Record tea crop likely in Lanka this yr

COLOMBO, Nov 21: Sri Lanka appears to be heading for a record tea crop this year. but high production costs still plague the industry, the island's main foreign exchange earner, officials and analysts said yesterday, reports Reuter.

Tea board officials said they expect the crop to exceed 240 million kg (529 million lbs), up from 232 million (511 million lbs) last year because of good weather and higher increased productivity, boosting exports and maintaining Sri Lanka's position as one of the world's biggest tea exporters.

Sri Lanka earned 241 million dollars in tea exports up to July this year, against 230 million dollars in the same period last year.

"We're looking for 240 million kilograms without fail, Michael De Zoysa, Tea Director at Lipton-Brooke Bond told Reuters.

"We need to do only 59 million to break the record (of 240.7 million kg in 1991)," he

170.5 million kg (375.8 million lbs) in the same period last year, although black tea production in September fell 16 per cent to 17.5 million kg (38.5 million lbs) from 20.8 million (45.8 million lbs) in the same month last year. The tea crop for the last quarter of 1993 was 61 million kg (134 million lbs).

Tea Board officials said that despite better productivity by private management firms which took over the loss-making state owned tea estates in June 1992, the industry's production costs were higher than the average sales price.

"The cost of production is very high," said an industry analyst who declined to be identified. "The industry is still in a great deal of trouble."

He said the management firms had improved agricultural practices, increased yields, used fertiliser regularly at the right time and modernised factories.

"They also improved the quality of tea," he said. "All that has helped. But that does not take away the cost of production which hangs like a sword of damcles over the industry.

Industry officials said production costs were high because of wage hikes won by the powerful Ceylone Workers Congress (CWC) tea plantation trade union.

CWC strongman Sauvmiamoorthy Thondaman, with a big chunk of minority Tamil votes in the estates, was brought into the ruling People's Allia nce (PA) ministry on the eve of last week's presidential poll, won by President Chandrika Kumaratunga.

Thondaman, a minister in the previous regime, promised Kumaratunga votes to help swing the poll in her favour but demanded guaranteed income for 25 days a month for his union. The private management firms say they cannot afford this.

"In the short term the industry is very precariously placed because of the cost of production factor," said an economist who declined to be identified.

"Sri Lanka has a major problem—whatever agricultural practices they implement they cannot get the yields of India, Kenya or Indonesia - our tea lands are older, the top soil washed away," he added. "If we can't get those yields, we can't break the cost of production syndrome. The alternative was to control costs but flexibility and a change of attitude were needed from union labour, he

"The prospects for the industry are not that bad except for our cost of production which is very high - about 75 rupees per kg (34 rupees per lb), said Merrill Fernando of MJF exports, a top tea exporter. "The net sales average is less than that."

De Zoysa said tea prices at Colombo auctions seem to have bottomed for the year." Prices are normally low at this time of year because of low quality, he said.

The January-October gross sale price of all teas sold shows the average at almost 65 rupees per kg (30 rupees per lb) against 69 rupees (31.4 rupees) in 1993 and 59 rupees 26.8 rupees) in 1992. De Zoysa
