

Cox's Bazar: The Storm and After

All pictures by Chief Star Photographer AKM Mohsin

No forest anywhere in the world can withstand winds blowing at nearly 250kms per hour. Part of the woodlands in Ramu thana of Cox's Bazar district after Monday's cyclone.

From the frying pan, into the fire: These hapless Rohingya men, women and children, who came to Teknaf to escape persecution by soldiers in their native Myanmar, must be wondering what's wrong with their luck following the cruel hand dealt them by nature Monday.

People clearing the Teknaf-Cox's Bazar highway of felled trees and uprooted electric poles yesterday.

Life must go on: Relatives taking away the body of a dear one for burial yesterday

Relief being unloaded from a Bangladesh Air Force helicopter at Ukhia thana of Cox's Bazar district, one of the three worst-hit thanas.

Environment Minister Abdullah-al Noman (2nd from right) and State Minister for Textiles Maj (retd) Abdul Mannan inspecting the damage at Duapalang yesterday.