KIDGO

Kacha Aam, Paka Aam, Tok Tok Misti

Eai ja Elo Bujhi Bristi Let's just pick the words in italics and translate and you will instantly know what the above lines say. Raw or unriped mangoes (that's the first two words) that are followed by words that say, sweet and sour at the same time and the last is of course rain. (Rain and green mangoes are somehow connected; maybe, by an invisible cord).

Yes! we are talking about that fleshy, vellow, sweet succulent fruit when still green and very very sour -Kacha Aam. This is the time when you will see mango trees dressed in their best and when young or old, women or men. girls or boys, all buzz around it.

With the promise that it might rain anyday now, young ones (specially) are waiting anxiously for these mouth - watering green mangoes to fall under the tree. So that they can then get wet in the rain (a very good excuse for the deed), scream. shout, sing at the top of their voice and collect mangoes (And if mummies shout, bribe them with few — they'll love it).

But then again, who wants to wait for any Kal Baishaki (storm) to make its unpredictable move, when all you have to do is just climb the tree (with salt and powdered chilli of course) in a leisurely afternoon (when moms are asleep) and grab as much as you want. You can even get hold of a bamboo, attach a metal wire at the top end, and place it on the twig of the mango you want and twist a little - the green mango, sweet or sour, will be on the cloth your friends are holding stretched under the tree (make sure they do).

If you don't want to go through all this hassle, just go to any street corner and you will find vendors selling kacha aam. (Life is definitely easy and no fun at all now but that's what the ready made era is all about).

Amir Ali is a seasonal fruit vendor. Throughout the year he sells melons. cucumbers or any seasonal fruit, and now kacha aam. "I buy 100 pieces for Tk 250 from Kawran Bazar and with fare and all, the final cost comes close to Tk 300. I sell the small ones for Tk 3 and the slightly big ones for Tk 4, he explains with smile. His business is really hot now.

"This stock finishes, at best within five hours, then I have to go for some more again or call it a day," he says. Ali has a cart that he stops at any convenient corner and carries business there. He has all sorts of spices to make his own special instant aamer chat. "Items depend on the customer's taste, some like it cut into simple big four pieces and have it with salt and chilli, while others slice it into small bits add mustard or kasundi (a kind of mustard preparation) or green chilli paste and shake it, a little, with salt and heir chat is ready." he explains.

Besides all these recipes, green man goes are a favourite now with pulse and other vegetables dishes. Moreover it is the time when you will see grandmas very meticulously slicing it into thin pieces and drying them in the sun with a dash of salt and chilli. This is aam chur which is basically preserved and later used in pulse or other food items. (The preservation process of aam chur is always hampered by crows and grandchildren you

Then of course there are all sorts of pickles that can be made by green mangoes. Unfortunately this season's delight lasts for about a month or half at the most - until they
