participate in the development process in many ways. Yet their potential and contribution to bring about much needed economic and social change is inadequately recognised and greatly undervalued, she regretted.

The SAARC chairperson expressed her satisfaction that the three-day ministerial meeting went into a detailed discussion apart from highlighting the major concerns about the role and status of women.

She was happy to know that the conference also defined a much more focused and targeted approach on women's reproductivity, health, delivery of services, the consequences of poor health and nutritional status of factors responsible for high maternal and infant mortality, including early marriages.

members to join the protest at 8:50 last night. She also demanded resignation of the Home Minister.

The Jatiya Party (JP), the JSD, the Workers Party and the Gonotantri Party joined the AL call for a walkout while the Jamaat-e-Islami, Bangladesh and the Islami Oikya Jote (IOJ) preferred to stay in the House.

Home Minister Abdul Matin Chowdhury, while replying to the Opposition allegation of undemocratic behaviour against the government, said that the government was committed to ensuring the constitutional right of the opposition to hold rallies, bring out processions and even stage sit-ins or demonstrations.

"But the constitution does not allow anyone to ransack vehicles, arson public property and loot commodities, the Home Minister said, adding that these were the things the AL activists indulged in, jointly with the JP, on November 10 last.

The Home Minister also claimed that he had himself talked with the Opposition leaders before November 10 and promised his cooperation to the Opposition parties in the observance of their programmes if those were peaceful in nature.

"I even promised them supply of drinking water because they would be thirsty while staging the sit-in under the burning sun," the Home Minister said, but regretted that the Opposition did not give him the scope because they deliberately adopted unconstitutional means.

Matin Chowdhury also said that the on-duty policemen allowed them to stage a peaceful sit-in outside the protective cordon but the Opposition activists resorted to pelting stones on the police, exploding cocktails. They even fired on the police with sawed-off rifles, he said.

Later, the AL and JP activists jointly damaged cars, burnt a few vehicles and looted people's property," the Home Minister said, adding that this could not be termed democratic behaviour.

"What the Opposition wanted that day was a corpse, but the police behaviour frustrated them," the Home Minister observed.

Regarding the Opposition claim of the government showing disrespect to the Noor Hossain Day, the Home

Minister said that rather the AL showed disrespect for Noor Hossain's sacrifice for democracy by holding its programme with that of the JP which killed Noor Hossain.

Twenty legislators belonging to both treasury and opposition benches took part in the one-hour discussion which virtually lasted two hours and ten minutes.

Shamsul Haque of the AL moved the notice on the issue.

Abdus Samad, Tofael Ahmed, Matia Chowdhury, Mohammad Nasim and Sajeda Chowdhury of the AL, Barrister Moudud Ahmed of the JP, Rashed Khan Menon of the WP, Suranjit Sengupta of the Gonotantri Party and Sheikh Ansar Ali of the Jamaat were among the 15 opposition members who spoke on the issue.

The seven treasury bench members who also deliberated on the issue included professor Barudoza Chowdhury, Whip Abul Karim, Mashitir Rahman, Abdul Ali Mridhal, Khalilur Rahman, and Shahjahan Omar.

Deputy Leader of the Opposition in Parliament Abus Samad Azad told the House that the Opposition had raised the issue with a view to solving the problem once for all through discussion in the Sangsad.

"We expected the treasury bench leaders to be sorry, especially for the police attack on Parliament members of the Opposition bench, but they have failed to show this generosity."

Professor B Chowdhury, referring to the Opposition's repeated interruptions during the Home Minister's speech, said: "We all really need to practise parliamentary norms in and outside the House."

Professor Chowdhury delivered his speech with the AL-led Opposition benches empty. The opposition re-entered the House 20 minutes after staging a five-minute walkout.

Speaker Shaikh Razzak Ali presided during the discussions.

The discussion on the November 10 incidents over the House took up legislative business with Deputy Speaker Humayun Khan Panni in the chair.

The House passed the Electricity (Amendment) Act, 1993 at 10:35 pm and was adjourned to resume again at 4 this afternoon.

headquarters before the next conference, to be held in Kathmandu in April 1994. The conference agreed that the headquarters would be regarded as both a decentralised secretariat and a networking system.

The experts shared the view that mutual cooperation in the region could bring enormous benefits to half a billion people in terms of energy development, flood management, augmentation of lean season water flows, irrigation development and inland navigation.

"The abundance of water in the region in one season," Ahmed said, "followed by scarcity in another season of the year further necessitates inter-country cooperation in optimal water management."

The delegates of the three countries emphasised on the need to create an atmosphere of mutual trust and confidence and regular consultation among the co-basin countries for optimal water resource development.

Answering a question QK Ahmed said, the objective of the conference was to support and advise the governments.

"We should promote people-to-people contact in the region in order to remove all sorts of hostile feelings towards each other and we may even be able to influence the governments to break the ice and make things move forward," he explained.

Eminent Indian journalist Verghese replying to a question said, the Ipalmukh multi-purpose project in India was quite different from the Farakka barrage.

"Farakka is a barrage to divert the water flow," Verghese said, "The Ipalmukh will retain excess monsoon water in reservoirs which will be released in the lean season for the greater benefit of the region."

967 Kashmiri militants killed in 10 months

NEW DELHI, Nov 23: Indian army and paramilitary troops killed 967 Muslim militants in Kashmir during the past 10 months where the separatists are battling for self-rule, a government spokesman said today, reports AFP.

The spokesman for the federally administered northern Indian state said 858 Muslim secessionists were slain in the Muslim-dominated Kashmir valley itself.

"One hundred and nine Muslim militants were shot at the line of control, which demarcates the two zones of the divided state located on the foothills of the Himalayan ranges, the spokesman said.

A total of 648 civilians and 152 Indian troops died as of October 31 this year, he said, citing official figures disclosed by security forces battling the militants in the disputed northern frontier state.

Thousands of people were taken into custody and a vast amount of arms seized during the 11-month phase in turbulent Kashmir, which is administered directly by Prime Minister P V Narasimha Rao's federal government, he added.

The startling disclosures were made in the Hindu-dominated city of Jammu, the winter capital of Kashmir.

More than 7,500 people have died in Kashmir since 1989 when the Muslim militants stepped up the bloody drive for self-rule in the state bordering Pakistan.

Almost daily, soldiers and the militants clash in Kashmir, leaving dozens dead and many others wounded. The state remains under a police curfew and civilians are under orders some members of these clubs are not paying their due taxes," he noted, while referring to the Tk 8,000 annual membership charge and an additional Tk 500 monthly fee being paid by all members of Dhaka Club.

Car-owners are also being targeted for the first time, the source said, and a list of car-owners in Dhaka and Chittagong have already been prepared.

"I don't think anyone with less than a Tk 30,000 monthly income can afford to buy a car in these cities after paying house-rents and other expenses," he added.

If the car-owners fail to respond to the notices to provide their tax information, then the tax men may go ahead and unilaterally assess the taxes on the basis of an annual income of Tk three to four lakh, he cautioned.

The NBR has also compiled a list of people owning new residential houses in the capital and they, too, would be asked to provide their tax return documents.

The total income tax collection stood at Tk 1621 crore during the last financial year and the target for 1993-94 is Tk 1900 crore.

Of the total amount collected in 1992-93, the NBR source noted, nearly 80 per cent came from deduction at the source and companies, and only 20 per cent from individual taxpayers.
