Tonight at 9 on BTU Time Trax: "The Scarlet Koala" UGITIVE Retrieval Specialist Darien Lambert (Dale Mid-kill) receives and urgent message from his superiors in the 22nd century through his computerized companion, Selma (Elizabeth Alexander). Apparently, there is a worldwide epidemic of malaria in the 22nd century. Darien must help find a crucial ingredient for an anti-dote. Somehow, Darien's superiors know that an obscure World War II army officer once consulted a witch doctor and saved his soldier's lives by developing a malaria serum from the blood of a scarlet-colored koala bear. Darien must find the last living scarlet koala and transport it to the future. The doctors in the 22nd century need to extract blood directly from the living koala to create the antidote serum. Since the army officer is dead, Darien asks the officer's daughter, Dr Katherine Kincaid (Kerrie Keane), for help. They fly to New Guinea, where Selma electronically locates the koala. When they see the koala, Darien and Kate chase it and suddenly find themselves surrounded by angry natives. Because of the healing powers of the scarlet koala, it is sacred to the natives. Furthermore, the witch doctor who knew how to use the koala's blood was killed by poachers seeking the koala's rare pelt. Unfortunately, the chief's (Allison Edrick Tabuai) son is about to die from malaria.
