Learning about Life the Hard Way

Iftikhar A Chowdhury

She has been taught from her very childhood never to challenge the authority of the senior male members of the family — be it her father, elder brothers and in her later years — her husband. Selina Banu during all the years of her childhood, adolescence, youth and womanhood allowed her life to be governed by this supreme belief that men were born to lord over women.

But the very principle that had dictated Selina Banu's life seemed to have no value to her when her 'ever-caring' husband married for a second time leaving behind three little children with their hapless mother.

As most helpless women in our country almost readily put up with these kinds of cruel and faithless acts by their male counterparts quite often to see if things came back to normal from the part of their husbands, Selina refused to make a compromise and beg her husband to have mercy on her.

Almost like Henrik Ibsen's Nora in his celebrated play 'The Doll's House', she also came out of the corrupt social stasis to stage a protest through making a livelihood all by herself. As Selina Banu saw no reason to remain in the ruins of her dreams, she, instead, chose a life of freedom and hardship. For once in her life she understood that she was the master of herself and that she would 'no longer remain a burden on anyone.'

But was this struggle for individual freedom and economic emancipation easy for her to achieve? Not at all. 'For days on end I along with my three young kids had to remain half-starved. No one gave any work. As you might know, society is very cruel to woman like us and usually lays all the blames on us,' says a nostalgic Selina.

She understands full well how heavy the word 'struggle' can weigh on a person who has to fight against all odds to keep the body and soul together.

Now Selina Banu is doing well by herself through a small-scale cottage industry where she weaves baskets and stools with bamboo canes and owns considerably large poultry farm, where she has eight employees working for her at a daily wage of Tk 60 each. Two among her three children are now attending school. Her ex-husband, Monu, who drove a baby-taxi in the city now wants to sneak into the family again. He even said that he would get a divorce from his second wife, if he has to, for coming back to the family.

But for a woman who has suffered enough, Selina knows well what it will amount to in the new future. So, she has, throughout, remained firm in her decision not to let that person into her life and take away her freedom and happiness again.

Of course, she does not want to see her ex-husband's life to be tormented in any way. On the contrary, she prays to God for his well being. Once he even approached her for financial assistance and she gave it to him knowing well she would never be able to recover it.

After six years of extreme struggle and hardship of all conceivable kinds, Selina has known life from close quarters. 'Here anyone hardly comes forward when you are in dire needs. No one spares you when you do something wrong. But as soon as you happen to be the owner of some property or money, the same bunch of people who kicked you out come crawling to you. It all seems like a circus or a drama,' says a battle-hardened Selina who had made it a point not to give up without a fight and also to see things to the very end.

The Jatiyatabadi Chhatra Dal (JCD) brought out a procession on the Dhaka University Campus yesterday.

JCD rally on DU campus

Jatiyatabadi Chhatra Dal (JCD) leaders yesterday urged the student community to build up a united resistance against all kinds of undemocratic movement and terrorism on the campus, reports UNB.

The urge came from a JCD rally held in front of DUCSU Bhavan in the morning. It was addressed, among others, by its President Fazul Haq Milon and General Secretary Nazimuddin Alam.

Addressing the rally, Milon said, 'Jatiyatabadi Chhatra Dal cannot accept frequent haral which is affecting the economy of the country seriously.'

'We will fight against all kinds of evil movement to institutionalise the hard earned democracy,' Nazimuddin Alam said adding that if needed we will sacrifice our blood to make the country happy and prosperous.'

Earlier, a JCD rally paraded different parts of the city and the campus which terminated in front of the DUCSU Bhavan.

STAR TV's movie channel Oct 1

The STAR TV Network executives yesterday unveiled plans for a unique new movie channel catering to viewers in South East Asia and Middle East, says a press release.

At a press briefing held yesterday at the Taj Mahal Intercontinental Hotel in Bombay, the network announced that it would officially launch the encrypted service on October 1.

STAR Movies is an encrypted service which will provide subscribers with 24 hours of high quality international film entertainment, seven days a week.

This latest channel, designed to cater specifically for STAR TV's Southern Beam, comes just months after the highly successful launch in Taiwan and The Philippines of a Northern Beam service.

The content of the new channel will comprise 100 per cent 'international' titles, acquired through exclusive deals with major distributors round the world.

Training course on radiography testing at BAEC

By Staff Correspondent

A training course on "Radiography Testing" was held yesterday in the city at the Bangladesh Atomic Energy Commission (BAEC).

Chaired by BAEC director, Dr MA Sobhan, the course was inaugurated by the acting chairman of the commission Dr MA Wajed Mia. Chief of the NDT department, BAEC, Dr. Mohammad Sanaullah spoke on the aims and nature of the course.

At the opening session, Dr Wajed said radiography testing or NDT was an unavoidable process for any kind of industry. The demand for personnel trained in radiography testing was increasing with the expansion of industrialisation in the country, he added.
