US, EC make progress in global free trade pact

WASHINGTON, Nov 24: The United States and the 12-nation European Community reported progress Tuesday as they struggled to resolve sharp differences blocking a global free trade agreement, reports

Both US Trade Representative Mickey Kantor and Sir Leon Brittan, his European counterpart, expressed optimism that the talks would resolve a number of outstanding issues in the Uruguay Round of the talks.

Those discussions, held under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, involve 115 nations. They have dragged on for seven years, but negotiators now face what all sides insist will be final deadline of December 15.

With 22 days to go, the United States and the EC were searching for ways to resolve differences over ticklish issues like farm subsidies so that the overall agreement could be wrapped up in Geneva with all participating countries.

Kantor and Brittan met six hours Monday night, twice the scheduled time, including dinner at a fancy French restaurant.

Both men expressed optimism but refused to provide specifics during a photo session before the start of Tuesday's discussion.

The United States has insisted it will never accept a French demand to renegotiate the Blair House agreement on reduction on farm subsidies.

And the Europeans were complaining about America's refusal to cut deeper into high US tariffs on Third World textile products.

Economists say the GATT talks, by knocking down trade barriers around the world holds the promise of boosting the global economy by 270 billion dollar over the next decade. But all countries have found the necessary compromises extremely difficult.

Rich countries were supposed to open their markets to textiles and agricultural products from the Third World. In return, poor countries were supposed to provide greater copyright protections while dismantling barriers to hightech manufactured goods and services such as banking offered by rich nations.

However, the global economic recession made every country more hesitant to lower trade barriers and risk throwing more people out of work.

The administration is hoping that President Clinton's come-from-behind victory in Congress on the North American Free Trade Agreement and his showing at last week's Asian-Pacific summit meeting would provide momentum for the GATT talks But deals the administration made to pass the free-trade agreement with Mexico and Canada will make it harder to complete the Uruguay Round. To win the votes of textilestate lawmakers, the administration agreed, on a longer phase-out of high American tariffs against Third World products and put some textile and apparel areas off-limits to significant tariff cuts. US tariffs in this area can be 30 per cent

This deal upset countries like India and prompted the EC to accuse the United States of being quick to attack protectionist barriers erected by others but unwilling to lower barriers for its most protected industries.

The administration also cut deals to protect citrus, sugar and peanuts.
