was to be the centrepiece of a brooch and experts in the trade described it as a "Very important stone." It was worth about 1.5 million pounds (dollar 2.25 million).

"Mr Graff wants it to be known that the heart-shaped diamond cannot be cut and sold in separate pieces as it is unique," detective constable Barry Huges said, explaining Graff's appeal to the thieves not to destroy the stone.

The raiders, dressed in dark clothes and wearing stocking masks got through three combination locks before scooping the diamonds into a bag from the safe and the workshops and making off into central London's rush-hour traffic.
