Romanians

rudely treated

Romanian Soccer Federation

(RSC) has complained to FIFA about "rude treatment" by police after last week's World Cup qualifier against Wales in Romania, was marred by the death of an elderly fan as he was struck by a powerful ma-

Thursday police had question their players and officials before allowing them to leave for

A top police officer in South Wales apologised on Thursday night for the inconvenience to officials, players and fans but said it had been "absolutely vital" to interview all the Romanian before they returned

Romanian complaint, assistant chief constable Rob Evans said in a statement: "It is recognised that they were delayed for some four hour while we processed in excess of 300 potential witnesses, which I believe was, to produced a substantial amount of evidence which had helped the police in their investigation.

North Wales, were charged last week with murdering John Hill, the 67-year-old fan killed in the Vivolaru told Reuter earlier on Thursday: 'We were offended by the rude treatment of the police (at Cardiff Airport) when they took picture for their criminal record of all the players.

although they were on the pitch

RSC vice-president Cristian

Two men from Wrexham

He said the interview had say the least, expeditious.'

Asked to comment on the

The match, won 2-1 by Romanian officials said on Cardiff, reports Reuter.

rine distress flare.

Bucharest.

to their country.

incident.

BUCHAREST, Nov 26: The

Boon, Slater savage Kiwis

lia, Nov 26: Opener Michael Slater hit a dashing 168. his highest score in Test cricket, as Australia piled on the run against New Zealand on the first reports Reuter. Number three batsman David Boon, playing in front of his home fans at Hobart's Bellerive Oval, joined in the plunder, scoring an undefeated 105.

day of the second Test today.

At stumps, Australia were a commanding 329 for two, taking full advantage of a weak New Zealand bowling attack. Mark Waugh was the other not out batsman on 18.

Coming together before lunch following Mark Taylor's dismissal for 27, Slater and Boon shared a record 235-run second-wicket partnership against New Zealand.

Slater, who survived Chances on 27, 99 and 156, was the dominant partner, smashing 17 boundaries before his dismissal 33-minute before the close.

The 23-year-old was finally caught when he hit a wide halfvolley from off-spinner Dipak Patel to Danny Morrison in the

On reaching his century, Slater kissed his Australian cap, an understandable how of relief following his frustrating dismissal on 99 in last week's drawn first Test in Perth.

"Slater's innings, which came off 235 deliveries in a 328-minute stay at the crease, surpassed his 152 at Lord's in the second Test against England in June.

"This was my first century in Australia and that is a highlight for me," Slater said afterwards. Boon, playing in front of his home crowd in Hobart, took a supporting role as Slater savaged the New Zealand attack after tea, belting 60 quickfire runs before his dismissal.

Although subdued in comparison of Slater's impressive array of shot making. Boon did achieve a personal milestone during his innings.

The face of Australian sport is changing. In the modern, multicultural society, Australian sports heroes now include a Russian boxer. Fijian rugby league player, an Aboriginal sprinter and a cricketer of spot Australians on the far side of the arena. Bronzed, bushhardened, settler sons and daughters of mostly British stock, they came from the beaches and the outback to beat the Mother Country and others at their own games. They excelled at cricket, tennis, athletics and both rugby codes.

while they swam - and drank

Today. Aussies are drinking slightly less but still winning ginning to reflect the country's broader ethnic mix. Since the 1960s, there has been large-scale emigration from southern Europe and, since the late 1970s, from Asia and the South Pacific. It was only a matter of time before these new Aussies ing a name for himself in the New South Wales cricket team

The 22-year-old opening batsman has the potential to play his country, which would make him the first person to do so with a Chinese father and a mother who is half-Chinese with strains of English, Irish,

Sydney, Chee Quee has an elder brother, Michael, who is also a talented cricketer and their rivalry was as much a spur to his development as the racism the self a bit more and eventually did," said Richard after scoring a superb 90 on his debut for New South Wales against the touring England, 'A' team in put him in the illustrious company of Sir Donald Bradman and Arthur Morris, the only two players to score a century on their debut for New South Wales. However, his 10 not out in the second innings gave him an average of exactly 100-0.6

Having been raised a six-hit

No one who saw him belt the Noa Nadruka is another more than the legendary Don.

away from the Sydney Cricket

Ground. Chee Quee dreamed about playing for Australia as a boy and insists: "It's still my No.

English bowlers all over his homeground last season.

story. The Fijian still has to commit himself to a second season of rugby league, as well as Australia. But having cro-seed the rugby Rubtoon after 25 union tests for his country of birth, the 26-year-old is almost certain to return to the Can-doubts he will achieve it.

Another 10 runs would have

"I guess I had to prove my pair encountered.

March.

l goal."

Born and brought up in German and Samoan blood.

Richard Chee Quee is makmade their mark.

while their successes are be-

Time was when you could

Chinese extraction.

sport.

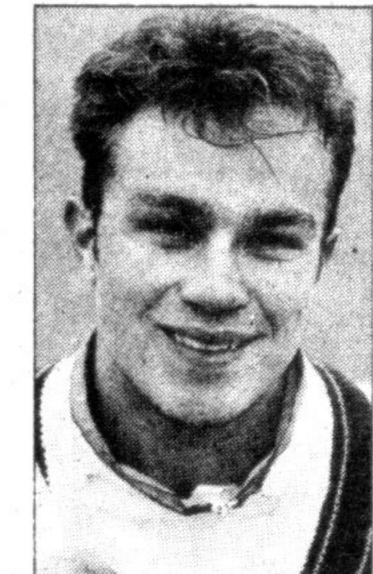

like fish.

With his score on 64, Boon became only the fifth Australian to pass 6,000 runs in Test

Despite their dominance against a feeble Kiwi attack's both batsmen survived chances early in their innings.

Slater was on 27 when he gave a simple catch to Mark Greatbatch but the New Zealand vice-captain spilled the ball at first slip.

Slater, attempting a quick single to reach his century was stranded when Boon sent him back. Only a wayward throw from Andrew Jones prevented his return to the pavilion.

SLATER... 168

"I was very nervous on 99 remembering what happened in Perth. I did not want to go through that disappointment against," said Slater.

"It was a stupid single to attempt and I was lucky not to be run out."

Finally, on 156 Slater gave Morrison a difficult, low return catch which the fast bowler failed to hold.

Boon, who should have been stumped by wicketkeeper Tony Blain on 65, is confident Australia can take advantage of their solid start on Saturday. "We should be capable of berra Raiders next year. And, if he wishes, he would then be but a goose-step away from has electrified league crowds in Australia as much as it has bamboozled his opponents.

Allied to the sort of strength that would stop a Mac truck, he is becoming as big a name

Down Under as he is in the Since making an unforget table pass through his legs in age that splashed his name across the world - the only

"mistake" this South Sea

Islander has made is in settling in the coldest climate in the Canberra is a southerly outpost of the 13-man code and tales abound of Nadruka's suffering in the capital's winter.

But after being bewildered by his first sight of snow and suffering frostbite in training, he has gradually warmed to his off the field, but becomes an extrovert on it and has earned the respect of this hardest of commitment with the ball, but "He's not only got great

Nadruka is notoriously shy the Hong Kong Sevens - an im-

Nadruka's distinctive stride

Australian citizenship.

Pacific.

Aussie game.

task.

tough schools.

getting a total close to 500," said the 32-year-old Tasma-

New Zealand's first breakthrough on a gruelling day in the field came before lunch when pace bowler Murphy Su'a grabbed Taylor's wicket.

Su'a tempted Taylor into a drive which flew to Andrew Jones in the gully with the score on 65. The tourists' attack was weakened by the late withdrawal of paceman Chris Cairns. The all-rounder declared himself unfit only two hours before the start of play, complaining of a bruised heel sustained during the first Test. · Cairns, named in the New Zealand line-up overnight, pulled out despite the pleading of captain Ken Rutherford, coach Geoff Howarth told reporters. New Zealand, already missing injured pace bowler Willie Watson, were weakened further when Patel limped off with a knee injury after tea.

SCOREBOARD

Scoreboard on the first day of the second cricket Test between Australia and New Zealand today:

AUSTRALIA: First innings Taylor c Jones b Su'a Slater c Morrison b Patel 105 Boon not out M Waugh not out Extra: (nb-10, b-1) Total: (for two wickets)

Fall of wickets: 1-65; 2-300 To bat: A Border, S Waugh, I Healy, P Reiffel, T May, S Warne, C McDermott,

Bowling (to	date)
-	0	M	R	W
Morrison	18	3	63	0
Su'a	17	2	66	1
Doull	15	0	60	0
De Groen	20	5	66	0
Harris	2	0	18	0
Patel	18	3	55	1

NEW ZEALAND: M Greatbatch, B Pocock, A Jones, K Rutherford (captain), D Patel, C Harris, T Blain, M Su'a, Doull, D Morrison, R De Groen.

Former amateur star Tszuy and his girlfriend have been granted Australian residency for which he is touchingly "grateful". He adds: "This country has been very good to me and Natasha. I have been all over the world, but what I like about Tszuy is his sheer, raw talent.

"It's eerie," says trainer Johnny Lewis, "that one athlete has been blessed with so much ability. There is not a skill miss-ting Russian brings the cold-eyed brutality of the KGB into the ring, all his opponents having hit the canvas, most of reer has not yet lasted 10 mins utes, a world title bout is already being lined up while champion Cesar Chavez is talking of moving up a weight.

Could it be that this unbeaten champ of 80 bouts wants to Cathy Freeman are not in doubt, nor is her quicksilver running ability. The 20-year-old Aboriginal from Queensland has the talent to be the greatest sprinter the country has pro-

The Australian roots of avoid Australia's Russian?

Although his professional ca-

The softly-spoken, hard-hit-ing from his repertoire."

them in the first round.

What the Aussies like about it here is stability."

They're not dinki-du but they're Aussies

Once you could spot Australians on the far side of the sports arena — bronzed, bush-hardened, settler sons and daughters of mostly British stock. Today, Australian sport shows how things have changed. One top cricketer, for example, is of Chinese extraction with some English, Irish, German and Samoan blood. Gemini News Service reports on the new face of Australian

Charlton's fear

DUBLIN, Nov 26: Ireland manager Jack Charlton has revealed his biggest fear for next year's World Cup - the British media, reports Reuter.

The Republic will be the only team from the British Isles to go the final and he is worried that the flerce media attention focused on ex-England manager Graham Taylor during the qualifying matches will now be switched to the Irish. .

Charlton said on Thursday; "I won't bargain with them. I'll sue them if they are unduly unfair about my players or my-

The former England players enjoys an amicable relationship with the Irish press and during a sponsorship launch at the American Embassy in Dublin he supported Taylor: "The press were out of order as regards Graham Taylor. They treated him very badly and I've nothing but sympathy for him."

Charlton added: "The last three years must have been traumatic for him and in those circumstances I would have tendered my resignation months ago."

Charlton, who would have considered quitting as Republic manager had they not secured a World Cup place with a 1-1 draw against Northern Ireland last week admitted that the opportunity of taking over as England manager for the 1996 European championships had interested

But that possibility has vanished now, with Charlton concentrating on the Republic's preparation for the United States in June by when a new England manager to succeed Taylor will have been named.

Heroes' welcome

SOFIA, Nov 26: Bulgarian President Jelio Jelev held a reception with Prime Minister Luben Berov on Thursday in honour of the Bulgarian football team reaching the World Cup finals, reports AFP.

Barcelona's Laudrup (R) and Galatasaray's Strimpf (L) in an aerial duel for the ball while Romario (10) and Ugur (7) look on during their European Champions league match on Nov 24, The match ended in goalless draw. - AFP photo

Colombia have point to prove

Nov 26: Colombia's soccer players are looking on the World Cup as a chance to show that there is more to their country than the stereotyped image of a nation riddled with drug traffickers, reports

Reuter. By repeating the exhilarating play which took them to the 1994 finals, they hope to won some rare international

"We have a mission to change this unfortunate situation through our football. Every game will be important for us in this respect," said midfielder Fredy Rincon.

Coach Francisco Maturna added: "All Colombian sportsmen, not just footballers, have to try and show the world that our country is not all bad. Of course, we have problems but there is a lot more than just the negative side."

"The problem is that every time something goes wrong here, the press blow it up and put it on the front page. Then the foreign press go and sell the story abroad."

Colombia's talented team. who made headlines by thrashing Argentina 5-0 in Buenos Aires in their final qualifier in September, are one of the main hopes for fans hoping for an improvement on the sterile, insipid soccer offered at the last World Cup in Italy.

The country appears to have everything to put on a show in the United States.

Faustino Asprilla, their gazelle like Italian-based strikers, is one of the most exciting forwards in the World.

Carlo Valderrama, with his distinctive mop of hair, is another colourful figure, controlling midfield with deft touches yet appearing, deceptively, to spend most of the game strolling casually around the centre of the pitch.

Other talented players include Bayern Munich striker Adolfo "The Train" Valencia, the lanky but gifted Rincon in midfields and goalkeeper Rene Higuita, who delights fans with his risky - some say suicidal habit of dribbling the ball up to the halfway line.

Higuita is currently in prison on charges of breaking the country's anti-kidnap law,

37 Slander

40 Winter

42 Able aid

DOWN

2 In the

3-Diary

5 Tops

6 Squid

course

CALI (Colombia), but his lawyers are hoping he believe that their team can acwill be free by the end of the > Asprilla is back in favour after at one stage walking out on the squad during the World Cup qualifier in protest at being dropped.

> Maturana said the row has been forgotten. "Faustino was a little upset because he was not finding his best form," he said.

The result in Buenos Aires. which has made Colombians tually win the trophy, is still celebrated.

One Colombian radio station keeps staff permanently in Italy and carries live commentary on every game played by Parma, Asprilla's club.

One of the favourite market ing ploys of domestic appli ance shops is to play a recording of the game on the television sets on display in their window.

when the rocket was fired. "We would have not protested against a normal police inquiry because we want also to see the killer behind bar, but they have abused their power." He added: "We have informed FIFA's general secretary Joseph Blatter about what happened at Cardiff Airport in order to avoid such harassment in the future." Romania's trainer Anghel lordanescu said: "It is a shame that the player of a national team... were treated like ordinary thieves.

A South Wales police spokesman said the player had been photographed to "avoid any ambiguity at a later stage in so much as they were potential

Assistant chief constable Evan said that at the time, police knew only that the flare had been fired from the general direction of blocks U and V in the south upper stand where most of the Romanian fans were lo-

The photograph could have been used to assist in reconstructing the position of spectator in those blocks.

Drug-free WC qualifiers

ZURICH, Switzerland, Nov 26: All random drug tests during the qualifying rounds for the 1994 World Cup turned out negative soccer's international governing body said Monday, reports AP.

Of 88 random tests at the 490 preliminary matches, none suggested that a player used illegal performance boosters, a FIFA statement said.

The qualifying tournament began in the summer of 1992 and ended last week after determining the last of the 24 finalists at next year's championship in the United States.

Izzy, the mascot for the 1996 Summer Olympics to be held in Atlanta, Georgia makes a first appearance in the 67th annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade in New York on - AFP photo Nov 25.

remark

whom the

Labyrinth

was built contrition

confident

Father's

Day gift

34 "Beat the Clock"

lenges

gniappe

45 Leading lady?

46 Morning

moisture

chal-

27 Unaltered

25 Showed

26 Ogle

29 Too

33 Up

31 Typical

23 King for

CROSSWORD By Eugene Sheffer 22 Rebuking ACROSS

1 Hardly ruddy 5 "Encore!" 8 "Oops!" 12 Articulate 14 Pebbles'

15 Football legend Bronko

16 Fiery saint 17 Rubbertree plant mover

18 Made it

20 Cheerleaders repertoire 23 Ryan and Foster 24 "Oh,

25 Established patterns 28 Yr. parts 29 Actress woe!

Berger 30 Nosh 32 It gets into your hair

34 Big rig 35 Wishes undone 36 "- Grows squirt 7 Heel type Brooklyn" 8 Ukraina seaport 9 Sword

41 Eye part handle 10 "This Time the 47 Lecturer's Dream's 48 Optional

11 Costner

49 Paradise role 13 Coffee 50 Conk out makers 51 Jet forth 19 Water, to 1 Slammer Juan 20 Go off style of course 21 Benevobrotherhood Solution time: 25 min.

ONETAXI LADOSU NORMAL SAFELY CINEMASPLEEN WORK VIM NOVA STAR

36 Pianist Templeton 37 Marceau, 38 Saharan 39 Similar to 40 Skedaddle 43 Actress MacGraw 44 La-

CRYPTOQUIP

UQLWOTSB RLUUQC MXIM VPVPWP OLRTSFRR MPPV OPLBXM

PS TM OIMX Saturday's Cryptoquip: INDECENT SEA CAPTAINS ON A SPREE TIDE ONE ON.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: O equals B

The Cryptoquip is a substitution cipher in which one letter stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words and words using an apostrophe give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is by trial and error.

in defence too. I mean he can tackle," says Bob Fulton. Australia's national coach.

Kostya Tszuy can handle the cold. A Russian refugee who settled in Sydney less than two years ago, this light-welterweight boxing sensation has had more trouble with the English language than anything else - least of all his nine opponents in the ring.

Raylene Boyle in the late 1950s. This year's British 200m champion, Freeman first came to prominence by winning relay gold in the 1990 Commonwealth Games in Auckland, New Zealand as a 17-year-old She went on to become Young Australian of the Year 1990, British 400m champion, Australian 200m queen and gaining championships in Seoul. She will not, of course, be a silver at the world junior the first Aboriginal to make sporting headlines — the likes of Evonne Goolagong (now Cawley), Lionel Rose and the Ella brothers being among other notables — but Freeman could be the first to do so since the nation's conscience was stirred on the question of Aboriginal rights.

The four new-breed Aussies are a varied bunch but they symbolise the changes in Australian society. As sport assumes a role beyond its real importance, they may have quite an influence on how that society comes to see itself in the multicultural 1990s. - Gemini

About the Author: Bob Holmes is a British sports journalist now living in Sydney. He is author of the bestselling Match of My Life, a collection of great football matches.

Medellin hold America

BOGOTA. Nov 26: Colombian champions America were held to a 1-1 draw at home to Medellin as coach Francisco Maturana, who doubles as the Colombia national team coach began a ten-match touchline ban at the weekend, reports Reuter.

Bernardo Redin gave Amer ica the lead with a long-range shot but Henry Zambrano equalised for Medellin.

The result kept America top of semifinal Group B with two games left. The top two teams in each four team group qualify for the fourth and final phase of the competition.

Maturana was banned for criticising the referee of a match between America and Atletico Nacional in Medellin at the end of October. "A gentleman took advantage of the fact that it is a halloween to disguise himself as a referee and take control of the match," he said at the time. After the punishment was announced. Maturana said he was considering resigning as Colombia's coach. "I can't promise that I will lead the national team at the World Cup, nor can I be certain that I will continue at America," he said.

row between Maturana and

The incident also led to a Atletico Nacional trainer Hernan Dario Gomez, who is Maturana's national team assistant. Colombia team captain Carlos Valderrama was a pale shadow of his usual self as his team. Junior Barranquilla, were held to a 1-1 draw at home to underdogs Once

Philips.

Junior still lead Group A. thanks to the bonus points carried through from the previous two stages of the compe-