Science, technology root of uplift: Sircar

Science and Technology is the root of development of all sectors. Education Minister Jamiruddin Sircar Thursday said while inaugurating the 14th national science and technology week, reports BSS.

He said the present government was giving due importance to this field as national progress was not possible without the development of science and technology in the country.

Notre Dame College Science Club organised the week at its auditorium with the participation of 17 science clubs of the city. In all, 300 budding scientists with their 300 projects are demonstrating various inventions in an exhibition arranged to mark the week.

Principal Father JS Pizzetto presided over the inaugural function while secretary of the science and technology division of the Education Ministry Dr Mirza Abdul Jalil, Director of Science Museum Dr Shamsur Rahman and the club president Prof Shusanta Sarker also addressed the function.

Referring to the government's endeavour for eradicating illiteracy from the country, the Education Minister said the education sector got the highest allocation in the national budget to ensure education first and education for all.

"We are committed to free all educational institutions from violence by the year 2000 through ensuring a proper education atmosphere all over the country," he said, adding it would greatly help the flourishing of talents in science and technology in the country.

Sircar also recalled with gratitude the contribution of late President Ziaur Rahman in this field and said in fact he had first felt the urgency of science education and introduced science exhibition and science week in the country.
