

ILO urges India to free bonded child labourers

GENEVA, June 24: A major International Labour Organisation (ILO) committee urged India on Thursday to free bonded labourers, especially children, reports Reuter.

India was the only country singled out by the ILO's "standards committee" of delegates. It, however, stopped short of condemning New Delhi or recommending sanctions.

The 227-member body — composed of representatives of governments, employers and workers groups — said it expected the United Nations agency to adopt its full report and "special paragraph" on India at the end of its annual meeting on Friday.

Jean-Jacques Elmiger, a Swiss labour official who chaired the body, expressed concern India was not fully enforcing the ILO convention against forced labour. New Delhi, which ratified the text in 1954, officially abolished bonded labour in 1976.

"We urge the government to take all necessary and urgent steps to eliminate effectively bonded labour and specifically children at work in this situation," he told a news briefing.

"Our strong conclusion is not a condemnation. It is more of an invitation to the government to make some corrections in the field on implementing the concerned persons, with children a priority."

Elmiger called the committee's statement, the text of which was not available on Thursday, more of a "political injunction".

Labour rights and standards have been a major issue at the international labour conference, as the 171-member state ILO celebrates its 75th anniversary as a champion of social justice.

A draft report issued this week by the standards committee, obtained by Reuters, included the following on India's compliance with the 1930 convention on forced labour.

"Notwithstanding the efforts made, much remained to be done to overcome the problems... concerning notably the identification, liberation and rehabilitation of persons in bonded labour, including children, as well as, in particular, the introduction of an efficient enforcement system."

China plans to open ports to foreigners

BEIJING, June 24: China plans to open its ports to foreign cargo handlers and let foreign-Chinese shipping ventures ply inland and coastal waterways, a Chinese minister was quoted Friday as saying, reports AP.

Communications Minister Huang Zhendong said the plan was part of China's bid to join the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, the world trade body that China hopes to reenter before the year's end, the official China Daily said.

Huang said foreign shippers would be allowed to handle cargo and operate routes from Chinese ports that are open to foreign vessels, the newspaper said.

Pak businessmen begin 2-day strike tomorrow

ISLAMABAD, June 24: Many of Pakistan's top businessmen and industrialists said on Thursday they would go ahead with a two-day strike next week after the breakdown of talks with the government on their complaints about new taxes, reports Reuter.

"There will be a complete shutdown on June 26 and 27, S.M. Muneer, President of the Federation of Pakistan Chambers of Commerce and Industry (FPCCI), told reporters.

He said industry would decide further action after the strike, in which he said transport, factories, bazaars and petrol stations would close.

A second day of talks between business and government officials broke down in fierce disagreement and shouting between the two sides. "We will see who strikes and who doesn't," Commerce Minister Ahmed Mukhtar, himself a leading industrialist, told Reuters after the talks. "It is easier said than done."

Each side complained that the other had sabotaged the talks on the new 1994/95 (July/June) budget.

Businessmen have criticised a budget decision to replace a fixed capacity tax with a general sales tax, new excise duties on an ad valorem basis to be collected by tax officials with the powers to search, arrest and prosecute, and new income tax regulations.

"Maybe the government will lose some revenue but we can't yield under this pressure," Mukhtar said.
