Kumar Sahani, the Indian filmmaker and film aesthetician, presented a paper on "Ritwik Ghatak" yesterday at the first Alamgir Kabir Memorial Lecture held on the occasion of the International Short Film Festival in the city. "Socio-economic conditions affecting people and neo-colonialism were the themes of his works". Sahani said recalling the films of the great Bengali filmmaker, who died in 1976. "Ghatak's desire for life, for giving to others and the multiple contradictions that is nature, is ever perceptible in his films," Sahani said on the maker of such timeless classics as Titas Ekti Nadir Naam and 'Subarna Rekha'. Organised by the Bangladesh Short Film Forum. the lecture session at the Public Library seminar room was presided over by Professor Kabir Chowdhury.

"In his films, Ghatak proected things close to our hearts such as the Partition (in Subarna ...'), displaced persons and persevering people like our boatmen (in 'Titas.,'). That's why he is so close to us here in Bangladesh," Prof Chowdhury said in his concluding speech.

The session was attended by numerous local filmmakers and film enthusiasts alike.
