A contortion of facts By Aminul Islam Sazal

Zahural Haq Hall, DU.

Inscriptions on a recently erected gate of Zahurul Haq Hall of the Dhaka University are contradictory to the official facts.

The inscriptions show that Zahurul Haq Hall was established in 1957.

According to the university annual report 1994, the present Zahurul Haq Hall was first established in 1947 and was named "Iqual Hall." At that time there was no other residential building for the students.

To meet the increasing pressure of students the hall was first built with bamboo fences, tin and wood on an immediate basis, the public relations officer of the Dhaka University, Nurul Islam, said.

The foundation stone of the present building of the Iqbal Hall was laid by the then Governor of East Pakistan A K Fazlul Haq on Many questioned how this hall could be named Zahurul Haq Hall in 1957 when nobody knew about him. It was only after his assassination in 1969 when he became a national hero, they observed.

The registrar of the university, Abu Jaed Shikdar, told this correspondent, "It is a bad trend to change the name of an existing institution. This is a sort of means to distort history."

The inscription should be as follows: Zahurul Haq Hall, established 1947/1972. which will indicate the name

"Although I was a student of Salimullah Hall, I stayed in the then Iqbal Hall for a few days in 1947," he added.

The Dhaka University record section refused to show the records of the hall when approached.
