GOLD: The Black Rainbow Rosanna Arquette stars in this riveting drama as a spiritualist medium who publicly foretells a murder and says she can identify the killer. Her prediction becomes a reality and a skeptical, young journalist is assigned to the case. As her inside knowledge would bring down the town's crooked tycoon, he assigns his hit-man to deal with her. Writer/director Mike Hodge says he wrote the film incorporating several of his own concerns. "It was a crossroad of many different kinds — one, was what we're doing to our planet and two was my interest in the revival of numerous kinds of religion and of the new age of spiritualism. I wanted to do a thriller, that touched on those subjects," said Hodge.

WORLD AROUND US STAR Plus' collection of documentaries hosted by John Moorhead, World Around Us, continues with a today's presentation, Brides: A Tale Of Two Weddings. This documentary is a lighthearted look at two weddings. One in up-market Greenwich Connecticut, the other in working class South Philadelphia. The cameras follow the couples and their families as they plan and celebrate the great day — from food, music and flower arrangements to love, arguments and pre-nuptial nerves. A Tale Of Two Weddings captures the surface differences between two unions from opposite ends of the social scale. It also cuts through class barriers to reveal what is at the heart of a good American marriage.
