US Senate budget body seeks spending cuts to reduce deficit

WASHINGTON, Mar 21: The Senate Budget Committee has approved a $1,511,700-million budget plan for fiscal year 1995 that would set the framework for five-year spending cuts bigger than President Clinton or Democratic congressional leaders want, says a USIS press release.

The plan, which now goes to the full Senate for consideration, calls for cuts of $1,600 million next year, and $ 26,100 million over five vears, over and above those called for in the long-term deficit reduction programme that Clinton pushed through Congress last year.

Four of the committee's 12 Democrats joined all nine Republicans in voting for the added, unspecified cuts March 17, rejecting appeals by Chairman James Sasser to "stay the course" and let the economy absorb those deficitcutting steps already ap-changes: Only one of their number. Senator Charles Grassley, voted with the 12 Democrats to produce the 13-8 margin by which the amended plan then won final committee approval.

Should the committee proposal hold up in the full Senate and then in negotiations with the House of Representatives - which has already approved a budget plan close to the president's - specific cuts would have to be decided upon later in the process as annual appropriation bills are drafted. Budget committee actions simply set a broad framework for the appropriators.

Sasser and administration spokesmen predicted that advocates of the added cuts could end up unhappy if those cuts survive review by the full Senate and by Senate-House conferees, since they could impact heavily on the defense and agriculture programmes that many of the Senators involved champion.

"If this holds, they will have to confront the reality of their actions. There will be a lot of loud wailing and gnashing of teeth when this thing takes hold," Sasser said.

Grassley rejected that warning as "scare tactics."

Ultimately, the required amounts would have to be pruned out of a broad range of so-called "discretionary" programmes - those subject to annual appropriations action by Congress - that includes defense, foreign aid and many domestic initiatives. "Entitlement" programmes such as Medicaid, Medicare and Social Security, whose funding is determined by formula, would be exempt.

Clinton administration officials say that the president's plan, which continues a trend of cutbacks in defense spending, would achieve the first year-to-year reduction in the dollar amount of discretionary spending since 1969, without the additional cuts.

And Speaker of the House Thomas Foley warned when the House acted March 11 that any additional spending cuts beyond the five-year total of almost $ 500,000 million approved last year would be "very damaging to essential programmes." He argued that "whatever anyone could say in the past about the possibility of taking deeper spending cuts there is no question now we are at the bone."

Senate Majority (Democratic) Leader George Mitchell and Minority (Republican) Leader Robert Dole told colleagues before the committee acted that they want to take up the budget measure on the Senate floor early in the week of March 21 and complete action before the congressional Easter recess begins at week's end.

All three budget proposals - the Clinton, House and Senate Budget Committee versions — are estimated to reduce the federal budget deficit to well under $180,000 million in the 1995 fiscal year that starts next October 1. That would be the smallest deficit recorded in six years.

Tehran-Riyadh bickering unlikely to affect OPEC

MANAMA, Mar 21: Bickering between oil giants Iran and Saudi Arabia may undermine their cooperation in the Gulf but is unlikely to greatly affect what OPEC decides when it meets in Geneva next week, oil sources said yesterday, reports Reuter.

The two nations, which with ostracised Iraq tower politically over the Gulf, are also the two largest members of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). accounting between them for just under half of its total out

The oil market hangs on what they decide.

Traders and analysts appeared concerned last week when the two exchanged highlevel charges in connection with Saudi Arabia's handling of the annual Muslim pilgrimage (Haj). The dispute widened when the Saudi oil ministry reacted sharply to Iranian press criticism of its high oil production levels.

But Gulf OPEC sources dismissed the importance in so far as OPEC was concerned.

"Usually they've been very cooperative with each other regardless of what happens politically," one source said.

"If there is grounds for cooperation, they will consider the interests of the two countries and cooperate with each other, regardless of other is-

The sources noted that Iran's Minister Gholamreza Agazadeh, the doven of OPEC ministers, has been oil minister since 1986 when Saudi Arabia was giving financial assistance to Iraq in its war with Political differences at that time and subsequently did not stop the two nations from frequently pulling together on OPEC policy even though Iran has usually sought higher prices and the Saudis have sought price moderation to ensure long-term demand.

Despite a tradition of closing ranks on oil, it was perhaps less likely that there could be a repeat at next week's OPEC meeting of the phone contact between Iranian President Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani and Saudi King Fahd, the sources said.

A Kuwaiti oil source said on Sunday one possibility was for OPEC to cut by between 700,000 barrels per day (BPD) and one million, with non-OPEC contributing 300,000 BPD in cuts.

The latest Saudi-Iranian clash came on Friday, when a Saudi oil ministry spokesman denied a Tehran Times accusa tion of Saudi quota cheating.

The spokesman charged that Iran itself tends to violate its OPEC quota unless it is physically unable to do so.

US extends jt marketing arrangement with BA

WASHINGTON, Mar 21 lion NZ dollars (171 million The US Department of Tran-US dollars) either way of equisportation has extended for a year the British Air-USAir joint marketing arrangement, or code-sharing authority, even while criticizing the United Kingdom for failing to give US airlines more access at Heathrow and other UK air-KARACHI, Mar 21: The ports, says a USIS press restate-owned National Bank of lease.

> The announcement, mades late March 17, includes Transportation Secretary Federico Pena's complaint about the UK government's failure in a year of negotiations to make any concessions.

"I have been very disappointed with the lack of progress in the negotiations." Pena said.

"Over the last year the British government has demonstrated no real interest in puffsuing a new and more liberal aviation regime that would give US airlines comparable competitive opportunities to those of UK carriers."

he said. Competing US airlines wanted Pena to terminate the code-sharing arrangement which allows British Air and USAir to write tickets covering flights on both airlines, each extending its access to min kets it does not serve directly.

"The continuation of codesharing by BA and USAir is provided notwithstanding actions the US government may take with regard to the exist ing US-UK bilateral aviation agreement," Pena said.

Competing US airlines also wanted Pena to scrap the existing bilateral agreement called Bermuda II, which they argue gives them less access in the United Kingdom than UK airlines have in the United

From May through December the two sides had five rounds of negotiations and none since then, said a State Department official who asked not to be identified.

He said that while those negotiations made marginal progress on technical issues. they made no progress on the central issues: - US airlines' access to UK airports especially London's Heathrow. US airlines rights to fly from London to other international destinations, especially in Europe. No further negotiations are currently planned. In March 1993 the Transportation Department approved for one year the codesharing arrangement in connection with British Airway's investment in the financially troubled USAir. A few days ago British Air indicated it would not proceed with further investment until USAir brought its costs under control.

"British Airway's decision to reevaluate its investment relationship with USAir should not preclude the United States and the United Kingdom from moving forward in our efforts to create a substantially less restrictive operating environment for airlines on both sides of the Atlantic," Pena said.

The Clinton administration has proposed legislation increasing from 25 to 49 per cent the allowed proportion of US airlines voting stock owned by non-US citizens.

Under the proposal, however, any increase would depend on reciprocal liberal market access rights and liberal foreign investment opportunities for US airlines and investors in foreign countries.

The proposal still requires passage in Congress.

US banks arranging loans for S Arabia

NICOSIA, Mar 21: US banks are arranging the first loan to be raised by Saudi Arabia to cover its deferred payments to US arms suppliers, the Middle East Economic Survey (MEES) said today, reports Reuter.

MEES said Chase Manhattan, Citibank and JP Morgan and Co Inc are proposing a 1.85 billion US dollar facility repayable over about five years, which would be enough to cover the shortfall in payments during the first year.

It said the Saudi Government was currently considering its options, but a decision "is expected soon in the light of general understanding that the financial aspects of the arms payment restructuring would be finalised within about three months of the agreement to defer deliveries."

Cash-strapped Saudi Arabia and the United States had in January signed a deal by which the Saudis will restructure 9.2 billion US dollars in arms payments to US firms previously due over the next two

Under the deal the Saudis will pay 1.5 billion US dollars a year over the next two years.

Japan must open semiconductor market further'

WASHINGTON, Mar 21: The foreign share of Japan's semiconductor market reached 20.7 per cent in the fourth quarter of 1993, partially fulfilling an agreement with the United States, but US Trade Representative Mickey Kantor says Japan must open the market further, says a USIS release.

"We remain concerned that US and other foreign semiconductor suppliers are not achieving improved access to the Japanese market on a sustained basis commensurate with their very strong global competitive position," Kantor
