Rao urged to open talks with Pakistan
Clinton tones down stand on Kashmir, N-issues

WASHINGTON, May 20: President Clinton Thursday urged Indian Prime Minister P V Narasimha Rao to engage in a constructive dialogue with Pakistan over the future of disputed Kashmir, reports Reuters.

But he made his appeal without rancour and the two leaders, after talks described as friendly and productive, went out of their way to signal closer ties between two countries who have had strained relations in the past.

"Today we began what I hope will be a very close working relationship as our two countries forge a stronger partnership," Clinton told a news conference "our nations share many common values, and speaking as friends, we explored ways to deepen our ties and to expand cooperation."

Said Rao: "The President and I agreed that we have in unprecedented opportunity to free India-US bilateral relations from the distortions induced by the coldwar."

In the first visit by an Indian Prime Minister to the White House since Rajiv Gandhi in 1987, Clinton pointedly declined to criticise India for alleged human rights abuses in Kashmir and for pursuing a nuclear weapons programme.

"We have some things that we have agreed to continue to discuss with regard to the human rights issue and the proliferation issue, and we will continue to discuss them," said Clinton.

He said at another point, "when two nations are friends, it doesn't mean that they agree on everything or that they should. But in the context of their friendly relationships, they are then able to discuss differences, problems or issues between them."

As he spoke, several hundred people demonstrated against Indian policies in Kashmir in Lafayette Park across the street from the White House.

India and Pakistan have fought two wars over the disputed Kashmir region.

Budget: The soft option

By A Special Correspondent

On June 6 Finance Minister Saifur Rahman will present his fourth budget under the present government. With the next elections not too far away there is a lot of speculation that the fourth budget will be 'softer' than the previous ones.

In his last three budgets Saifur Rahman has tried quite aggressively to raise investment in the economy. To achieve this he needed to raise the rate of savings first. Thus, in the first budget he went after raising more taxes and reducing unproductive expenditure so that increased public saving can boost the domestic savings rate.

In the second budget Saifur Rahman continued to push for more revenue and, simultaneously, focused on industry, import and trade, and services, the hope of making the private investors interested in investing more in export-oriented industries.

The third budget maintained the push for generation of higher savings through collection of increased tax revenue and further liberalised imports.

In the last three years the economy has seen a number of positive developments. The proportion of the GDP that is invested has increased from 11 per cent to 14.5 per cent, according to the Planning Commission. The imbalance between imports and exports has been more than halved. Foreign exchange reserves are at an extremely comfortable level. And, although foreign investment of any significant amount is yet to come in, import and trade, and services, the hope of making the private

Pak opposition deplores 'secret deal' with US on N-inspection

ISLAMABAD, May 20: Pakistan opposition today accused the government of entering into a secret deal with the United States to open the country's nuclear facilities to inspection, reports AFP.

The opposition attack came after Foreign Minister Asf Ali Zardari said Wednesday that Islamabad was ready to consider proposals from the United States on 'non-intrusive' means to verify that Pakistan was not producing nuclear weapons.

The Leader of the Opposition Pakistan Muslim League, Nawaz Sharif, a former Prime Minister, said "To agree to non-intrusive verification means inspection which is worse than a roll back."

The Foreign Minister's statement came as the Pakistani President Farooq Ahmed Leghari's departure on a private visit to the United States to meet US officials.
