US won't impose anti-dumping duty on chemical

WASHINGTON. Sept 16: No anti-dumping duties will be imposed on U.S imports of the organic chemical phthalic anhydride from Venezuela, the U.S International Trade Commission (USITC) has decided.

The commissioners voted 6-0 in a final determination that the imports do not injure U.S industry.

Imposition of anti-dumping duties requires affirmative final determinations both from the Commerce Department on dumping and from the USITC on injury.

In August the Commerce Department ruled in its final determination that dumping was taking place, estimating the dumping margin at 52 per

Farmer makes fortune from ginseng root

BEIJING, Sept 16: A Chinese farmer has made his fortune from a 600-year-old ginseng root which he sold for 1.8 million yuan (209,000 dollars), a newspaper reported, says Reuter.

The ginseng weighed 390 grams (14 ounces) and was 130 cm long, making it the largest of its species found so far in China

Ginseng is used in restoratives and tonics, especially for the elderly and child-bearing women.

The Jilin Daily, seen in Beijing on Friday, said the farmer found the ginseng on Changbai mountain last month and sold it to a local ginseng trading firm.

US to help Haiti recover economy, says official

PORT-AU PRINCE, Sept 16: The United States will contribute heavily to Haiti's economic recovery after its military leaders leave power and exiled President Jean-Bertand Aristide is reinstated, a US of ficial said here, reports AFP.

US aid will focus on Haiti's balance of payments, reorgan ising the finance and economy ministries, improving the country's infrastructure and organizing general elections before the end of the year, said the official who asked not be identified.

His comments came as Washington steps up plans to head a multinational military invasion of Haiti to depose the generals who overthrew Aristide three years ago.

The official gave no esti mates on future US aid to Haiti, but said that it would "increase substantially" from the 74 million dollars of mostly humanitarian assistance provided this year.

The flow of international aid to Haiti ceased after the September 30,1991 coup. The World Bank organised a meeting of donor countries in Paris on August 26 to plan future economic aid to Haiti after the US-led invasion. Priority was given to the meet its debt arrears before it can qualify for fresh loans from the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund. "The US government will pick up at least 25 million dollars of the 82 million dollars in arrears, the official said. adding that Japan was also expected to make a hefty contri bution. One immediate problem, he said, will be setting the country's balance of payments straight to cope with 15 million dollars in monthly salaries for government workers.

Move to stabilise prices of cocoa

LONDON, Sept 16: Cocoa producer and consuming nations on Tuesday took a step towards a goal of ending boombust cycles in their commodity and stabilising prices, reports Delegates at talks of the 34nation International Cocoa Organisation ((ICCO) agreed in London on rules under which a committee will work on a fiveyear output management plan.

Delegates did not, however believe that key output policies could be agreed and implemented at the current meeting, due to end on Friday. "It will take longer than that, said a consumer delegate. Earlier, the ICCO issued data showing that there would be a deficit of 102,000 tonnes in the 1993-94 cocoa year ending in September. This is the third deficit in a row.

The ICCO London talks had needed to agree rules governing a committee to implement a five-year production man agement plan under a new in ternational cocoa agreemen reached in February.

The committee is now charged with drawing up a plan "designed to achieve a lasting equilibrium between world production and consumption of cocoa." It will then coordinate individual producers" output planning and monitor progress.

Rules were agreed after four days of talks. Producers and consumers said a stumbling block was over the quorum needed in the committee to implement production management strategies.

The report charged that an excessive emphasis on supplyside economic policies - such as income tax cuts - helped plunge the world into recession and is the reason for the current recovery proceeding at a much slower rate than is normal for a cyclical recession.

"As a result, the world economy has in most years suffered from a deficiency of demand." Lawrence said. "The shift away from demand management has been accompanied by extensive financial liberalization, which has made it easier for private sector borrowing and lending to undergo rapid expansions and contractions, making overall spending and with it economic activity

Observers are expecting strong Asian participation because they see Qantas as being well-placed to take advantage of the region's travel boom. Asia is forecast to be the world's fastest-growing region for travel well into the 21st century.

Qantas last year expanded its operations from being a purely international airline to include domestic services when it acquired Australian Airlines (also governmentowned) for slightly less than dustry observers.

Qantas has a 20 per cent stake in Air New Zealand — not a particularly happy situation for both airlines.

The government and Qantas management are closely watching passenger and cargo bookings. They will have an impact on profits for the six months to the end of December.

The results for this halfyear are expected to be announced mid-March - just weeks before the Qantas shares hit the market. The airline suffered a loss of some 270 million dollars during fiscal 1993. But Qantas has experienced improved operating conditions since then, both in its domestic and international markets.

Managing Director James Strong was quoted as stating that his management team had "guarded confidence that things are improving." The government has so far not disclosed limits that are sure to be placed on foreign investors, particularly foreign airlines. It is unlikely that a foreign airline will be allowed to take up a controlling interest in Qantas - although it is possible that a foreign airline could be allowed to match the 25 per cent stake of British Airways. There is much speculation
