Nepal finally okays controversial hydro-electric project

KATHMANDUL Mai 6: Nepal has finally given the go ahead for the construction of a controversial hydro electric project which has been locked in the planning stages for eight years, top official said vester day

The government has approved a slightly modified version of the 800 million dollars main contributor, the World Bank, a senior Water Resources Ministry official told AFP.

"The project is planned to be started early next year and it's hoped it will be completed by 2000 in order to meet the acute power shortage. he said

The Nepal Communist Party-United Marxist and Leninist (NCP-UML) govern ment approved the project with certain conditions after a lengthy debate, a finance min. istry source said, refusing however to reveal the conditions.

The source added that the government had written a "positive letter" recommending the project to the President of the World Bank.

The 201 megawatt project to be sited 300 kilometres (107 miles) northeast of here was first conceived by the offi- Congress (NC) government and country for two hours. The pan and Sweden.

Banks can manage securities risk,

says Greenspan

WASHINGTON, Mar 6: It is time to let banks expand into the securities business. Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said Tuesday. But some Congressmen worried that such changes could expose the federal bank insurance fund to major losses, reports AP.

Rep. Charles Schumer said regulators and Congress need to proceed cautiously, particular larly after the downfall of Bar ing Brothers and Co. Barings one of Britain's oldest invest ment banks, was seized last weekend after losing nearly one billion dollars in the Asian futures market

"Technology has gotten so far ahead of banks that there are not the controls." said Schumer, speaking at a House Banking Committee hearing on bank reform.

Greenspan said he shared Schumer's concern about inadequate controls. But he added that banks have shown from their limited securities dealings that they can properly manage risks - such as last year's dramatic bond market decline - and should be allowed to expand further. " I read the evidence as saying that the risks in securities underwriting and dealing are manageable Greenspan said. Giving banks a new source of of revenue from securities would enhance their stability, he added.

Referring to the Barings scandal. Greenspan said regu lators and bank management simply have to recognize that computer technology gives in dividual traders power un known a generation ago.

"Because of technology. individual players have the ability of engaging (in trades) far more vastly than ever before." he said

The House Banking Committee is considering a sweeping overhaul of America's banking laws that would allow commercial banks into the securities business for the first time since the 1930s. Greenspan praised the bill proposed by Banking Committee Chairman Jim Leach, say ing it would be a major step in the modernization of our financial system.

Forex markets: Investors move to yen, mark over the week

HONG KONG, Mar 6: Investors moved to the yen and mark, seen as having longterm stability amidst doubts over US commitment to balance its budget and pay for a Mexican rescue package, says

JAPANESE YEN: The ven jumped to an all-time local high of 95.22 to the dollar in Tokyo on much speculative trading at the end of the week after gradually recovering from a low of 97 50 on Monday.

The Japanese currency was seen likely to reach new heights against the dollar despite concerted intervention by the Group-of Seven (G 7) central banks as short term traders might try to make quick profits

The week started with investors supporting the US unit as Tokyo shares plunge on massive investment losses by the British Merchant Bank Barings. But the yen turned upward, led by the mark's advance against the US unit

AUSTRALIAN DOLLAR: The Australian dollar weathered a collapse in the Greenback to close the week Friday almost unchanged. dealers said.

The local dollar finished at 73.77 US cents, just above the US cents, as expectations of an interest rate rise put a floor under the currency.

Economists said January retail sales which showed a bigger than-expected 2.8 per cent rise Thursday and an increase in December quarter business stocks confirmed the likelihood of another rate rise to curb strong economic growth.

On the Reserve Bank of Australia's trade weighted index, a basket of major trading currencies, the Australian dollar dropped to 52.4 points from 52.7 points a week be-

SINGAPORE DOLLAR: The Singapore dollar ended the week higher against the US dollar to 1.4490 from 1.4510 previously, in a trading week shortened by the Eld Ul-Fitr holiday on Friday.

HONG KONG DOLLAR: The territory's currency, pegged at 7.80 to the US dollar, closed at 7.732-7.733 to the US unit on Friday.

INDONESIAN RUPIAH: With the trading week shortened by the Eid-ul Pitr holiday. the Indonesian currency closed trading on Wednesday at 2.212 rupiah to the dollar. or one rupiah weaker than at the closing on Friday the previous week's close of 73.76 previous week

Photographer Manwar Hussain Manik receiving a gold crest from Barrister Rafigul Islam Mia, Minister for Housing and Works, awarded to him as an entrepreneur in the field of studio photography, by the City Cultural Centre, in Dhaka recently.

MALAYSIAN RINGGIT: The Ringgit gained a single basis point to close the week higher at 2.5530 from 2.5531 previously.

Dealers said there was little activity through the week in the local money market, which closed on Thursday for the three-day Muslim Eid-ul Fitr holiday.

NEW ZEALAND DOLLAR: The New Zealand dollar closed Friday worth 63.70 US cents. up on the previous week's closing of 63.28 cents.

Dealers said the Kiwi tracked the Australian dollar as it rose against the US.

PHILIPPINE PESO: The Philippine peso appreciated from 25.841 pesos to the US dollar on February 24 to 25.789 pesos on Friday.

Speculative attacks on the peso caused it to fall to 26.05 to the dollar on Thursday but the central bank countered before noon Friday by increasing its overnight lending rates from 25 to 30 per cent, ar resting peso's slide. SOUTH KOREAN WON: The won slightly weakened from 788.10 won per dollar a week ago to 789.50 won to the Greenback Saturday. The record appreciation of the Japanese yen against the dollar sent the South Korean currency to an all-time low of 827.79 against 100 ven.

TAIWAN DOLLAR: The US dollar declined slightly to close Friday at 36.3175 Taiwan dollars, down 4.45 Taiwan cents from the previous week's finish of 26.362 Taiwan dollars.

Market dealers said the local unit advanced due to the central bank's efforts to prop up the Taiwan dollar to cushion imported inflationary pres-

THAI BAHT: The Bank of Thailand's Exchange Equalisation Fund fixed the official midrate Friday at 24.88 baht to one dollar, down from last week's close of 24.94 baht. The dollar fell six satangs because Japanese investors worldwide sold dollars to buy yen for remittances at the end of the first quarter, a Thai Military Bank official said.
