Slump in cotton output impels Pakistan to lower growth rate

ISLAMABAD, Jan 22: The Pakistani government, facing a severe setback in its corton crop this year, has been compelled to revise downward the country's growth rate, officials here said, reports AFP.

The government of Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto expected an acceleration in gross domestic product (GDP) to seven per cent for fiscal 1994--95, ending June 30, but the actual amount is likely to be only 6.5 per cent. officials said.

An official requesting anonymity said that the "target ! had to be revised due to a cotton crop depleted by excessive rains, pests and curl leaf

Benazir said last week that the decline in cotton production would result in a lowering of the country's macro-eco. nomic targets.

Some analysts described the 6.5 per cent figure as and "optimistic assessment," and warned the final rate could be even lower given the dismal

Despite the decline, Pakistan is still the world's fourth largest producer of cotton. It is also the third largest

Grown over 2.8 million hectares, cotton feeds more than 300 spinning mills, more than 1,000 cotton in factories and some 5,000 cotton oil manufacturers in Pakistan. Official sources say Pakistan's earnings from the textile sector amount to more than 60 per cent of the country's total

The domestic textile industry consumes seven million bales of cotton each year. But the third successive crop failure this year has made Pakistan a cotton importing country, losing its status as the second largest exporter of lint

To overcome the domestic shortage the government has directed the state run Cotton Export Corporation (CEC) to import cotton from abroad.
