Under the three-year agreement. UNESCO and . Green Cross International (GCI), an environmental group founded by Gorbachev during the 1992 Earth Summit, will coopérate in environmental tourism, the creation of "ecojobs," including water resource management and the establishment of a database on environmental needs and expertise.

The memorandum of understanding also calls for UNESCO and Green Cross to establish future agreements in environmental education, media and culture. UNESCO and Green Cross will also agree to coordinate their actions in the countries where both operate.

"There is a lot-in common that unites us," Gorbachev said referring to UNESCO and GCI. "I am sure we will be able to accomplish much if we act together in culture and the environment," he said.

Gorbachev was in Paris yesterday to inaugurate the French chapter of Green Cross International. The Group has chapters in the United States.

Russia. Switzerland and the Netherlands.

Last September, UNESCO and Green Cross signed a contract which calls for cooperation on cultural and environmental tourism. Under the agreement, UNESCO will provide 97,000 US dollars to GCI to develop a more integrated approach to sustainable tourism.

"Tourism destroys areas -St. Martin's, Bimini, Jamaica and it's about to destroy the Galapagos," said Ulrich Goluka. GCI's programme manager for the joint UNESCO-GCI sustainable tourism project.

"Destinations are left with decaying infrastructures, people without jobs, destroyed expectations," he said. Sustainable tourism "involves everything from public safety to attitudes of locals towards tourists."

Amnesty urges Chinton

Clarify human rights policy at APEC summit

sident Clinton needs to make his human rights policy clear at the coming Pacific economic summit in Indonesia, in order to clarify confusing signals from Washington, Amnesty International USA said late Wednesday, reports UNB.

"It is appalling that in honour of Clinton and the other world leaders attending the summit, the Indonesian government is killing people" in a crackdown on street crim- . inals, said Estrellita Jones, Asian Affairs coordinator of the human rights organisation.

"President Clinton and other leaders must condemn these blatant acts of abuse in no uncertain terms," Jones, said in a statement directed at Clinton and leaders of 17 other governments expected at the mid-November meeting of APEC, the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation forum.

Moving to "cleanse the streets of Jakarta" of petty criminals before the conference, Indonesian authorities have resorted to random shootings and summary executions along with "a concerted attack" on freedom of the press, assembly and association, Amnesty charged.

"The anti-crime drive has led to an apparent increase in the already common practice of arbitrary police killings of alleged criminals." it said in a 35-page report titled "Operation Cleansing -- Human Rights and APEC.

. Amnesty gave no figure on deaths. It said it believes

WASHINGTON. Nov 3: Pre- "many of the victims may have been unlawfully executed," and quoted official Indonesian statements that it said "appear to condone the killing of criminals" without investigation.

Besides the United States, Australia, Japan and the governments of ASEAN, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations "have often stated their commitments in principle to the protection of human rights," Amnesty said.

"Yet in the run-up to the APEC meeting they have sent a message that they don't intend to raise human rights issues within the forum," it added. "Regional business leaders have taken a similar position."

Accusing the Clinton administration of sending confusing signals, it quoted Robert Barry, the US Ambassador to Jakarta, as telling a business group in August, "The US will not raise worker rights nor link trade and environmental issues in APEC . . . Our discussions in APEC do not include worker rights issues, and it would be inappropriate to raise those is-

The following month, Sandra O'Leary, US Deputy Assistant Secretary of State. "delivered a more nuanced message" at a Jakarta conference on investment, the report continued. While APEC will focus on economic issues. O'Leary "indicated that human rights issues might be raised dufting bilateral meetings that would take place outside the formal APEC forum," it added.

Pilots' strike costs Indian Airlines 3m rupees

NEW DELHI, Nov 3: Indian Airlines resumed a normal schedule Thursday after ending a five-day pilots strike that cost the domestic carrier three million rupees (100,000 dollars) a day, reports AP.

Venezuela won't withdraw candidate to head OPEC

CARACAS, Nov 3: Venezuela will not withdraw its candidate to head the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries, despite a proposal by Nigeria to name a compromise candidate. Venezuela Energy and Mines Minister Erwin Arrieta said Wednesday. reports AP

Nigerian officials last week proposed former Nigeria Oil Minister Rilanu Lukman as a compromise candidate to break a stalemate with Iran over picking the new secretary general of OPEC

But Arrieta told journalists that former Venezuela Energy and Mine Minister Alirio Parra will remain Venezuela's candidate for the job. "To withdraw our candidate, sion." Arrieta said. "Venezuela has, and will maintain, its candidate." Parra's candidacy was blocked at the last OPEC meet-would not be the best deci-ing by Iran, which is backing its own candidate. Hossein Kazempour-Ardebili. The secretary general must be elected unanimously by the 12 OPEC countries. "It's absurd that one vote can block the will of eleven." Arrieta said.

2,300 years old coins found in China

CHANGSHA, Nov 3: Chinese archaeologists have found four coins dating back to 2,300 years in a tomb at a construction site in Chengzhou prefecture in central China's Hunan province, reports Xinhua.

They say that the structure of the tomb and implements unearthed and their characteristics prove that the owner of the coins was from the state of Chu in the late warring states period (475-221, b.c).

The coins are shaped like ants, and the two holes in each coin look like human nostrils. They have thus been named 'vibi (ant and nostril) coins. each coin is 1.8 cm long, 12 cm wide and 0.4 cm thick and has a weight of one gram. It has a Chinese character on the reverse side.

Yibi coins were made of bronze and were widely circulated in Chu and even in Soem neighbouring states for their lightness and easy conversion.

Such coins have also been found in Hubei Bunan, Henan, Shandong, Shaanxi and Anhui provinces.

Chengzhou prefecture is located at the juncture of Hunan, Guangdong and Jiangxi provinces a large number of archaeological findings prove that Chengzhou was a place where the Chu and Yue (gvangdong) cultures mingled during the eastern Zhou dynasty (770-256 b.c)
